U.S. Purchase Power Raised Three Billion, Says Johnson

4,500 Hear First NRA Sales Talk

Farm Prices Increased by Aid of Industry, He Claims.

Waterloo, Iowa, July 12 (AP).—Three billion dollars has been added by NRA to domestic purchasing power, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson told an estimated 4,500 persons today who gathered in a hot, dirt-floored cattle show barn to hear his bid for farm support of the industrial recovery measures.

Coatless and perspiring, his white shoes smudged by the inch-thick dust of the arena, the hard-talking former cavalryman who heads the NRA told the group of farm and city folk, many of whom were women, that farm prices have increased 70 per cent of prewar parity and industrial machinery has put 3,000,000 city people back to work.

"That may not be much, but ain't that something?" he asked, with an aggressive chin thrust forward and his "sales-talk" smile in full display.

Arena Over Half Filled.

The audience, seated on wooden benches extending around the oval arena and on 500 kitchen and folding chairs placed on the dirt floor, broke into cheers. More than half of the available seats in the arena, which seats 8,500, were filled.

At another point in his address the recovery head referred to the controversy over inclusion of the Constitutional guarantees of freedom of the press in the newspaper code, saying that since recent events in Germany he now understood "why these gentlemen were apprehensive," but added "there is no reason for their fears" in this country.

Audience Quiet During Speech.

"No power exists in this Administration that has not been freely granted by Congress and the cool, thoughtful man in the White House seeks nothing more."

Except for an ovation at the beginning and the close of his 20-minute address, the audience listened quietly for the most part.

The general, delayed by plane trouble, transferred to another

Johnson Stays, President Says

Roosevelt Cruiser Heads for Hawaii; Visits Ruins of City.

Aboard the Cruiser New Orleans, en Route to Hawaii with President Roosevelt, July 12 (AP).—President Roosevelt cruised out into the Pacific Ocean at 5 p. m. today and headed for the distant Hawaiian Islands.

The President told newspapermen he had received only a minimum of official business since leaving Washington.

He said he expected Gen. Hugh Johnson to continue the administration of the NRA, and that as far as the future administration is concerned he had not determined what would be done.

The President boarded the cruiser Houston after a motor trip with President Arias of Panama to the ruins of old Panama City.

Again today during drives through Balboa and Panama City the President was greeted at all places by waving and applauding citizens.

Cocos Island is tomorrow's goal. This spot, about 600 miles out, is luring the President as a fishing ground.

Strike End Near At Hopewell Mill

Arbiter Reports Peace Talk Progresses.

A report on negotiations toward settlement of the artificial silk workers strike at Hopewell, Va., was made yesterday by the Labor Department by Miss Anna Weinstock, of the Conciliation Service, the Associated Press reported.

Although declining to divulge details of conversations Miss Weinstock had with officials of the Tubize-Chatillon Corporation, operators of the Hopewell plant, Labor Department officials asserted progress had been made.

As a result of the conferences, a proposition was expected to be made to the striking workers, who quit their jobs after the corporation ignored a decision of the National Labor Board ordering reinstatement of 10 discharged employes and the spreading of work to several hundred more workers.

Peacock Sets Record By Brilliant 62 Round

Indian Spring Star Shatters Par by 9 Strokes With Card of 32-30.

By Dave Herman.

A 62, nine strokes under par, believed to be a new world's amateur noncompetitive golf record for a 6,621-yard par 71 course was scored yesterday at Indian Spring Country Club by Roger Peacock, 23-year-old Maryland State amateur and former District champion.

Peacock's great round was carved out over one of the longest courses in this section, and he added lustre to his achievement by playing under summer rules. The curly-haired Indian Spring star dynamited the first nine in 32 shots, three under orthodox figures, and reeled off a dazzling 30 on the incoming side.

So hot was the pace he set that seven birdies and an eagle fell from his clubs.

Peacock's 62 not only clipped four strokes off the unofficial course mark set by J. Monroe Hunter, former Indian Spring pro, in 1928, but knocked one shot off the previously claimed amateur record made by the peerless Bobby Jones at the East Lake course in Atlanta a few years ago. Jones' 63, which long has been considered the best noncompetitive record ever hung up by a simon-pure player, was achieved on a par 72 layout.

Peacock's score will be sent to the U. S. G. A. today for official recognition. It unquestionably is a golf masterpiece, and it is doubtful if any amateur in the world ever has scored as low as that over such a lengthy layout with summer rules prevailing.

Peacock thus will have his name written into the history books along with that of another Washingtonian, Al Houghton, Kenwood professional, whose spectacular 30—31—61 over Washington Golf and Country Club a few months ago is considered something of a world's professional record. Houghton's round, which showed 9 pars and 9 birdies, included an out-of-bounds

Retail Price Of Cigarettes Fixed by NRA

Minimum Scale Set to End Custom of Using Them as Store "Bait."

Minimum cigarette prices were fixed yesterday by NRA as a move to prevent their use as "bait" in stores dealing primarily in other products.

The effect of the announcement, as reported yesterday, would be to assure sale of the "big four" popular brand cigarettes at a minimum of 13 cents a package and two packages for a quarter. Cartons will sell for at least $1.20.

Secondary brands will be sold for not less than 10 cents a package.

NRA declared a formal emergency and said cigarettes were used as loss leaders, "a practice which has practically eliminated small enterprises from tobacco distribution."

The emergency will expire in 90 days. Meanwhile, Leon Henderson, chief recovery research and planning, will direct a study to determine future policy.

Price-fixing was resorted to on complaint of retail tobacco dealers, that "alien" stores sold cigarettes at less than cost to draw customers for other goods.

An official NRA statement explained:

"It has long been a matter of common knowledge, because of the use of tobacco products, particularly cigarettes, as 'bait,' that the tobacco distributing trades, composed preponderantly of small storekeepers, have been suffering from severe price competition.

"NRA can not guarantee any form of enterprise a profit. Furthermore, competition, with respect to price, is considered desirable by this Administration, because it is recognized that evolution towards more efficient distribution, with consequent benefits to the producer of raw materials, as well as to the consumer, has generally resulted from most competition, including competitive pricing practices. This does not mean,

Portuguese President's Family Hurt in Crash

Libson, Portugal, July 12 (AP).—The wife, daughter and a grandchild of President Oscar Carmona of Portugal were seriously injured today in an automobile accident near Coimbre.

Bombs Answer Death Threat Of Dollfuss

Five Persons Are Hurt; Seven Nazis Held on Suspicion.

Vienna, July 12 (AP).—Opponents of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss answered his threats of death to terrorists today by setting off two bombs, one of which injured five persons.

The bombs followed a period of comparative inaction on the part of terrorists. It was recalled that on previous occasions, there have been new outbreaks when Dollfuss showed an inclination to take severe measures.

Seven Nazis were arrested on suspicion in connection with the bomb at Salzburg, which injured five persons.

Their case was being watched to determine whether Dollfuss, now that he has concentrated the principal cabinet portfolios in his own hands, will carry out his threats to impose the death penalty.

The Salzburg bomb was thrown into the automobile of a member of the government party "Fatherland Front," which was parked in front of a small tavern near the famous "Klosterbrau" beer hall.

Four of those injured were Austrian tourists. The fifth was a 12-year-old girl, who had been sent to the tavern for beer.

The second bomb today slightly damaged a priest's house in Buers, western Austria, and broke many windows.

A further change in Dollfuss' cabinet was made today with appointments of Maj. Gen. Wilhelm Zehner to the post of undersecretary of defense, where he will work directly under Dollfuss.

Reports that the German Minister here has received instructions to leave for Berlin were declared by the legation to be "unfounded."

Turner's Racing Entry Accepted, He Apologizes

Detroit, July 12 (AP).—Col. Roscoe Turner, speed flier, was advised today that his entry in the London-to-Melbourne Air Derby next fall, has been reinstated.

He immediately gave out a cablegram he said was being sent to the Australian press, in which he apologized for critical statements he made upon being formally notified of his disqualification.

Outlaw Scourge and Pal Slain With Banker in Hill Ambush

Miami, Okla., July 12 (AP).—A country bank president died today with two bank robbers, one of them named by officers as "The Old Man of the Mountain," long a thorn in the side of the law in Eastern Oklahoma's badlands, in a swift and furious gun battle.

The 72-year-old bandit, his youthful pal and Ealum Gregory, president of the Bank of Ketchum, fell in a hail of lead that climaxed a posse's pursuit of the loot-laden pair.

The "Old Man," also known in the outlaw-infested Cookson Hills as "Kaiser Bill," was John R. Goodman, a mysterious and dreaded figure in the back country. No identification had been made of his companion.

Rifles and pistols flashed as the posse, searching for the two men, who earlier in the day had robbed the Bank of Ketchum of $300, came suddenly upon the pair in the hills 1½ miles south of Grove. They had stopped to change license plates on their automobile.

The speeding possemen were upon the halted car before they recognized the occupants, and the robbers opened fire. Gregory fell dead, a bullet in his side. A volley of bullets from the posse then killed the two robbers, the "Old Man of the Mountain" being shot through the head. About 20 shots were fired.

Gregory's son, Luther Gregory, assistant cashier of the Ketchum Bank, earlier was kidnaped by the robbers when they looted the institution and used him as a shield in escaping. They released him unharmed at the edge of Ketchum, and sped on into the hills.

The bank president, his son and Oscar Blackford, a farmer employed by the elder Gregory, rushed in pursuit. They were joined by Sheriff John York, of Vinita, and the party picked up another officer as they passed through Bernice, in Delaware County.

Strike Grip Is Tightened Upon Coast

Crisis Beyond Reach of U. S. Board; General Walkout Near.

Truck Men, Butchers Quit; San Francisco Food in Danger.

Strike developments last night were:

Commercial paralysis spread along the Pacific Coast as San Francisco faced a general walkout.

Hospital facilities were set up in Minneapolis as truck drivers prepared to renew their strike Monday at midnight.

San Francisco, July 12 (AP).—Strike paralysis crept farther along the channels of Pacific Coast commerce today and San Francisco began to take on the aspects of a beleaguered city in face of a threatened general walkout.

The crucial situation stretched far beyond the reach of President Roosevelt's Labor Disputes Board as one union after another made known its intention to strike or to follow recommendations to be made tomorrow by a strategy committee on the question of a general walkout.

The Federal board worked in a tense atmosphere, hoping to persuade the maritime unions to submit the issues to arbitration.

Ignoring the plea of the President's board for delay, the teamsters' unions of San Francisco and Alameda County walked out 3,700 strong, stopping the movement of freight motor vehicles. Wholesale butcher workers dropped their knives, saws and cleavers, cutting off fresh meat supplies for the 1,000,000 residents of the bay cities.

Troops, Police Prepared.

National Guard troops, ending their first week of occupation of the San Francisco water front, prepared for "any emergencies" and police were on the alert to prevent violence outside the district patrolled by heavily armed militiamen.

Several trucks found operating after the teamsters walked out this morning were stopped or overturned. Housewives, expecting a siege, began to lay in supplies. Some residents were reported hoarding staples and gasoline in the face of fire department warnings against the latter.

The teamsters' strike seemingly stopped the movement of all heavy trucks in and out of the city, but the strikers indicated they would not interfere with retail delivery vehicles and the bread, milk and laundry carriers would be permitted to operate.

The crux of the strike situation remained the question of arbitration between employers and striking longshoremen and marine unions.

Employers Offer Aid.

The employers agreed yesterday to submit all questions to arbitration. Later the President's board announced "some of the unions" had agreed similarly and that others would report definitely today.

Three Seattle maritime unions voted today by overwhelming majorities for arbitration.

They were the Marine Cooks and Stewards Association, the Marine Firemen, Oilers, Watertenders and Wipers Association and the Sailors Union of the Pacific.

A. H. Peterson, speaking for the 12,000 longshoremen, who began the strike May 9, announced that organization would not take a referendum on arbitration "until assurance has been received from the employers that they will consent to

Perjury Charged In Poderjay Case

Sister of Agnes Tufverson Files Complaint.

New York, July 12 (AP).—Selma Tufverson, sister of the missing Agnes Tufverson, filed a perjury complaint today with Assistant District Attorney Harold W. Hastings against Ivan Poderjay, husband of the woman who disappeared last December.

The complaint was based on a charge that in his application for a license to wed Agnes Tufverson, Poderjay swore he never had been married.

Hastings announced he would attempt to have Vienna authorities hold Poderjay pending an investigation. If the proof is sufficient, he said, an indictment will be asked, and, if granted, the State Department would be requested to seek Poderjay's extradition.

Veteran, 80, Kills Self in U. S. Home

Poison Dose Proves Fatal; Note Explains Act.

After writing a note explaining his act, Joseph R. Thompson, 80, veteran of the Spanish-American War and inmate of the United States Soldiers' Home, ended his life with poison in his room at the home yesterday.

The veteran was pronounced dead by Dr. Joseph R. Shelton, of the Soldiers' Home staff. Officials said Thompson had not been well. He had been in the home about 20 years and had no known relatives, officials said.

A note left by Thompson said:

"This earthly home ten years ago became a hell for old men."

'Shore' Mob Gathering in Attack Case

Farmers Rush to Jail in Delaware; Laurel Boy Saves Mother.

Youth Knifed in Battle With Bedroom Intruder.

Georgetown, Del., July 12 (Spl.).—An angry mob of Maryland and Delaware farmers was forming in front of the county jail here tonight voicing threats to lynch Edward Waters, 40, colored, accused of attempted assault of a Laurel woman and the stabbing of her 18-year-old son.

Roads of the countryside between here and Laurel began to fill with cars of incensed farmers during the late afternoon as word of the crime spread. Observers said many of the farmers were armed.

Waters, cringing with fear, had been rushed to the county jail here, strongest structure of its kind in southern Delaware, for safe-keeping. Authorities said they were confident of holding off the mob. They had surrounded the jail with a heavy guard of armed officers.

Bedroom Invaded.

Waters was arrested three hours after the attempted assault on Mrs. Lovey Williams, 36, whose bedroom was invaded. The intruder had gained entrance by cutting his way through a screen door.

Aroused by his mother's screams, Charles, asleep in the next room, ran to his mother's aid and was severely slashed by the intruder, who then fled the house. He is in the Peninsula General Hospital in a serious condition. Muscles of a leg were severed and the boy lost a considerable quantity of blood.

Waters was arrested in the street when he could not account satisfactorily for his movements. As reports of the gathering mob circulated, authorities removed him to the county jail to await a hearing.

Richard F. Roper May Retire Soon

Son of Cabinet Official to Quit Party Post.

Reports that Richard F. Roper, son of Secretary of Commerce Roper, would soon retire from Democratic National Committee headquarters were current yesterday.

He was made executive secretary of the National committee in charge of party headquarters in the Press Building early in the Roosevelt Administration.

Some weeks ago, however, Emil Hurja, right-hand man to Chairman Farley, after serving as an aid to Secretary of Interior Ickes, moved into Democratic headquarters to function as the chief patronage arbiter, and Mr. Roper confined his activities principally to work among young Democrats. He was out of the city last night.

Gov. Langer Calls Conviction Probe

Special Legislative Session Will Investigate Trial.

Bismarck, N. Dak., July 12 (AP).—Gov. William Langer late today called a special session of the North Dakota Legislature to convene next Thursday to investigate his conviction by a Federal Court jury of defrauding the United States Government.

In his proclamation, Gov. Langer called attention to the Federal Government's criminal proceedings against him and denies the charges of fraud.

The Governor and four associates were convicted of charges of defrauding the Federal Government in connection with solicitation of political contributions from Federal workers. He is under sentence of 18 months in a Federal penitentiary and to pay a fine of $10,000.

Bolivia Claims Victory In New Chaco Battles

La Paz, Bolivia, July 12 (AP).—The war ministry announced in a communique today that Paraguayan forces in the Gran Chaco had been repulsed in bloody fashion "since the first minute they unleashed an offensive."

"Action was carried on at various points for the last 96 hours," the communique said. "The enemy left hundreds of dead as penalty for frontal attacks in which they wasted their effectives. During four days of offensive the enemy has not advanced."

Ponzi Pardon Denied; He Begins New Battle

Boston, July 12 (AP).—Charles Ponzi, whose mysterious get-rich-quick operations in 1920 set a whole Nation agog, today failed to win a Massachusetts pardon through which he hoped to avert deportation to Italy, but he began a new Federal court battle against deportation.

Ponzi, his period at liberty under bail expired, surrendered to immigration authorities who planned to deport him Sunday. But Ponzi forestalled that move by filing in Federal court a petition for a writ of habeas corpus, alleging he was illegally detained.

Non-Profit Body to Have Power to Engage in Businesses.

Products Will Go Only to Jobless

Wages to Be Paid in Scrip; Purchase of Land Authorized.

Plans for a new nonprofit corporation designed to aid persons on the District relief rolls through self-help projects were announced yesterday by Commissioner George E. Allen.

The corporation will be empowered to engage in commercial pursuits, buy and sell, sue and be sued. A store or commissary and a sewing room probably will be the first enterprises undertaken.

Farm and manufacturing projects may be launched by the corporation.

The corporation will begin to function as soon as formalities can be complied with and details of operation worked out, the Commissioner said.

Extension of the plan throughout the country is expected. Similar projects are under way at Richmond, Va., and in various Ohio cities. Orders to launch the new corporation in the National Capital came from the Federal Emergency Relief Administration which will supply the funds necessary to launch and keep the corporation going.

The District announcement brought forth corroboration from officials of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration. They said the plan would be operated locally but would be financed, if necessary, through the National organization.

Products to Unemployed.

Officials stressed that while the plan was Nation-wide in scope, it would be restricted to supplying food and clothing strictly to the unemployed and that none of the material would be placed on the open market.

The exclusive announcement of this plan in The Post more than a month ago brought indignant and repeated denials from FERA officials.

The local corporation will be known as the District Rehabilitation Corporation. It will have no capital stock nor salaried officers. Officers will either be District, relief or welfare officials.

Announcement that it would be formed was made after a lengthy conference between Commissioner

Air Probers To Cover U.S. In Own Plane

New Board Starts Tour in August; Howell Going Abroad.

By Frank Getty.

President Roosevelt's new Aviation Commission will take to the air during August.

In its own plane, piloted by its own executive secretary, four members of the Howell board will tour the United States, studying at first hand every phase of American aeronautics.

Chairman Clark Howell, at the board's request, will sail for Europe August 4, to study flying conditions and problems there.

Formal announcement of the commission's plans for preparing its report to Congress, due six months hence, was made yesterday at the final organization meeting.

Vice Chairman Edward P. Warner will head the group which will fly from Washington next month to every important aviation center of the country, to Army and Navy bases, commercial airports and factories, and possibly over the Caribbean airways.

Col. J. Carroll Cone, war-time flyer and commission secretary, will be at the controls of a trimotor Ford, which was placed at the board's disposal yesterday by Eugene Vidal, director of the Air Commerce Bureau of the Department of Commerce. The others on the 25,000-mile tour, which has for its purpose the obtaining of information in advance of the open hearings in September, will be Franklin K. Lane, jr., Albert J. Berres and Jerome C. Hunsaker.

The aerial inspection trip will be the most comprehensive of its kind ever undertaken. Air fields from coast to coast and from Mexico to Canada will be visited by

Ohio to Open Ten Plants in Self-Help Plan

500 to Be Employed Making Own Necessities on Non-Profit Basis.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 12 (Spl.).—Self-help for families and individuals on relief in Ohio through the operation of factories throughout the State where the needy may make their own necessities is expected to be started within a few weeks.

This was announced today by members of the Cuyahoga County relief committee, which has been quietly studying the program for more than three months.

The projects will be under the direction of the Ohio Surplus Relief Corporation, a non-profit organization formed by members of the State relief commission and other State officials.

It will be financed by funds from the Federal Emergency Relief Administration.

"We plan to start on an experimental basis, employing only about 500 of the 1,000,000 people on our relief rolls," said Boyd Fisher, who will manage the factory division of the relief corporation.

"There will at the start be about 10 or 12 factories, located in different sections of the State. In Cleveland there are three factories now under consideration, in Delaware two and Toledo and East Liverpool each one.

"Each factory will be leased, to manufacture goods generally made in the place where it is located. In this way we will take advantage of the local equipment and the skill and training of the unemployed in each locality."

In Cleveland the plants will manufacture knit wear, men's clothing and furniture; in Toledo, women's

U. S. Navy Talk Stirs Delegates

London Receives Swanson Statement as Threat to 1935 Parley.

London, July 10 (AP).—The statement in Washington that the United States is ready to build at least two new battleships "if necessary" was regarded here today as new evidence of the seriousness of the situation facing diplomats engaged in conversations here regarding the 1935 naval conference.

The announcement of Secretary of the Navy Swanson with regard to the ships was interpreted here as a reply to Japan's position and Italy's program of expansion.

The belief grew in London that Russia and Germany will be invited to participate in the 1935 parley.

No further conversations took place today, and there was no indication as to how much longer the American delegates will remain here.

Colored Voters Ruled Out of Texas Primary

Dallas, Tex., July 12 (AP).—Attorney General James V. Allerd today handed down an opinion holding that colored citizens are not entitled to vote in the coming State Democratic primaries.

The opinion was based upon a resolution adopted at the State convention of the Democratic party in Houston May 24, 1932, which stated that all white citizens of the State are qualified to vote, but making no mention of colored.

Bernard Shaw Suggests 'Sanctuary for Humans'

London, July 12 (AP).—George Bernard Shaw, patterning after the bird lovers, suggested today turning the world into a sanctuary for humans, with no shooting allowed.

Observing at a luncheon in support of the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds that game refuges had spread to many sections of the world, the Irish man of letters remarked "that does us humans a great deal of credit, because there are no sanctuaries for husman beings."

Fear-Driven College Student In Coed Beauty's Death Sighted

Norman, Okla., July 12 (AP).—A panicky college boy was hunted tonight in Houston, Tex., while the body of his campus sweetheart, Marian Mills, 20, University of Oklahoma beauty queen, lay in a cemetery near here.

Leaping from a motor car when a suspicious motorist gave chase, a youth believed to be Neal Myers, 21, a university junior, who vanished just before a doctor found the body of Miss Mills in an apartment here Tuesday, disappeared into a wooded residential area of the Texas city last night.

Police believed they would find him soon. In and near the abandoned motor car they found several boxes of pills, a container of black powder and personal belongings of young Myers.

As the body of Marian was buried following simple funeral services, Norman authorities continued to question Mrs. Hazel Brown, the fraternity cook, in which apartment Marian's body was found.

The girl and young Myers had been at the apartment for a day and a half, Mrs. Brown said, engaged in a desperate attempt to defeat motherhood by the use of a "quack" remedy.

However, County Attorney Paul Updegraff said he did not believe the medicine could have killed Miss Mills and expressed the belief the 39-year-old cook and student confidante could tell more.

Seal said he would begin immediately the task of drafting the articles of incorporation, which he said would be broad enough to permit the concern to function as desired.

Has Land Purchase Power.

The corporate form was decided on to get rid of Government red tape and give greater freedom of action it was said.

How much money will be required has not been estimated. How large and extensive will be the activities of the corporation will depend on developments, it was said.

"The corporation," Mr. Street said, "will not take the place of relief and other aid activities now going on. It is expected it will take off only a small part of the load. It is designed to aid persons to rehabilitate themselves."

Street said that if such a project employed 500 persons it would be a very large project." The corporation will have power to buy, sell and lease land. The farm project will be decided later.

Wages Paid in Scrip.

Those engaging in the cooperative enterprise will be paid in scrip. No cash will be paid corporation workers.

Under the Richmond plan each person participating "invests" a certain number of work hours. This "investment" is worked out at the rate of an hour of work per day for which no pay is given. When the specified number of hours has been worked out whatever the worker has received in the form of aid is considered paid for.

Carpentering, painting, sewing, gardening, general repair work and other activities are within scope of the plan. In working out their investment participants in the Richmond scheme produce only for other members and their production is limited to the needs of members.

ing in doorways of the court buildings on Judiciary Square for ten nights.

Edward's father, who enlisted in the Army in 1917 and was discharged because of physical disability in 1928, is a patient at Mount Alto Hospital. He draws $13 a month compensation. That isn't enough to take care of Mrs. Weber and his son, although he obtained pick-and-shovel work with the CWA when he first came to Washington.

The job caused his condition to become worse, and he was admitted to the hospital. Mrs. Weber could find no work. After several evictions, she and Edward took to sleeping out.

Park police were kind. Then Edward began to show signs of becoming ill, and Policeman J. E. Bracey took him in a taxicab to Gallinger Hospital. Meanwhile Mrs. Weber was put in touch with the Women's Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

While she was given a pleasant place to sleep last night, little Edward looked forward to weeks of recuperation and building-up for a better day.

Fire Endangers Wide Utah Area

Dozen Miners Rescued; 200 Fighting Blaze in Empire Canyon.

Park City, Utah, July 12 (AP).—A brush fire destroyed the surface buildings of the American Flag and the old Daly lead-silver mines today, and advanced down Empire canyon toward this town. Some 200 fire fighters were summoned to check it.

A dozen men employed in the shaft of the American Flag mine were rescued only a few minutes before the hoist was put out of commission by the flames, which covered an area two miles square.

Residents of the south side of Park City prepared to remove their possessions.

Lack of water, the dryness of the underbrush, parched by a summer's drought, and the excessive heat, all combined with a canyon wind to make difficult the task of the fire fighters.

Boy Reads Psalms, Waiting Gas Death

Killer, 19, Dies in Arizona Chamber Today.

Florence, Ariz., July 12 (AP).—The silence of "death row" in the State prison, where George J. Shaughnessy, 19, of Albany, N. Y., awaits death at dawn tomorrow in the lethal gas chamber, was broken today as the condemned slayer read aloud the words of the twenty-third psalm.

Shaughnessy killed Lon Blankenship, tucson automobile dealer, a year ago in an attempted robbery.

At dawn he will be led into the death chamber and strapped to a chair. At 5 a. m. lethal vapors will float through the chamber and in a few seconds he will be dead.

plane at Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill., and arrived shortly before 2:30.

As he walked in the main entrance and down through the dusty arena the crowd came to its feet and broke into applause. The band struck up the "Stars and Stripes."

Smiling and waving to the crowd, the general proceeded with his party to the platform, where he shook hand with Gov. Clyde L. Herring and other prominent Iowans.

Indorsed by Herring.

Gov. Herring, spiking his prepared speech, introduced the general briefly as "a hard-riding cavalryman I've known for 20 years."

The general was to go to Omaha to continue his 30-day "sales tour" for the NRA and the Administration.

His address here was the first of a Western speaking tour for the Blue Eagle chief. It will carry him into the section in which Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, plans to campaign against NRA this summer and fall, charging it with promoting monopolies. He struck directly at the Idahoan.

"I understand that Senator Borah intends to make a field day out of the summer lambasting NRA," he said. "I speak of the noble old Roman with the greatest of respect and deference. No man has to a greater degree my sincere admiration. He and Hiram Johnson went out and busted the League of Nations in one speaking tour.

"Single-handed, he went out to Minneapolis or St. Paul—I forget which—and took the West away from Al Smith and gave it to Herbert Hoover by one single speech. I'll bet he's sorry about that speech.

Praises Borah.

"He is one of our greatest men and certainly one of our greatest orators. I think he has done more than any man to keep alive in this country the ancient tradition of intellectual morality and independence."

"I just want to commiserate with him a little. I know he will not take my gentle shaft unkindly. He won't be able to say anything of a critical nature that we shall not have corrected before he gets it uttered."

He said NRA was "blamed and cussed" for everything and that he was getting his share of the spears thrust at that agency. He advised his hearers to tell any one who claimed NRA had not done all for the farmer that he hoped, to "go jump in the lake."

NRA Not for Farmer.

"NRA has no such protean duty. It was set up to do for city workers what AAA was charged with doing for farmers."

The rest of the "alphabetical group" had millions to give away, he said, but NRA, "unhappily for its popularity, was not in the Santa Claus group." Its job, he added, "was not to give but to take."

Johnson said that in the year which ended last May 31, there was a 32 per cent increase in employment and a 28 per cent increase in all pay rolls, accompanied by a 57 per cent jump in the pay rolls of manufacturing concerns on which, he said, NRA has had the most direct effect. All this, he added, was accompanied by only an 11 per cent increase in living costs.

Purchase Power Increased.

"Cold figures and percentages," he said, "don't mean very much to one not accustomed to deal with them but these figures simply say that—as to any group of two men who were employed a year ago, one extra man has been added.

"They mean that, to every dollar of workers' purchasing power to buy your products a year ago, more than 50 cents has been added.

"Why these increases are nothing less than marvelous. But there are those who say that in spite of all these incontrovertible and unassailed facts, the farmer is not advantaged. No grosser falsehood was ever perpetrated on a trusting audience."

Embassy Quiet After Johnson Attack on Hitler

German Charge D'Affaires Refuses to Comment on Iowa Speech.

(Associated Press.)

Dr. Rudolph Leitner, Charge d'Affaires of the German Embassy, in the absence of Ambassador Hans Luther, declined tonight to comment on Hugh S. Johnson's speech in Waterloo, Iowa, in which he arraigned Chancellor Adolph Hitler and the German government.

The German Embassy, however, has protested on a number of occasions against anti-German, anti-Nazi and anti-Hitler speeches, articles and movements in the United States. There was indication tonight that the embassy might file a protest with the State Deparment against the Johnson speech.

Other protests have been made against private citizens and organization activities and remarks, and it was indicated that since Gen. Johnson is a Government official the German government would consider his remarks as distinctly unfriendly to a government which the United States officially maintains friendly relations.

A mock trial by anti-Nazis in Madison Square Garden in New York City resulted in one of the last protests mad by the embassy.

The State Department, at that time, informed Ambassador Luther the trial was held by individuals, that no Government officials were involved, and that guarantees of free speech in the United States made it impossible for the Government to take any action.

The Italian government has also filed protests aganist alleged anti-Mussolini articles and speeches in this country. Former Ambassador Martino established a record for the number of protests he made against alleged slurs on Premier Mussolini and the Black Shirts.

Observers here recalled the case of Maj. Gen. Smedley Butler who was the object of one of the outstanding Italian protests. Butler, in a speech in Philadelphia in 1931, repeated a story in which it was asserted Mussolini had run down a small child with his automobile.

The Butler case created a furore until Henry L. Stimson, then Secretary of State, apologized to Mussolini and the Italian government on behalf of the United States Government.

Gold Hunt Begun Again In Nevada; Town Booms

Silver Peak, Nev. (U.P.).—Scenes reminiscent of boom days when this mining camp produced approximately $40,000,000 in gold, are at hand again.

The camp has been producing steadily for 60 years, but with the rise in gold price, prospectors returned to take another chance in their endless fight with the desert to wrest a fortune. There is a scarcity of homes and equipment. Shelter is at a premium.

Million on Ohio Relief.

"I want it understood that this program is entirely separate from President Roosevelt's recovery program. It is simply to take care of people on relief. None of the materials will be sold outside the relief lists, so there will be as small an amount of competition with private business as possible," Mr. Fisher said.

"But we feel we have a tremendous responsibility toward our million relief clients in Ohio. We think as many as possible should work for the money they receive, in some enterprise that is really productive, rather in than in some totally nonproductive activity.

"We think, after the depression is over, that this sort of work not only will keep men and women in training, but will train many new people for private enterprise. Many people, idle for such a long time, are gradually losing their skill."

Relief officials in Cleveland are not absolutely sure that this is a way out from under the tremendous relief burden, but they feel that the doling out of money in the quantities that has been doled out in the past can not be continued forever.

Cleveland Spends $20,000,000.

"Relief has been one of the chief functions of government in this county," Marc J. Grossman, vice chairman of the relief committee at Cleveland, pointed out. "In 1934 we will have spent $20,000,000 for relief."

While unemployment has been falling off rapidly in the Ohio metropolis during the last year, the relief rolls have been gradually increasing. There are now about 45,000 families and 13,000 single men taking cash or grocery orders to maintain a bare subsistence.

This means that in Greater Cleveland, with a population of 1,000,000, there are 200,000 on relief—one person out of every five. Ohio maintains about the same proportion.

Relief officials here are unable to see an end to the new applicants. People have been living frugally for months and even years on their savings, which gradually are becoming exhausted.

Idle Factories Studied.

The relief problem has sounded several ominous notes—food riots and eviction demonstrations by the score. The unemployed have organized themselves very effectively against eviction.

Along with the idle men and women are scores of idle factories, whose owners must spend large sums of money for taxes and other upkeep. Engineers are studying these facilities and laying plans for the organizations to man them.

The most difficult problem is that of distribution. Officials of the Surplus Relief Corporaton must determine just how the factory workers are to be paid, whether they are to be compelled to take so much of their production in exchange for their work, &c.

The date when production is started will depend largely upon the working out of the distribution details.

Senator Pope Hits Du Ponts

Senate Inquiry in War Materials Probe Is Defended.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Pope (Democrat), Idaho, accused the Du Pont munitions interests yesterday of "laying a smoke screen" in anticipation of the Senate's inquiry into the war materials business.

The Senator, member of the investigating committee, said Du Pont profits jumped nearly 1,000 per cent during the World War.

He answered a recent statement attributed to Irenee Du Pont, vice chairman of the board of the E. I. Du Pont De Nemours Co., that "a subservient force instigated by the third (communist) internationale and allied interests, to weaken the defensive powers of capitalistic countries; efforts of idealists to prevent war through a mistaken notion that preparedness is a cause of war and a desire on the part of many newspapers and magazines to sell copies by handing to the public lurid reading which will help their sales."

Senator Pope declared:

"Mr. du Pont, not having been accused of anything officially, is making a somewhat premature defense of recrimination. It is interesting, however, that the Du Pont interests should begin protesting and laying a smoke screen in anticipation of the work of the investigating committee."

District's Auto Tags Will Carry Words Next Year

Letters which have been used in the past on District automobile license tags to designate the type of automobile for which the tag was issued will be supplanted by words next year.

Instead of H indicating a taxicab, as it now does, such vehicles will be plainly labeled "taxi" on their license plates. The word will be above the license number.

Among other descriptive words to be used on tags will be "D. C. Government," "U. S. Government," "Commercial" and the little extra tags which have heretofore been issued to members of the Diplomatic Corps will be done away with. Their license tags will bear the word "Diplomatic."

More than 187,000 pounds of steel will be used in making the 200,000 tags which have been ordered for next year. The tags will have green numerals on a white background. Manufacture of them will begin next month at Lorton Reformatory. They are to be delivered before December 1 and put in use December 15.

Youngster's Appeal To President Wins Him That Bicycle

A New York sporting goods store proprietor yesterday joined Secretary Swanson of the Navy in answering the prayers of 12-year-old Clifton Wilson, of St. Paul, the Associated Press reports.

The youth wrote President Roosevelt he had been praying for a chance to see the fleet and some airplanes and for a bicycle. The letter was referred to Swanson, who promised young Wilson he could meet the first two requests if his parents ever brought him to the seacoast. He told the youth to keep on praying for the bicycle as the Navy did not count such equipment among its stores.

Yesterday Swanson received a wire from Henry Modell, New York dealer, saying he would be very happy to present the St. Paul boy "with a two-wheeler, with the compliments of President Roosevelt."

however, that unrestricted price cutting can be permitted."

Sold Below Cost.

The situation which has arisen in the tobacco distributing trades, the statement added, "goes beyond healthy competition."

"It has become the practice of large retail merchants, primarily engaged in the distribution of other products, to use cigarettes as 'bait' to attract customers, often disposing of them at prices below the cost of these articles to the small independent merchant.

"This has been possible because of certain merchandising characteristics of cigarettes; they sell for a low price, are widely advertised, are of uniform quality and package and are almost a daily purchase of the consumer.

"They are sold in quantities by large retail distributors whose cigarette business is for them only a side line at prices substantially lower than the wholesaler can afford to quote to independent retailers.

Scale of Prices Set.

"The consequence, particularly during these times of depleted resources for the small merchant, has been to place in jeopardy the livelihood of many thousands of them and their ability to maintain labor standards."

Two orders, signed by Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson, set the minimum price to the consumer at the manufacturers' list price plus 5¼ per cent on cigarettes sold at less than $5 a thousand wholesale. The markup was fixed at 6½ per cent on popular brand smokes. A schedule of discounts figured in the ultimate price to the smoker.

'Rasputin' Damage Verdict Appealed

Film Producers Protest $125,000 Award.

London, July 12 (AP).—Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Ltd., carried its fight against paying Princess Irina Youssopoff damages for its depicting the life and death of "Rasputin, the Mad Monk" to the Court of Appeals today.

The court heard arguments that the $125,000 awarded to the princess in her libel suit was "enormous," especially in view of her reported plans to bring other suits and that the jury was given "hopeless misdirection" by the trial judge.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has promised that the film, in which John, Ethel and Lionel Barrymore played featured roles, will not be shown again.

Speeder Borrows Cash From Judge To Pay His Fine!

James Allen, colored, opened a "charge account" in Police Court yesterday.

Allen was arrested for speeding by Policeman William Lutes in Potomac Park. He was fined $5 by Judge Gus A. Schuldt. Reaching in his pocket, Allen drew out four $1 bills.

"Your honor," he pleaded, "will you continue this case until I can get another dollar?"

"You look like an honest fellow," the judge commented, "but I'm afraid we must keep the records straight and I can not grant your request."

Crestfallen, Allen turned toward the cell block. Judge Schuldt grinned.

"Wait a minute," he said, "here's a dollar. I'll loan it to you. Pay your fine and give it back tomorrow."

Allen beamed his thanks and promised to repay.

Air Probers To Cover U.S. In Own Plane

New Board Starts Tour in August; Howell Going Abroad.

the flying commission, which will pause to hold hearings wherever such are desired by interested groups.

From time to time, the commissioners will leave their own plane to fly in commercial ships over established air routes and in the latest types of military and naval planes.

Seek All Information.

"We will endeavor to overlook no phase of aeronautics which might be useful to us in formulating our report," Vice Chairman Warner said.

"The purpose of the trip will be to see for ourselves, rather than hearing from witnesses only, the problems that must be met in outlining a future air policy.

"The commission will start its flight about August 1, and will be en route approximately a month. We feel the tour will be of great value to us, when the time comes for open hearings in September. We will have the advantage of first-hand information regarding flying conditions, airports, factories and possible future aerial routes over the entire country."

The commission held its final organization meeting at its new headquarters in the Department of Commerce building yesterday afternoon, and recessed until July 23. At that time, Hunsaker, the only member of the board not present, will have returned from Europe.

Howell Outlines Program.

Chairman Howell outlined the commission's program between now and February in a formal statement:

"Members of the board," he said, "will be engaged for the next few weeks in studying material furnished by other Government departments, by the Army and Navy, and by other investigating bodies. Individually, they also will go into various phases of the problem with which we have to deal.

"During August, Mr. Warner and the other Commissioners will tour the United States. Wherever there is a request for a hearing, one will be held whenever practicable.

"I will go abroad to make a comparative study of conditions in England and on the continent, particularly of the administrative aspects."

There also is under way, Howell said, the task of organizing a staff of technical experts and advisers, in preparation for the hearings, which are expected to occupy September and October.

Thousands Ask Hearing.

"We already have received a thousand requests from persons desiring to testify," Howell said.

Regarding the tremendous number of would-be witnesses, the board is in somewhat of a dilemma, but the chairman indicated the horns will be whittled off before time comes for the hearings.

"We want the hearings to be open to everyone who desires to be heard," Howell repeated. "We are not approaching our task with any preconceived notions, and intend that the door shall be open to all persons, whatever their interest in the future of aviation may be.

"If it should prove impossible in the time allocated to hear those who have nothing material to contribute, we may have to limit the list of witnesses somewhat.

Group Spokesmen Suggested.

"With this in mind, and to avoid unnecessary repetition of testimony, we are inviting various groups interested in aeronautics to designate spokesmen. An invitation to this effect has been sent to the American Federation of Labor, for example.

"But above everything else we want to hear every useful suggestion that can be made before settling down to digest our information and prepare our report during the winter months.

"All the hearings will be open to anyone, except when discussion of problems of National defense makes it desirable to hold executive sessions. There will be no more of these than necessary."

In addition to the volunteer witnesses, who will number hundreds, according to present indications, the board is preparing a list of persons, such as Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and others, whose advice will be specially requested.

"We won't have to subpena anyone," Howell said. "This inquiry is devoted to planning for the future, and is not concerned with water over the dam."

Beer Vendor In Quandry

Landlord Denies Him Right to Sell Sandwiches; Law Takes Hand.

The District Alcoholic Beverage Control Board took under advisement yesterday the peculiar case of David Stambler, who operates a lobby stand in the Southern Building at Fifteenth and H streets northwest.

Stambler sought and was issued a Class D license, permitting him to sell beer and light lunches. He couldn't sell the beer, under the law, without the sandwiches. Everything went along all right until his landlord, whose consent he said he thought he had obtained before he applied for the beer license, forced him to discontinue selling the sandwiches.

A few days later he was charged with selling beer without sandwiches. At a hearing yesterday, Stambler explained the situation and asked the board to help him out. Whether to revoke his license for violations he ceased immediately after he was warned, or to transfer his license and give him a chance to get something for his $400, is under study, by the board.

Gun-Girl Killer Held in Probe

Trusty Convict Charged With Murder for Purpose of Investigation.

Little Rock, Ark., July 12 (AP).—Frank Martin, trusty convict, who killed the notorious Helen Spence Eaton as she sought to escape prison, today was arrested on a technical charge of murder as a speedy investigation of the killing was promised by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Lawrence C. Auten.

Coroner L. C. Aday ordered Martin placed in jail so that the grand jury could investigate the killing.

Aday had rendered a verdict of justifiable homicide after his investigation at the scene of the killing, 9 miles north of the State farm for women, from which Helen had escaped 24 hours earlier, after leaving a note saying, "I will never be taken alive."

"This being a woman who was shot by a convict," said Aday, "I feel the responsibility too great to act upon it as one man, and I am therefore placing Martin under arrest and in jail to await action of the grand jury."

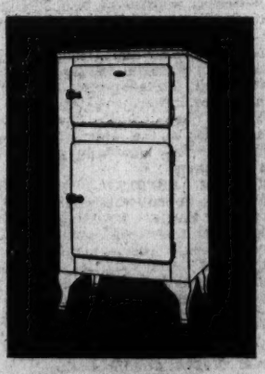
ICE REFRIGERATION
1934 STYLE



THERE'S a lot of difference between the old fashioned "ice box" and this new, modern ice refrigerator. You'll notice the up-to-the-minute design. But that is just part of the story. It's what is inside the refrigerator that really counts. With pure American Ice there is an even temperature and a constant flow of circulating air. Impurities and food odors are absorbed by the melting ice and carried down the drain. This active circulation of fresh, "washed" air preserves your foods and lets them retain their natural flavor and juices. Roosevelt Will Inspect Dams On Return Trip

PWA Projects Over West and Green Bay Speech Are Scheduled.

By Raymond Clapper.

On his way back from Hawaii, President Roosevelt will visit several power projects which are being created with PWA funds in the Far West, the White House revealed yesterday.

In making public the President's return itinerary, political aspects of the cross-country trip were minimized. Most of the stops between the landing at Portland, Oreg., August 3 and the arrival in Washington August 10 will be for the purpose of inspecting public projects rather than speech-making. The only scheduled address is to be delivered at Green Bay, Wis., August 9, commemorating the 300th anniversary of the founding of the State of Wisconsin.

President Roosevelt may speak briefly at Rochester, Minn., as part of an American Legion tribute to the Mayo brothers, the famous surgeons.

A radio talk on National parks during the visit to Glacier National Park also is possible. Rear-end train appearances, with frequent informal words of greeting, are almost inevitable traveling through a region where the people seldom have the opportunity to see a President of the United States.

To Inspect Power Sites.

Emphasis in the itinerary was laid on personal inspection of several huge power projects which PWA is erecting in the Far West. President Roosevelt will visit the Bonneville Dam project on the Columbia River, Grand Coulee Dam in Washington, the Fort Peck power project in eastern Montana, and will view the dredging work on the upper Mississippi, below St. Paul. The party will stop overnight in Glacier National Park.

At Portland the President will be met by a group of aids and officials. Secretary of Interior Ickes will be on hand to take the President through the inspection of the power projects and Glacier National Park. Col. Louis Howe and Stephen T. Early, White House secretaries, will join the President. Others who may board the Presidents' train are Secretary of Commerce Roper, who is now in Alaska; Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, who is on a ranch in Montana, and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, now speaking in the West. A safe guess is that Democratic candidates for the House and Senate and for local offices will be climbing on and off the train at various points en route, in order to appear in Presidential company at least briefly.

To Advertise Power Projects.

While there is a deisre to avoid giving a political complexion to the President's journey back to Washington, it will serve to dramatize and publicize the great power projects which are part of the New Deal program and which in years to come may be its chief physical monuments.

The Public Works Administration yesterday announced additional allocations totaling $54,000,000 for three of the projects which the President will visit.

A second-year allotment of $11,000,000 was given to the Bonneville Dam on the Columbia River, 40 miles above Portland. Original estimates fix the total cost of this dam at $31,000,000, giving direct and indirect employment to 17,000 men, designed to benefit the entire Pacific Northwest, especially Oregon, Washington and Idaho. It will make the Columbia River navigable to the Snake River, will aid flood and erosion control and result in cheap power for the whole area.

The President's second stop will be at Grand Coulee, where PWA is putting in $63,000,000 for a dam 251 feet high, on the Columbia River in eastern Washington, 75 miles west of Spokane. It is calculated to generate 700,000 horsepower and PWA engineers claim it will provide the cheapest power in the world.

To Create 175-Mile Lake.

PWA yesterday allotted an additional $25,000,000 to the Fort Peck dam and reservoir in Eastern Montana, where a lake 175 miles long, more than the distance between Washington and Philadelphia, is being constructed. There President Roosevelt will see barges and dredges assembled in the middle of a vast prairie. The lake will be "built" around them.

An additional $18,000,000 was alloted for the upper Mississippi channel work. Earlier $22,000,000 was set aside for this work, which is employing about 7,000 men, according to PWA.

The Presidential itinerary as issued by the White House, by M. H. McIntyre, secretary to President Roosevelt, was as follows:

"The Cruiser Houston will arrive at Portland, Oregon, on the morning of August 3. The President and his party will debark and leave immediately for the inspection trip of the Bonneville Dam, where several hours will be spent, leaving there late in the afternoon for Soap Lake, Washington, by way of Spokane.

Glacier Park Visit Planned.

"Arriving at Soap Lake on the morning of the 4th, the President and his party will motor to Coulee Dam for an inspection of this project and will return to Soap Lake, leaving by train late in the afternoon for Belton, Mont., the next stop. The train will be routed back through Spokane, passing through there late in the afternoon.

"At Belton, Mont., the party will detrain for a motor trip through Glacier Park.

"Early in the morning of August 6 the party will again entrain at Glacier Park Station for Glasgow, Mont., from which point the party will motor to Fort Peck for the inspection of the project there.

"Leaving that evening, the next stop will be Devils Lake, N. Dak., the President and his party motoring in that region for the purpose of studying the subsidence of water table.

To Honor Mayos.

"The Presidential train will leave Devils Lake about noon for Rochester, Minn., by way of St. Paul. At Rochester the President will participate in the American Legion tribute to the two Doctors Mayo. Shortly after noon the President and his party will motor to the Mississippi River and make a boat trip for the purpose of inspecting the dams and upper Mississippi River developments.

"Following this, the party leaves by train that evening for Green Bay, Wis., where the President will deliver an address on Thursday morning, August 9. The party will leave Green Bay about noon for the last lap of the trip to Washington by way of Chicago, arriving in the Capital about noon, August 10.

"In addition to the address scheduled at Green Bay, the President will probably speak very briefly in the Mayo celebration and may make a brief radio talk during his visit to Glacier Park."

NRA Warned on Approving "Disputed Jurisdiction" Codes

Gilbert Montague Tells Institute of Public Affairs Conflicting Claims Such as Scandalized Craft Unions Will Cause Mischief.

Charlottesville, Va., July 12 (AP). Gilbert H. Montague, New York lawyer, told the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia tonight that nothing but mischief can result if the NRA lends its authority to the approval of codes that will perpetuate "overlapping and conflicting claims" and "jurisdictional disputes" which he said have long been "so great a scandal of the craft unions."

"Jurisdictional disputes and overlapping and conflicting claims, such as for years have waged between rival craft unions," he said, "are fast being written into codes of fair competition.

"They are being written in because of the NRA's carelessness or haste in approving for industries, having strong craft union backing, codes of fair competition that confer upon such industries a monopoly of operations that have long been characteristic of other industries."

Must Resist Officials.

He said that more and more frequently trades and code authorities now organized under their own codes are having to resist attempts by NRA officials to take away operations that have for years been an essential and integral part of these trades.

They are having to resist these officials, he said, because of the attempt other trades and other code authorities are making, through these executives, to get these provisions for themselves.

Mr. Montague is chairman of the NRA committee of the New York State Bar Association and chairman of the NRA, Federal Trade Commission and antitrust laws committee of the Merchants Association of New York.

Government in its new relationship to commercial life in America also provided themes for two other speakers today. They were Joseph B. Eastman, Federal coordinator of transportation, who spoke on the relation of Government to the railroad industry, and Col. Malcolm C. Rorty, president of the American Management Association, of Lusby, Md., who took "The Government and Industry" as his topic.

Tells Railroad Obligation.

Mr. Eastman said that it was his opinion that the Interstate Commerce Commission was best fitted to supervise and control the roads, but that it should be kept in mind that:

"Means of transportation are of crucial importance to a civilization like curs and for that reason the providing of those means has always been recognized as a public function. We permit the railroads to be privately owned and operated, because common opinion has been, probably is, that this function can best be performed in that way; but the first and essential thing is adequate performance. Interest to creditors, profits to stockholders, and wages to employees are all incidents wholly secondary to this primary objective. Railroad managers have a tendency to forget that fact; to think in terms of assumed proprietary rights to certain traffic, strategic locations and the like, and to subordinate the National welfare in transportation to the welfare of their own particular properties."

"The Government permitted the rails to be laid, created the private railroad corporations, and endowed them with the power of eminent domain for the sole purpose of providing the best possible means of transportation. It does not have to, and will not long, tolerate interference with that prime purpose for the mere magnification of individual railroad companies."

Col. Rorty in his speech sounded a warning against the multiplication of Government employes, asserting that the formation of large groups of Government functionaries always resulted in the formation of political blocs and that the private citizen, in turn, was forced to organize to protect himself.

Talks Consumer Problems.

Problems of the consumer were discussed before the NRA roundtable this morning with Dexter Keezer, of Baltimore, director of the Consumers Advisory Board of NRA; Miss Isabel Leighton, of New York City, chairman of the women's division of NRA, and F. J. Schlink, of New York, president of consumers' research, as leading speakers.

Rehabilitation of consuming power in the United States is one of the main purposes of the NRA, Mr. Keezer said, expressing his belief that the two most important things to be done in behalf of consumers are to assure adequate representation of consumers on code authorities and to find out exactly what is happening under the codes.

Plan to Halt Pay 'Kickbacks' Is Completed

Clark Announces System to Check Wage Law Violations.

Supervision of the pay-offs on District construction projects will be begun tomorrow by special inspectors appointed to carry out the Commissioners' new plan to prevent violations of wage and labor laws and regulations on public projects, Capt. Howard F. Clark, assistant engineer commissioner and chairman of the wage compliance committee, announced yesterday.

Pay-offs of only a few of the several jobs will be checked tomorrow, but the general inspection scheme will be in full operation before another pay day rolls around, Capt. Clark said.

A meeting of the wage compliance committee yesterday was devoted to discussion of details such as when, where and how workmen on the various jobs were paid off, Capt. Clark said.

"We have found that some of the pay rolls are made up in Baltimore, others are made up on the job. Some are paid off at banks and others at places not on the job itself," he explained.

"The committee now is gathering all that information so that we will be able properly to direct our inspection and make it effective."

This and other desired data will, it is expected, be compiled before the next meeting of the committee which has been fixed for 2 p. m. Tuesday.

Death Takes Mrs. McCone

Mrs. James E. McCone, 62, mother of Lieut. Alexander McCone, of the Sixteenth Field Artillery, Fort Myer, Va., White House aid, died suddenly at her home early yesterday. She lived with her son at Fort Myer.

A native of California, Mrs. McCone was the daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Thomas Lennan, California pioneers, and the widow of Dr. James T. McCone, member of the Royal College of Surgeons and of the medical faculty of the University of California.

She is survived by two sons, Lieut. McCone and James F. McCone, of Sacramento, Calif., and a daughter, Miss Mary Jane McCone, of San Francisco, and two grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held in Fort Myer Chapel tomorrow at 10 a. m. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, San Francisco.

The outstanding issue of the entire controversy lies in the strike of the longshoremen and the seamen. Both have demanded control of the hiring halls, or agencies through which they are sent to jobs. Heretofore the employers have controlled these. The longshoremen repeatedly have refused to arbitrate this issue.

Longshoremen Back Sailors.

Peterson's statement indicated the longshoremen would take the referendum only on condition the employers would specifically agree to arbitrate with the seamen as well as with the longshoremen.

A score of unions here and 16 locals in the East Bay area proclaimed their intention today of either striking at a specific time or walking out at the call of the Central Labor councils.

Whether San Francisco would be plunged into darkness in the event of a general strike became a question as Pacific Gas & Electric Co. officials went to Mayor Angelo J. Rossi with complaints that they had been warned to get their maintenance trucks off the streets.

Mayor Rossi announced all possible efforts would be made to maintain light, heat and power service.

Glendale Site Selected for D.C. Hospital

$1,500,000 Appropriation Must Now Be Had From PWA.

The District Commissioners were understood yesterday to have decided to erect the new Washington Tuberculosis Sanitorium for Adults at Glendale, Md., adjacent to the already completed structure of the children's sanitorium.

Before ground can be broken, however, the necessary $1,500,000 appropriation must be approved by Secretary of the Interior Harry L. Ickes, for the building is a PWA project.

Various other sites for the sanitorium have been proposed for numerous reasons, one of the principal objections to the Glendale site being the water supply. Sandy water, and an insufficient amount of it, has made it impossible to use the children's sanitorium as yet.

However the Glendale site was warmly defended yesterday by Mrs. Ernest W. Grant, executive secretary of the Tuberculosis Association of the District.

Mrs. Grant pointed out that water now flows in one of the wells on the Glendale Children's Sanitorium at the rate of 400 gallons per minute. The other well is furnishing 85 gallons a minute.

Location of the sanitorium at any other place but Glendale, stated Mrs. Grant in a letter to the Commissioners would "completely defeat the plan toward which we have been working for many years, namely building a great tuberculosis center composed of a group of sanitoria which would be worthy of the Nation's Capital."

Rite Tomorrow For Missionary

The Rev. Herbert W. Kline Was Active 30 Years in District.

Services for the Rev. Herbert W. Kline, mission worker, who died Wednesday, will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Full Gospel Tabernacle, North Capitol and K streets.

The Rev. Mr. Kline for the last 10 years was superintendent of the Potomac District Council of the Assemblies of God. He died at his residence, 204 Leland street, Chevy Chase, Md., following an illness of six months.

The Rev. Mr. Kline was active in mission work in the District for 30 years.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Cora M. Kline, and daughter, Miss Ruth Kline, both of Chevy Chase.

The Rev. E. F. M. Staudt, of Baltimore, Md., will officiate at the services, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Charles A. Shreve, of Washington. Burial will be in the Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Broken Egg Brings Wife's Divorce Suit

Spouse Broke It in Hand on Birthday, She Says.

Allegations that her husband broke an egg in her hand, struck her on the face with a belt, and then locked her in a closet until she promised to leave home, were contained in a suit for limited divorce filed in the District Supreme Court yesterday by Mrs. Marie E. Auth.

Mrs. Auth declared her husband, John George Auth, at one time caused the electric current to be turned off, and removed from the basement all the coal. The egg episode, she said, took place on her birthday—June 30.

Duhamel Urges Larger Board, Vote for D. C.

Voice in Electoral College and Congress Also Asked for City.

A larger board of Commissioners, elected from different sections of the city, and National representation in Congress and the electoral college was advocated by James F. Duhamel, delegate to the Federation of Citizens Association, in a letter to William A. Roberts, people's counsel, made public yesterday.

"A larger commission from different locations, and in touch with their respective locations, would promote a greater interest in government among the citizens and an ambition by many to work for the public good," Mr. Duhamel wrote. His letter was addressed to Mr. Roberts, as chairman of the municipal committee charged with studying the question of reorganizing the District government.

The enlarged board of Commissioners proposed by Mr. Duhamel would prepare the budget and tax rate, which would be ratified by the Senate District Committee.

"The Senate," he said, "has used very good judgment in my opinion, in granting appropriations and eliminating self-interest. The people of the District are perfectly competent to manage their own affairs."

One-year residence would qualify property owners to vote in the District under Mr. Duhamel's plan, but others would have to reside here five years before they could vote.

"We have too large a floating population," he explained. "That is what wrecked the District government in 1873.

"I am writing Commissioner Allen," he continued, "indorsing his initiative, referendum and recall proposition and suggesting that all propositions of these natures be submitted to the civic organizations, with election methods to be prescribed by the Federation of Citizens Associations. Only members of civic associations will be privileged to vote. They are estimated to total 40,000 and this would encourage civic activity and interest and make the taxpayer feel his responsibility to the District government."

Scharnikow Given Telephone Emblem

Chesapeake and Potomac Official Is Honored.

In recognition of his 35 years of telephone service, Harry Scharnikow, plant superintendent of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., was presented a diamond service emblem at a luncheon given in his honor yesterday at the Raleigh Hotel by telephone officials and other friends. The presentation was made by P. G. Burton, general plant manager.

Mr. Scharnikow began his telephone career in 1890 in the switchboard installation department of the Western Electric Co. in New York City. He came to the Chesapeake & Potomac as a switchboard wireman in 1901 and in 1908 was transferred to Washington to assist in installing the Cleveland central office. By successive promotions he attained his present post.

Two Army Bags To Be in Race At Birmingham

Will Meet Strong Field for Chance at Poland Competition.

Two Army balloons will compete in the National elimination balloon race for the Litchfield Trophy, against a strong field of competitors, including a Navy entry, at Birmingham, Ala., July 28.

Both of the Army gas bags will have a capacity of 80,000 cubic feet. They will be piloted by Capt. William J. Flood, of Washington, and First Lieut. Haynie McCormick. Capt. Flood will have First Lieut. Reginald Gillespie as his aid, while First Lieut. J. P. Kirkendall will be the aid in the other entry.

Army participation involves no cost to the Government, the expenses being borne by the sponsors of the competition in Birmingham.

The winners of first, second and third places are expected to go to Warsaw for the Gordon Bennett international balloon race in September.

The Army has won the National race five times. Among the Army pilots who have won is Brig. Gen. Oscar Westover, assistant chief of the Army Air Corps, who took first place in 1922, when he was a major.

Flood holds all four flying ratings in the Air Corps. He is an airplane pilot and observer, airship pilot and balloon observer. He has participated in both National and international races.

Lieut. McCormick served as aid to Capt. Flood in two races in 1925 and in the 1932 race. Lieut. Gillespie was an aid in the 1929 race. Lieut. Kirkendall has never raced before.

J. Ham's Farewell To News Writers Has Old Flourish

Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois named "the Senator most anxious to please the press" in a Capitol newspaper poll, lived up to his reputation yesterday in his parting message to Washington writers.

Departing for the West to continue his duties as chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign committee, Senator Lewis addressed a note to "the gentlemen of the press gallery."

"I find I do not have the opportunity to personally thank you for the generous manner and the dignified attitude you have been so generous to extend to expressions of my own, lately uttered to the press on behalf of the Administration and on my own behalf personally," he wrote.

"I beseech you to feel free upon my return from time to time at Washington or under any other circumstances wherever I am, to command my continuous service and reciprocity for your generous service to me."

Wife Asks a New Mate Until First One Leaves Jail

Those easy divorces—take it from the woman who was calling—should be made available to Washingtonians.

The woman, who didn't give her name, telephoned the office of United States Attorney Leslie C. Garnett for a solution to her domestic problem, which, briefly stated, was that her "man" was being detained in jail for three years.

She wished to know if it would be legal for her to take unto herself another spouse pending the return of her first love. It couldn't be done.

Sugar Quota Relaxed By U. S. Farm Board

The Farm Administration yesterday liberalized import quotas on sugar produced outside the United States, the Associated Press reported.

In an order signed by M. L. Wilson, Acting Secretary of Agriculture, it was provided that importations may be brought in above quota levels, provided an equivalent amount of sugar from the same area is turned over to customs collectors.

Plans to Land Stratosphere Balloon Made

Portable 'Bases' Ready for Fast Trips; Weather Delays Flight.

As weather temporarily delayed the take-off of the giant stratosphere balloon Explorer from the Black Hills of South Dakota, officials of the National Geographic Society and the Army Air Corps are going ahead with their plans for handling the landing of the balloon, it was announced yesterday.

State and local officials in South Dakota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Missouri and Nebraska—all of which are within the possible landing area of the big bag—have offered their cooperation, John Oliver LaGorse, vice president of the society, said.

As soon as the landing place of the balloon is known, motorcycle detachments will be dispatched to the spot to protect the gas envelope and the precious cargo of scientific instruments in the kondola from souvenir hunters and others.

Two mobile "bases" are being established in the Middle West by the society and the National Broadcasting Co. One will start from Peoria, Ill., and the other from Des Moines, Iowa. These will consist of broadcasting truck and a car carrying technicians and representatives of the society to meet the balloonists when they land.

As the balloon is expected to be in hourly communication with the ground, the mobile "bases" can move in its direction even before a landing is made. Calculations indicate that the "explorers" probably will come down within 200 miles of Peoria. This is not certain, as wind shift may set it down in another territory.

Fruit Flies and Fungi Going on Balloon Flight

Rapid City, S. Dak., July 12 (AP).—Fruit flies will be flown higher than they ever flew before, in the interests of science, when the stratosphere balloon takes off for the upper regions of the air as soon as weather conditions permit.

They will be "among the equipment" that goes aloft with Capt. Albert W. Stevens, scientific observer, and Maj. William Kepner, pilot, in the metal gondola attached to man's largest balloon, one of 3,000,000 cubic feet capacity.

Spores of a few common fungi also will be taken on the flight in an effort to penetrate the stratosphere 15 miles. Maj. Kepner announced today Sunday would be the earliest possible flight date.

Both the fruit flies and the spores will be used in another phase of the cosmic ray investigation. Upon the balloon's return to earth, F. C. Meier, plant pathologist of the United States Department of Agriculture in Washington, will study the spores to determine whether their habits and growth had been altered by upper atmospheric conditions. Spores of bread mold and rhizopus, which causes decay in strawberries, will be tested in this manner, hanging in small quartz tubes 500 feet below the gondola.

Whether the cosmic rays change the sex of fruit flys may be determined by taking them along in quartz tubes inside the airtight gondola.

Sunday School to Observe Centennial August 5 to 12

Waynesboro, Pa., Planning Elaborate Program at Church.

Waynesboro, Pa., July 12 (Spl.).—Plans are under way to observe the 100th anniversary of organization of Trinity Reformed, the pioneer Sunday school in Waynesboro, from August 5 to 12.

On August 10, 1834, a union Sunday school was organized. Presbyterian, Lutheran and Methodist congregations united with the Reformed Sunday school. The first service was held on that day with an enrollment of 60. The school continued as a union school until 1864, when it became a denominational school.

In 1930, plans were laid for a modern church school building to cost $75,000. Plans and specifications have been drawn.

The centennial will start Sunday, August 5, as homecoming. Greetings will be borne by men who have served as superintendent, school members who have entered the ministry and the pastor-emeritus, the Rev. Dr. F. F. Bahner, who served Trinity as pastor for 42½ years. He is now living with his daughter in Erie, Pa. Dr. Harvey J. Mickley, of Johnstown, Pa., and the Rev. Ernest W. Brindle, of Arendtsville, Pa., sons of the congregation, will speak.

On August 7 the community will join in the anniversary. Dr. Boyd Edwards, headmaster of Mercersburg Academy, will speak. August 8 will be known as congregational night. Dr. George W. Richards, president of the Eastern Theological Seminary, Lancaster, Pa., and the new president of the new General Synod of Evangelical and Reformed Churches in America will speak.

Thursday will be Christian Endeavor night, and Friday anniversary night.

The centennial service on August 12 will conclude the observance. Dr. Paul E. Leinbach, editor of the Reformed Church Messenger and a member of the Federal Council of Churches of America, will speak.

All services will be held outdoors on the spacious lawn adjoining the church and on the site of the proposed church school.

Woman Acquitted In Bigamy Trial

Danville, Va., July 12 (Spl.).—A jury today acquitted an admitted bigamist, Mrs. Minnie Walker, of Winston-Salem, N. C., in the corporation court.

Her first husband, Bernie Brown, caused her arrest here a few weeks ago, but failed to appear today. The defendant told the jury her husband, to whom she was married when she was 15, deserted her in 1918, a few days after their child was born and she thought he was dead. She married Ralph Walker in 1926.

Judge H. C. Leigh reminded the jury that under the Virginia law when a husband or wife is not heard from for seven years it is assumed that death has occurred and the deserted person has the right to remarry.

West Virginia Sifts Rates for Power

Charles Town, W. Va., July 12 (Spl.).—The Public Service Commission has begun an investigation of rates charged by two subsidiaries of the Great American Water Works & Electric Co., of New York, operating in Jefferson County.

The companies are the Shepherdstown Light & Power Co. and the Northern Virginia Power Co., the former operating in Shepherdstown, W. Va., and the latter in Charles Town and Berkeley Springs.

Members of the commission are in Frederick, Md., auditing books of the companies. Three engineers probably will arrive in the county Monday to begin a survey and make an appraisal of the properties of the two companies.

This 'American Eagle' Proved To Be Woman's Pet Buzzard

Hagerstown, Md., July 12 (Spl.).—The "American eagle," reported to have forsaken its mountain rendezvous and to have been roosting on chimneys and housetops in the downtown section, is one of Mrs. Bertha Finneyfrock's pet turkey buzzards.

Several residents identified the bird as an "eagle" before Mrs. Finneyfrock saw it and coaxed her pet to go home with her.

Three years ago Mrs. Finneyfrock was presented three buzzard nestlings. She placed them with her chickens, and the flock adopted them.

The buzzards take daily flights, returning for meals and to roost with the chickens. Occasionally, one of the male buzzards decides to roost on a chimney, and it is then that his mistress gets a call to come around and get him.

The pets are always hanging around her restaurant looking for food, said Mrs. Finneyfrock.

Damages of $20,000 Asked for Injuries

Cumberland, Md., July 12 (Spl.).—Asking $20,000 damages, Marshall J. Jenkins has filed suit in circuit court against the Potomac Edison Co.

The plaintiff claims he was standing on a curb last March 30, waiting to board a bus, when the vehicle struck him and hurled him against a telephone pole. He charges negligence and recklessness on the part of the bus driver. Jenkins contends that he was permanently injured.

O. W. Decker Funeral Today in Brunswick

Cumberland, Md., July 12 (Spl.).—Fitzhugh Lee Decker was advised of the death of his brother, Ollie W. Decker, 60, at Brunswick, Md., yesterday.

Mr. Decker, a former resident of Cumberland, was employed in the Baltimore & Ohio shops. He was later promoted to conductor and was transferred to Brunswick. The funeral will be held at Brunswick tomorrow.

Lutheran Reunion Due July 26 at Caverns

Harrisonburg, Va., July 12 (Spl.).—The fifteenth annual Lutheran Reunion of the Shenandoah Valley will be held at Endless Caverns on July 26. Prof. George G. Perry, of Roanoke College, and Dr. L. W. Strickler, of Norfolk, will speak.

The Rev. A. W. Ballentine, of Timberville, will be in charge of the music.

Postoffice Guarded To Check Vandalism

Cumberland, Md., July 12 (Spl.).—Because of vandals defacing walls, it has been necessary to have a watchman patrol corridors of the new United States Postoffice and courthouse.

The interior has just been painted by an out-of-town contractor who brought his workmen with him. One of the walls was found slashed with a knife or sharp instrument, gouging out the plastered wall.

Baptist Conclave Scheduled July 17

Sunday School Leaders to Meet at Leesburg.

Leesburg, Va., July 12 (Spl.).—The annual Sunday school convention of the Western District of the Potomac Baptist Association will be held at Leesburg Baptist Church on July 17. This association embraces all the Baptist churches in Loudoun County and a number in Fauquier County.

The program will open at 10:30 a. m., with a devotional conducted by the Rev. H. B. Jennings, Leesburg. The Rev. C. Wirt Trainham, of Marshall, will speak on "Excellencies and Errors in Sunday School Work." The Rev. Fletcher Ford, of Upperville, will discuss "Importance of Teaching Baptist Doctrines in Our Sunday Schools." The Rev. Marshall Frazier, of Marshall, will speak on "Relationship of the Sunday School to the Church."

The afternoon session will be devoted to reports, election of officers and a question box on problems, conducted by the Rev. J. B. Essex and O. W. Triplett.

Church Dedicates Building Sunday

Middletown, Md., July 12 (Spl.).—The Mount Pleasant Pentecostal Church of God, Foxville-Smithsburg highway, will dedicate its new building Sunday.

The program will begin with Sunday school at 8:45 a. m., and continue throughout the day and evening. Dedication services proper will be held at 2 p. m. Services also will be held at 7:30 p. m. The Rev. W. A. Miller, pastor, will be assisted by visiting ministers.

The radio staff of the Baltimore Assembly, of which the Rev. John W. Pitcher is pastor, will furnish music at one service.

Hollins College to Hold First Institute of Alumnae August 15

Roanoke, Va., July 12 (AP).—Come, and bring your husband and the children!

That's the invitation Hollins College is extending to alumnae as it prepares for the first session of its Alumnae Institute, August 15-31. The institute is said to be the first of its kind offered by a Southern college for women, although similar events have been held at Vassar and other schools of the East.

Recreational opportunity will be provided and a day school will be conducted for children between the ages of 6 and 12.

The institute will offer an interesting program embracing English literature, problems of international organization before and since the World War, the program of the Federal Government under the present Administration, contemporary trends in political philosophy, contributions of physical science to current thinking and appreciation in the arts. Professors at the college will conduct the lectures. Library facilities will be available.

The American Alumni Council and the American Association for Adult Education are emphasizing the intellectual aspects of the college-alumnus relationship and are recommending that colleges inaugurate programs of educational service for their graduates.

200 Volunteers To Aid Traffic Safety Crusade

100 to Be Selected, Given Cards to Report on Violators' Numbers.

More than 200 Washingtonians have applied for appointments as official traffic "observers" in the new "safety conscious" drive, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent, revealed yesterday.

The secret corps, chosen from among business, civic and religious leaders, will be completed within a few days. Various organizations are submitting names for selection. Only a few are yet to be heard from.

Maj. Brown expressed surprise at the large number of volunteers. From names submitted, 100 will be picked for the "observers" group. Only police and traffic officials will know their identity.

Work Without Pay.

The so-called "spotters" will be given authority to report directly to police headquarters on traffic infractions they observe. Each operative will be given cards with which to forward their reports.

The selected observers will receive no compensation for their work, Maj. Brown declared. They will contribute their time as a matter of "civic duty." A special police card will be issued each as a means of identification.

Duties of the secret observers will be to note traffic violations and report the offender's license number. A tactful letter of warning will be written by the Police Department.

If a motorist is reported any "unreasonable" number of times, he will be summoned to headquarters for an explanation.

System Works Elsewhere.

The much-heralded "Voice of Conscience" automobile is not expected to make an appearance for several weeks. Special work on the car is being completed at a Detroit factory.

The machine will cruise downtown streets. It will be painted white and equipped with a loudspeaker. A traffic policeman, speaking into a microphone, will warn pedestrians and motorists alike when they are seen violating minor traffic regulations.

Both the "observers" and cruising-car systems have worked successfully in other cities, Maj. Brown said. Cincinnati recently installed the latter.

Ickes Notes Progress In Slums Work Here

Public Works Administrator Ickes yesterday stated that "progress is being made" in the slum clearance program in Washington, but he declined to amplify. While discussing at the semiweekly press conference the status of low cost housing work in New York and Chicago, he was asked about the Washington situation.

"We're making fine progress," he said, "and a substantial allocation will be made for the work as soon as it is needed."

Staunton Kiwanis Entertains 1,000 Children at Swim Party

Four Mess Calls Give Little Guests Ample Refreshments.

Staunton, Va., July 12 (Spl.).—Tummies all but bursting after having helped themselves to generous portions of hot dogs, rolls, popcorn, chocolate milk, buns and ice cream, more than 1,000 Staunton and Augusta County children sang the praises of the Kiwanis Club here upon the occasion of their annual picnic in Gypsy Hill Park.

Kiwanians have done some big things in the past for the underprivileged kiddies, but this year's party was the biggest. Beginning at noon the children passed by the refreshments stands at intervals of one hour and on each of four such trips they went away with hands loaded with things to eat.

Between "mess" calls there was directed recreation for boys and girls and at one time as many as 500 heads were bobbing in the municipal swimming pool, also thrown open gratis to the children.

C. K. Jones, chairman of the club's committee on boys' and girls' work, was largely responsible for planning the monster party and carrying it through to a successful conclusion. He was assisted in getting the names of deserving children and issuing tickets by Capt. C. R. McDilda, of the Salvation Army; Mrs. Gladys Miller, Public Health nurse; Miss Elizabeth W. Brooke, superintendent of public welfare in the city and county; the Rev. I. T. Jacobs, of the First Baptist Church, who directed the recreational program; R. H. Kinney, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and girl and boy scout leaders of the community. A. Crawford Gilkeson, county school superintendent, made available school buses, which were used to bring the children from the rural sections, while the Salvation Army Band from Lynchburg was here to furnish music.

High Schools Add Two Courses to Curriculum

King George, Va., July 12 (Spl.).—Courses in agriculture and home economics have been added to the King George High School curriculum by the King George County School Board, with Miss Elva Mason and J. Frank Coleman in charge of the new departments.

Coleman served as agriculture instructor at Mica and Unionville high schools. Miss Mason is a graduate of the Harrisonburg State Teachers College and is at present an instructor in the English department of the school.

F. D. Maphis Heads Strasburg Bank

Strasburg, Va., July 12 (Spl.).—Fred D. Maphis, vice president and cashier of the First National Bank of Strasburg, has been elected the bank's president, succeeding the late David F. Yost, of Winchester.

Mr. Maphis has been cashier and executive officer since the bank was founded in 1907. He began his banking career with the old Central National Bank of Washington, which later merged with the National Bank of Washington. He was later affiliated with the National Savings & Trust Co. of Washington. He resigned his position to accept the cashiership of the Peoples National Bank of Strasburg, now the First National Bank.

Mr. Maphis received the doctor of dental surgery degree from George Washington University, Washington.

Nine in North Richmond Get Beer, Wine Licenses

Richmond, July 12 (AP).—Beer and wine licenses were issued by the alcoholic beverage control board today to nine establishments in north Richmond, despite determined opposition from dry forces.

The licenses were granted under a decision that general protests would not be considered from areas within a political subdivision, but that licenses would be issued to proper persons unless the entire county or city voted to remain dry.

Body of Cambridge Man Found in Harbor

Baltimore, July 12 (AP).—The body of Brice Lewis, 26, of Cambridge, Md., was found in Baltimore Harbor today.

According to the Missing Persons Bureau, Lewis was reported missing Tuesday by his father, Jerry Lewis. The father told police that his son has been a patient at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, where he was being treated for a nervous disorder.

Virginia Saves Cash; No Democratic Vote

Richmond, July 12 (Spl.).—State officials today estimated that counties and cities of Virginia will save $20,000 to $25,000 this year because no Democratic primary will be held.

The customary August primary will not take place, as neither Harry F. Boyd, United States Senator, nor the nine Democratic representatives in Congress have opposition.

I. H. Russell to Make Race for W. Va. House

Charles Town, W. Va., July 12 (Spl.).—I. H. Russell, real estate man, has announced his candidacy in the primary for the House of Representatives on the Democratic ticket.

Mr. Russell is identified with several prominent fraternal organizations in this section. His opponent is U. S. Martin, Democrat, of Shepherdstown, running for reelection.

Chincoteague Island Prepares For Historic Pony Round-Up

Chincoteague Island, Va., July 12 (AP).—Saddle trimmings and spurs are being polished and other equipment burnished these hot summer days in anticipation of this coastal island's authentic rodeo—the annual pony penning day set this year for Thursday, July 26.

All through the year hundreds of ponies run wild over the island, cavorting over the sand dunes, resting in the shade of wind-swept pines and cedars and feeding on the lush marsh grass. Then, in July, residents of the island put aside their fishing, farming or other pursuits and join hundreds of visitors, drawn from over a wide area in a gala celebration as the ponies are rounded up. The young colts are branded, a few are sold, and the main herd is turned loose again, to roam freely over the island for another year.

How the wiry equine breed was established here long has been a subject of speculation and varying theories. Generally accepted is the story that the ponies are descended from stock being transported on one or more ships which were wrecked and washed up on the shores of this island.

Meanwhile, regardless of their lineage, the ponies are a source of entertainment as well as profit to Chincoteague residents. In addition to the round-up itself, the program arranged for two weeks from today will include horse and pony races, riding and bucking contests and boat races.

Guy L. Miller Named Va. Druggists Leader

Hot Springs, Va., July 12 (AP).—Guy L. Miller, of Charlottesville, was elected president of the Virginia Pharmacists Association at the final session of the annual meeting here yesterday.

The association will meet next year at Virginia Beach.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. ©1961 C. M. Co.—Advt.

Eastern Shore Leaders Talk With Radcliffe

Future Course of Senate Candidate Remains Deep Secret.

Baltimore, July 12 (Spl.).—As George L. Radcliffe, candidate for the Democratic Senatorial nomination, conferred today with a group of Eastern Shore political leaders, conflicting reports came from the Maryland Club, where the conference was held, regarding Mr. Radcliffe's proposed political affiliation.

One report had it that he would indorse Gov. Ritchie in return for the Governor's support in his campaign for the Senate. Another report was that Mayor Howard W. Jackson, a leading opponent of Gov. Ritchie for the gubernatorial nomination, will pick a State ticket this week and that Mr. Radcliffe will be his Senatorial candidate.

Still another report was that the Eastern Shore leaders, acting in conjunction with a group of southern Maryland and western Maryland party bosses, may decide to indorse a "dark horse" candidate for Governor.

There was some support for the belief Mr. Radcliffe might join Mayor Jackson's ticket due to the fact that just before Gov. Ritchie sailed on his vacation trip to Europe yesterday he mentioned the names of those running on the Ritchie ticket—and Mr. Radcliffe was not among them. Political observers profess to see in this a hint there has been no healing of the rift between Gov. Ritchie and Senator Millard E. Tydings, Mr. Radcliffe's principal sponsor.

Lewis' Senate Entry Held Out of Question

Hagerstown, Md., July 12 (Spl.). Representative David J. Lewis, of the Sixth Maryland District, who is being boomed by friends of Mayor Howard Jackson of Baltimore, as a running mate for the United States Senate nomination on the Jackson ticket, has no intention of becoming embroiled in any primary fight with George Radcliffe, close friends of Mr. Lewis said today.

Mr. Lewis has signified to his friends that while he would appreciate such a promotion he would not get into any primary fight for the nomination. He will have no opposition for the House nomination and even Republican leaders here admit he should have no trouble being reelected.

Lewis' friends also pointed out another reason why he would not team with Jackson and oppose Radcliffe is that Lewis is perhaps closer to the Roosevelt Administration than any other Maryland Representative.

With the withdrawal of Mr. Radcliffe as a candidate for Governor, interest in the county election has increased.

Three additional candidates seeking nominations have filed. John G. Bower, present State and county tax collector, announced that he would seek the Democratic nomination, while Kenneth McLaughlin filed his certificate for State's attorney nomination on the Republican ticket. Martin L. Ingram, county investigator, has already filed for the same office. Morris Williams announced he would seek the Democratic nomination as judge of the Orphans Court.

Callahan to Oppose Veasey for Senate

Pocomoke City, Md., July 12 (Spl.).—L. Griffith Callahan, local business man, has announced his candidacy for the State Senate from Worcester County. The seat is now held by Senator Milton L. Veasey.

Mr. Callahan, a Democrat, is a native of Pocomoke and has spent most of his life in the clothing business. He attended St. John's College, Annapolis, and is a World War veteran, holding the position of commander of Worcester County Post, No. 93. He also is first vice president of the Lion's Club and a thirty-second degree Mason. His platform will include a drive for cleaner politics.

Closed Smithsburg Bank Pays $53,376

Fifteen Per Cent of 780 Deposits Returned.

Hagerstown, Md., July 12 (Spl.). Checks have been mailed 780 depositors of the People's Bank, Smithsburg, by the receiver, A. C. Merriam, jr.

The payment, the first since the bank closed, totaled $53,376.49, and represents 15 per cent of deposits.

The People's Bank merged with the Central Trust Co. shortly before it closed, but the courts divorced the People's Bank from the Central Trust group and returned most of its assets.

Final Rites Held For L. B. Conway

Danville, Va., July 12 (Spl.).—Funeral services were held today at Laurel Cliff Farm, near here, for Lysander B. Conway, 63, secretary-treasurer and general manager of the Danville Knitting Mills, who died yesterday.

Mr. Conway is survived by his widow and four children, Charlotte, Lysander B., jr., French and Anne Conway.

He leaves three brothers, P. F. Conway, of Danville; E. R. Conway, of Henderson, Ky., and Coleman C. Conway, of Washington, and a sister, Mrs. W. W. Holland, of Danville.

Loudoun Democrats To Name Delegates

Leesburg, Va., July 12 (Spl.).—C. Fenton Connor, president of the Loudoun County Young Democratic Club, has called a meeting for July 19 in the courthouse at Leesburg to elect delegates to the third State convention of the Young Democratic Clubs of Virginia in Lynchburg, Va., July 27 and 28.

Notables Bid Bon Voyage to Gov. Ritchie

When Gov. Albert C. Ritchie sailed Wednesday from Baltimore for a vacation trip in Europe, among those at the dock were Herbert R. O'Connor (left), State's attorney for Baltimore and candidate for the party's attorney generalship nomination, and Howard Bruce, Democratic National committeeman and mentioned as aspiring for the United States Senate. Gov. Ritchie (middle) seeks his fifth term in office.

Smith Pledges Tax Reduction At G.O.P. Rally

Says $7,500,000 Can Be Cut From Expenditures of Maryland.

Cambridge, Md., July 12 (Spl.). H. Webster Smith, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor of Maryland, and Joseph I. France, candidate for the United States Senate, addressed a rally of Republicans of Dorchester County tonight in the pavilion of the Oakley Beach Hotel.

Mr. Smith, who conferred with party leaders at a dinner which preceded the meeting, pledged himself to the reduction of taxes if elected. Addressing the large crowd which swarmed about the hotel and adjoining grounds, he took a fling at the Ritchie administration by saying that taxes would have been much lower had it not been necessary for Gov. Ritchie to build up a political machine to perpetuate himself in office. Continuing, he said: "I realize that great benefit has come to the taxpayers by reason of the increase in taxes, but some benefits could have been derived at a considerably lower price."

He quoted figures to show that in 1920 when Ritchie went into office the total expenditures of Maryland were only $12,300,000 and that they had increased year by year, with minor exceptions, until in 1932 they amounted to $40,300,000 or an increase of $28,000,000. Mr. Smith pledged himself if elected, to reduce the normal expenditures of the State by at least $7,500,000.

An improved highway for the Eastern Shore, a new deal for watermen, and taking politics out of the public school system were some of the other reforms he advocated.

Referring to the public school system, he said "I am in favor of keeping politics of all kinds out of the public school system, and I believe nonpolitical school boards, with minority party representations, to be the solution to the problem."

County Attorney Pay Rate Studied

Compensation Board Meets Again on Monday.

Richmond, July 12 (Spl.).—Another meeting of the State compensation board will be held in Richmond Monday for the purpose of hearing the views of the Commonwealth's attorneys of counties of a population over 20,000 on the matter of what pay they should receive, it was announced today.

The board yesterday completed its second hearing of Commonwealth's attorneys in counties of 20,000 or less, yesterday's session being devoted principally to the Commonwealth's attorneys of counties having a population from 10,000 to 20,000.

Following Monday's hearing the board some time during the week will hear Commonwealth's attorneys of the State's 24 cities.

Suicide Averted When Drug Clerk Gets Suspicious

Salisbury, Md., July 12 (Spl.).—J. S. Collins, native of Snow Hill, who has been living here for several weeks, was thwarted in a suicide attempt this morning by local police.

Collins purchased poison at a drug store, saying he wanted it for disinfecting. After getting the drug he asked the clerk for the address of a local minister, adding that he wanted him to perform the last rites of the church.

The clerk notified police, who communicated with the minister, asking him to detain the man until police arrived.

Police and Collins met in front of the minister's residence. Collins was examined by Dr. C. B. Burris and Dr. J. M. Elderice, of this city, and sent to the State Insane Hospital at Cambridge.

Equalized Pay Row Gets Veto

Peery's Ban on Increase in Salaries Caused by Officials.

Richmond, July 12 (Spl.).—Attempts by some department heads to equalize salaries of subexecutives and personnel prompted Gov. Peery's blanket veto of special salary increases, it was learned today.

The Assembly of 1934 recommended that salaries be equalized, but efforts in this direction all called for equalization through increases rather than through decreases and increases, it was learned.

A situation thus developed in which employes of one class in one department, who happened to be paid less than workers of the same class in another, agitated for raises. They precipitated a showdown, with the Governor ruling that he now can equalize only by cutting, rather than raising pay.

Meanwhile, the situation was causing only little excitement among employes. Most of them said that they have known all along that efforts to get raises greater than those provided in the appropriation act was like "hollering in a rain barrel."

Keel Laying of Newest Aircraft Carrier Set

Newport News, July 12 (Spl.).—Monday has been set as the date for the laying of the keel of the U. S. S. Enterprise, sister ship of the U. S. S. Yorktown, aircraft carrier, the keel for which was laid several weeks ago, the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. officials announced today.

The two carriers will require approximately 40 months for completion. Their building will entail the expenditure of approximately $1,000,000 a month during that period, more than half of which amount will go for local labor. Work has already been well advanced on the Yorktown.

Nice Reveals Platform

Republican Candidate in Maryland Outlines 14-Point Program in Race for Nomination for Governor; Heated Contest Predicted.

Snow Hill, Md., July 12 (Spl.).—The platform of Harry W. Nice, Republican candidate for Governor of Maryland, is being outlined here during his tour of this section. A 14-point program includes the following:

Maryland for Maryland.

A thorough investigation and reorganization of the State banking system. Mr. Nice stated that his only connection with a bank was that of a victimized depositor.

Tax reduction through equalization of property assessments and elimination of waste.

Restoration of local self-government for counties.

Fair treatment for veterans, school teachers, policemen and all civil employes.

A searching examination of roads, automobile, conservation, purchasing and insurance departments and their past activities.

The right of women to hold office.

Fix the tax rate and make the budget conform rather than be compelled to burden the people with taxes high enough to comply with the budget.

Relief for the automobile owners, who now pay over 40 per cent of the State revenue, by a reduction of cost of license tags as close to $2 as possible.

Such regulation of the public utilities as will not cripple capital, nor enslave labor, but will be just to both the public and the stockholder.

Rotation in public office.

Assistance to the destitute and work for the unemployed.

Recognition of labor, a protection of the rights of the "little fellow" and drastic laws against lavish use of money to influence elections.

Mr. Nice predicted that the November elections would be the most spirited ever held in Maryland.

Brown Seeking House Seat as New Deal's Foe

Carroll County Attorney Says Dictatorship Has Been Set Up.

Westminster, Md., July 12 (Spl.). Administration policies under the New Deal were attacked today by Theodore F. Brown, State's attorney of Carroll County, in a statement which accompanied his announcement of candidacy for Republican nomination for Representative from the Second District.

Referring to results of the "New Deal," Mr. Brown said: "With the Government itself as the leader and exemplar, it has taught the people to ignore, disregard, repudiate and violate their assumed and solemn obligations, until no man can feel secure in relying upon contracts entered into in good faith, either with the Government or any of its citizens, and with the Constitutional prohibition against the impairment of the obligations of a contract utterly destroyed.

"It has destroyed the initiative and ambition of the citizens by abolishing the reward for special effort, application and talent, and by attempting to standardize the people.

"It has broken down the Constitutional protection to the individual States and their people by which the Federal authority has hitherto been limited to interstate commerce, and has assumed to control every industry and business throughout the land.

"It has destroyed that Constitutional safeguard under which the people held the purse strings of the Nation in their own hands by providing that every bill for raising a revenue should originate in the House of Representatives, and has turned this important legislative function over to the Executive.

"It has put Government in business in competition with its citizens, taxing the citizens to provide for their own competitor.

"It has reduced the production of grains by limiting cultivated acreages and requiring land to lie idle, while many of its citizens are in need of bread.

"It has destroyed democracy in the United States and set up in its stead an absolute dictatorship by causing the legislative branch of the Government to abandon its proper Constitutional functions."

Patent Poaching Charged in Suit

Charlottesville, Va., July 12 (Spl.). A civil suit has been entered here in the United Stataes Court, Western District of Virginia, by Ose F. Carpenter, of Brightwood, Madison County, against R. C. Aylor, of the same village, for alleged infringement of letters patent granted Carpenter for attachments for nailing machines.

Carpenter claims that in November, 1930, he was the first inventor of new improvements in the attachment, used for the purpose of automatically bending over and clinching the end of a nail after it had been driven through two wooden members, and was thus enabled to place on the market a coop of great benefit to the poultry trade.

The plaintiff says that he has expended a large sum of money in equipping his nailing machines with the clinching attachment and in educating the public as to the advantages to be derived from their use, and avers that Aylor is engaged in the manufacture and sale of poultry coops, and that although he has been warned to cease the use of the attachment, has failed to do so.

Hagerstown Plans Hacker Regulation

Hagerstown, Md., July 12 (Spl.). City officials have under consideration rigid examinations for prospective taxicab drivers here, the result of numerous complaints from property owners and business men, in front of whose places taxi stands are located.

If this does not improve conditions, described at a hearing held before the board of street commissioners as bad, taxi owners may be forced to obtain private garages as headquarters, it was stated.

A conference with taxi owners and drivers will soon be called.

One business man told the commissioners that the profane language used by drivers while parked in front of his establishment had injured his business.

First Maryland NRA Violator Gets $10 Fine

U. S. Court Gives Minimum Sentence as Dealer Agrees to Code.

Baltimore, July 12 (Spl.).—Maryland's first conviction for violation of an NRA code came today when Judge W. Calvin Chesnut, in United States court, fined Louis S. Martin, of Maugansville, Md., $10 and costs on charges of failing to observe the lumbermen's agreement.

Martin, an official of the Maugansville Elevator & Lumber Co., pleaded guilty. He said he had not signed the code agreement or joined the lumbermen's organization because his church does not permit communicants to affiliate with lay organizations.

He promised to make his price scales conform with those cited in the lumber code.

Officials of the Kauffman Lumber Co., of Hagerstown, were scheduled to appear today on a code violation charge, but an attorney filed a demurrer to the charge. The hearing on the demurrer will be held soon.

Declaring that "business depressions come and go, but individual rights guaranteed under the Constitution must be enforced while they remain the law," Judge Chesnut later in the day dismissed a suit brought by the Government against Herman L. Mills, gasoline dealer of Hagerstown and Frederick.

Mills was accused of violating the NRA code by giving premius to those who purchased gasoline from various filling stations he conducted. Warned by officials of the petroleum industry code that giving premiums violated the code, Mills refused to cease the practice. The code authorities then applied for an injunction.

In refusing the injunction, Judge Chesnut termed the NRA "probably the most comprehensive and constructive effort" toward improving business conditions ever proposed by a democratic form of government. But, he said, the Constitutional rights of individuals must be protected. In the present case, he pointed out, Mills was not engaged in interstate sale of gasoline, and hence does not come under powers of the code authority.

Firm Closes Plant For Secret Reasons

NRA Not Blamed Directly for Grief's Action.

Baltimore, July 12 (U.P.).—Closing of the Fredericksburg, Va., plant of L. Grief & Brother, Inc., men's clothing manufacturers, was owing to causes not directly connected with an NRA order concerning a wage dispute, Leonard Weinberg, Grief attorney, said today.

Reasons for closing the plant, which employed 500, will not be made public now, Weinberg explained, but he gave assurance that none of the other ten plants operated by the company in Pennsylvania, Virginia and Maryland would be closed.

The wage dispute was taken before the NRA compliance board. The company asked special wage exemption under the code, but the board ruled the concern must obtain this exemption or choose between paying $100,000 in back wages or losing its Blue Eagle.

Wiliam J. Kepler To Head Md. Bank

Middletown, Md., July 12 (Spl.).—William J. Kepler, farmer, of near Middletown, will head the Valley State Bank, which will be opened in Middletown this month, it was announced today.

C. Upton Grossnickle, of near Myersville, has been named vice president; Albert C. Miller, John W. Holter, Samuel E. McBride, Clarence D. Koogle, Middletown; J. Floyd Lovell and Milton V. Summers, of near Myersville, board of directors. W. Clinton McSherry, Frederick, was named attorney.

The institution will have a capital stock of $50,000 and a surplus of $10,000.

Highway Publicity Official Is Named

Hagerstown, Md., July 12 (Spl.). In launching its campaign to create more interest in traveling the National highway, Luther A. Davis, Richmond, Va., general manager of the recently organized Route 40 Publicity Association, Inc., announced the appointment of Harry Gross, Middletown, Md., as field representative here.

Mr. Davis announced that the 1,000-mile route would be divided into ten districts of 100 miles each, with a representative in the ten larger cities along its route. A coordinated publicity campaign will be conducted to induce tourists to use the route between the East and the West, stressing historical and other points of interest along it.

The association will operate under the nonprofit corporation laws.

Marginal Population To Be Session's Topic

Blacksburg, Va., July 12 (A.P.).—A special conference on the marginal population of Virginia will be held July 23 and 24 in connection with the annual rural ministers' school, which will be in session at Virginia Polytechnic Institute from July 17 to 27, it was announced today by Dr. William E. Garnett, rural sociologist.

Some of the results of research work conducted by the Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station will be given by Dr. Garnett. This will be followed by a discussion of the problems of mountain people led by Dr. Roy Mason, associate archdeacon of the Blue Ridge Diocese of Virginia, and Dr. George P. Mayo, head of the Blue Ridge Industrial School.

500 Expected At Missionary Meet in Md.

Eldership of Church of God Represents 31 Churches.

Braddock Heights, Md., July 12 (Spl.).—Approximately 500 persons are expected at the annual Missionary Conference of the Maryland and Virginia Eldership of the Church of God here Wednesday.

The eldership is composed of 31 congregations in Frederick, Carroll, Howard and Washington counties, Md., and nearby sections of West Virginia and Virginia.

Mrs. Gussie Blizzard, of Westminster, will have charge of the morning session. Speakers will include the Rev. Joel Cock, of Fairplay; C. O. Sullivan, of Carrollton; the Rev. William T. Jackson and Miss Anna Kendall, of Hagerstown.

The afternoon program will be in charge of Miss Ruth Willett, of Germantown. The Brunswick Church of God Ukelele Band, composed of children, will give a concert, directed by Mrs. William A. Herpich. The Rev. William A. Herpich, pastor of the Brunswick and Locust Valley Churches, will conduct the devotional period.

From 2 to 3 p. m. speakers will discuss "Doorway Into a New World." Miss Fidelia Gilbert, of Uniontown, a medical missionary student, also will speak.

A feature will be a sunset service, in charge of Miss Mabel Albert, of Uniontown. The speaker will be the Rev. Roy Schreiner, secretary of the Board of Christian Education, Philadelphia, whose subject will be, "God, the Master Builder."

The closing session will begin at 7:30 p. m., with Miss Ethel Werking, of Woodsboro, presiding. The Rev. J. H. Hoch of Uniontown, will speak, on "Future Building."

Bonding Firms Upset by Ruling

Lack of Auditing Check on Officials Is Seen as Increasing Risk.

Richmond, July 12 (Spl.).—Companies bonding Virginia officials were reported today to be greatly disturbed over the situation created by the opinion of Edwin H. Gibson, assistant attorney general, holding that prior to the date of their annual settlements local officers, except treasurers, can not be required by the State auditor of public accounts to show whether or not they have on hand sufficient funds to offset balances against them and in favor of the Commonwealth or their respective counties.

Bonding representatives said that in view of the situation they would be forced to go off the bonds of such officers as were not disposed to make a proper showing, as the lack of a complete auditing check would make the carrying of such bonds a greater risk than had been expected.

Even this, however, they said, would not meet the situation, which in their opinion can only be really reached by a change in the law.

Under a plan which L. McCarthy Downs, State auditor of public accounts, purposes to pursue, it is not likely that many local officers will avail themselves of the privilege of refusing the show whether or not they have funds to offset balances due by them to State or county.

5 Tries—5 Failures

Bert Harris Again Attempts Escape From Charles Town Jail; Breaks Spigots in Cell to Cause Flood.

Charles Town, W. Va., July 12 (Spl.).—Bert Harris, the "Texas Tornado," made his fifth attempt to escape from the Jefferson County Jail in Charles Town today by breaking two spigots from the wall in his cell to flood the second floor of the building.

The prisoner expected to gain his freedom in the confusion he hoped would follow.

The trouble was discovered when plaster started dropping from the ceiling of the cells on the first floor. The water then broke through and ran into the street.

In his previous attempts, Harris broke several locks and advanced to the first floor of the jail, where he was discovered. He tried to jump from a second-story window while on his way for a hearing. He set the jail on fire, and tried escaping through a sanitary sewer.

The man has cost the county hundreds of dollars repairing the jail since he was brought there several weeks ago. Harris, who gives his address as Texas, is being held on a charge of attempting to steal an automobile, and must remain in jail until the September term of the Jefferson County Circuit Court.

Wicomico River Port Being Cleared of Logs

Salisbury, Md., July 12 (Spl.). Clearing logs and debris from Wicomico River Harbor was begun yesterday under direction of C. C. Neher, assistant engineer of the War Department.

Wharf pilings and parts of houses washed into the channel by the storm of last August have proved a menace to navigation.

Rural Institute Opens Annual Meeting July 31

Rep. Woodrum of Roanoke to Speak on "Progress Under New Deal."

Blacksburg, Va., July 12 (Spl.).—Representative Clifton A. Woodrum, Roanoke, will speak at an evening session of the sixth annual Institute of Rural Affairs to be held at Virginia Polytechnic Institute July 31 to August 2, John R. Hutcheson, director, announced here today. Mr. Woodrum will speak at 8 p. m. Wednesday, August 1, on the topic "Progress Under the New Deal."

The theme of this year's Institute of Rural Affairs is "The Farmer and the New Deal" because, as Mr. Hutcheson explains, "it is essential for the success of the New Deal that farm leaders understand the basis of the program and how they may cooperate in making it effective." Persons who have played an important part in the development of the program will act as discussion leaders.

As in the past, the Institute of Rural Affairs will be divided into two sections which will meet at the same time. Dr. F. W. Peck of the farm credit administration, will discuss "The New Farm Credit System," and Dr. M. L. Wilson, recently named assistant secretary of agriculture, will discuss "Subsistence Farm Homesteads" at a meeting of the economics section Wednesday morning.

The same section Thursday morning will hear Dr. H. R. Tolley of the AAA speak on "The Long Time Program of Agricultural Adjustment," and Col. Lawrence Westbrook, Federal relief administration, speak on "Rehabilitating Stranded Farmers."

Diet Talk Announced.

Dr. Frederick C. Howe of the AAA will speak on "Cooperation With Consumers," and Dr. Hazel Stiebeling, Bureau of Home Economics, Washington, will speak on "Making the Diet Fit the Need and the Purse" Wednesday morning.

Miss Florence Hall, United States Department of Agriculture, will speak on "Standards for Family Living," and Prof. L. B. Dietrick, V. P. I., will speak on "Subsistence Gardens in Virginia as a Part of Living at Home" Thursday morning.

Dr. Julian A. Burruss, president of V. P. I., will present certificates of merit in agriculture at the first meeting of the Institute of Rural Affairs to be held at 8 p. m. Tuesday, July 31. Dr. C. M. Newman, head of the V. P. I. English department, will speak on "Bits of American Humor." Col. B. Morgan Sheppard, secretary of the State Farmers Institute, will preside.

A special program of music and entertainment has been arranged for the concluding session Thursday evening, August 2.

Homemakers to Meet.

The Virginia Homemakers Association will hold a business meeting Tuesday with Mrs. C. Nelson Beck, Charlottesville, president, presiding. Mrs. Ella G. Agnew, Agricultural Relief Administration, Richmond, will speak Thursday afternoon on "Woman's Part in the Rehabilitation Program."

Technical problems in connection with agronomy, vegetable gardening, animal husbandry, poultry, dairying and horticulture will be considered in sessions to be held Wednesday and Thursday afternoons.

The Agricultural Conference Board will hold a business meeting Tuesday.

Warrants Issued For 5 Union Heads

Intimidation Is Charged in Weirton Dispute.

Clarksburg, W. Va., July 12 (U.P.). Five officers of the local lodge, Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, were charged with intimidating witnesses in the Government's suit against the Weirton Steel Co. in warrants issued here today.

The warrants, issued by Justice of the Peace Fred E. Shetter on information made by E. E. Paddock, superintendent of the Clarksburg plant of the steel company, charged the Amalgamated officers distributed a circular headed "unfair to union labor," and listing those who made affidavits for the company in the Government's suit.

Those named in the warrants were William C. Milstead, president of the lodge; W. A. Peet, vice president; Emil Walter, treasurer; Andrew Barron, financial secretary, and R. E. Guice, corresponding secretary.

Radio Waves and Ripples

PETER is a tenor. He has range. He has quality. And he has fine blue Irish eyes.

Professionally, in a manner of speaking, Peter is a porter. That means that for the present he is carrying trunks and things for the money that will keep life in his body and music in his heart.

The music that is in Peter's heart is Irish music, and it holds just about all the Irish melody you ever heard.

Four years ago when Peter left Ireland he had taken a few lessons from one of the multitude—there must be a multitude—of teachers who taught John McCormack. Peter wants more lessons, for he knows that fame and fortune await him. He has range. He has quality. And he has fine blue Irish eyes.

Peter Slevin is the full name. You heard him in the Saturday amateur night show N. B. C. calls "Washington Airbreaks," the last one. You heard him sing "Danny Boy" and "Song of Songs."

And you'll hear him again on WRC this afternoon at 4:30 with his accordion-violin accompanists, 17-year-old Dick Bailey and Irving Ginberg, who is only a few years older. And you'll hear him again Monday afternoon at 1:45.

Peter and Dick and Irving are the first of the "Washington Airbreaks" tryouts to get the call, the break, from N. B. C. bosses.

Your radio this afternoon will bring you a half-hour of Chancellor Hitler's speech to the Reichstag, the speech that is to explain to Germany and the world the June 30 "purging" of the Nazi ranks.

It will come in German, via short wave and N. B. C.'s WRC from 3 to 3:30 p. m., just as Hitler delivers it. At the finish Dan Russell, who used to be an announcer around WRC, will summarize the Chancellor's speech in English.

IT'S the tag end of the day, a wild, mad, unearthly day in a business where turmoil is virtually routine, where tumult normally rules and where the unexpected always happens. It's the battered finish of WJSV's yesterday, the day of the first roundup of hope-filled young women who want to sing and act with Dick Powell on the radio.

The lady with the look of complete vacuity is Marie McGrain, guardian of the WJSV switchboard. She's not herself, probably a little mad. But the condition may pass. She may get used to answering four or five hundred calls a day from people who want to sing songs about dreams.

The story of the first day of the audition contests that are to find a new star for radio begins with Miss McGrain. But it won't end there. It will end, as far as Washington is concerned, in a small, but air-cooled room where the contest judges listen to people sing songs about dreams in a manner that suggests them.

Strange that there should be so many people who want to sing about dreams. Strange that there should be so many who want to sing. There's only a 13-week contract at $250 per for the young lady who clicks. And yesterday J. J. Fayette, Warner Bros. zone manager, offered a week's engagement at the Earle for the winner of the local contest and another week for the girl who wins the regional trials.

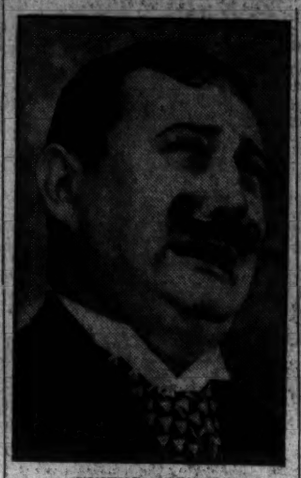
WHAM note:

"Operator George Driscoll of the WHAM (Rochester) transmitter staff has a firm fist wrapped around one of those scientific wonders which professors describe when they talk about the world 100 years from now.

"While bewhiskered savants talk . . . Driscoll sits and reads by the light of an electric bulb which burns without the sanction of the public utilities," the item says.

"Some weeks ago the young technician established a summer camp . . . and erected a 300-foot antenna for his radio receiver. The oversize aerial picked up so much power from the nearby 50,000-watt transmitter that Driscoll decided to put it to some use. He fastened the aerial wire to one contact of an electric bulb, the other to an ordinary 'ground' connection.

"The result is satisfactory illumination without the annoyance of a monthly trip to pay the electric bill. Driscoll's only lament is that the light goes out when WHAM signs off."



"TINTYPE TENOR," being a photographer's version of what Jack Parker really should look like when exhuming songs popular at the turn of the century for N. B. C. aircasting Tuesday evenings.

Ripples.

"I have decided," a radio fan magazine quotes Joe Penner, "to insure the country against another epidemic of my catch-lines. Next season, I promise you, there won't be any 'nasty man' nor any duck . . . fine . . . "Lopez speaking" . . . you'll find Vincent at the Fox today . . . it's the bandman's first vaudeville tour in nearly two years . . . the Columbia lady-to-play-with-Dick Powell hunt appears to be catching . . . Reggis Childs, C. B. S. orchestra leader, is staging a lady hunt of his own . . . all he wants is a blonde, pretty and the possessor of an "exceptional blues voice" . . . Reggie gets his mail care Columbia Broadcasting System, New York . . . Tenor Robert Simmons (Harry Horlick's Gypsies, the Revellers &c.) may be making a Metropolitan Opera debut next season . . . Frank Black, N. B. C. music director, is a crack rifle shot . . . a voice teacher in David City, Neb., once advised Ruth Etting's aunt to stop throwing good money after bad paying for singing lessons for Ruth, who couldn't even hit high C . . . the father and mother of Claude Hopkins, Harlem bandman, are members of the Howard University faculty and Hopkins is a Howard graduate . . . Vincent Callahan, one of the Washington N. B. C. bosses, has a couple of cuts on his head to show for a Virginia beach week-end . . . the Callahan car hit something . . . the Callahan head hit the windshield.

Reviving Courage.

It really seems probable, if present trends continue, that throughout the country considerable groups will find the courage to assert that we have inherited institutions which might well be understood before they are destroyed. Nor is it unlikely that some bold spirits will shortly begin to question whether Mr. Farley has been successful in concentrating all of the National intelligence in the Government service.

And it is even within the realm of possibility that some will carry their thinking to a point beyond the sedulous effort to raise an artificial issue between an "Old Deal" and a "New Deal." Then there may be realization that real progress in politics, as in science, depends on a continuity of development, based on sure and tested foundations.

This optimism is encouraged by the temperate plea for threatened traditions voiced by John W. Davis at the University of Virginia's Institute of Public Affairs. It takes some courage for a prominent Democrat, even if he has outgrown political ambitions, to draw public attention to the way in which his own party has jettisoned most of its historic principles for objectives which seem far from clear even to the party's present leadership.

It takes courage; but if that courage is not forthcoming, then is the country indeed in a bad way; too bad, one fears, for any alluring and intangible phraseology to be of much avail. Fortunately the signs accumulate that the growth of a critical, constructive and non-partisan opposition can no longer be crushed by that unbridled use of epithets which too often marks vacuity of thought.

North By East.

North by East! To some, romance means the tropics and a desert isle. But, to any one who has even remotely approached Greenland in his travels, there is a fascination about the land above the Arctic Circle which far transcends the bunk about the fronded palms. They talk of the Newfoundland coast as grim. There are places there along the White Bay, or even on the icy stretches of tragic Horse Island, that linger long in the memory of those who have gazed across their icy wastes. Rockwell Kent knows this. Once again he is sailing North by East to live among his friends, the Eskimos, at Ubenkendt.

It is wild country there. There are winds and ice and snow, and silent people. Sometimes it is very dark and sometimes, when a storm is in the making, the weirdness of the northland strikes and moves the heart. White people do not go there much. Probably because there is no gold beneath the frozen land, no trade to lure them—nothing but Eskimos, and cold, and long nights. Why does Rockwell Kent want to go back into this country, taking with him his 13-year-old son?

The true answer, of course, lies locked within himself. One may conjecture, however. He says he goes to paint and write and do some meteorological research. He thinks his son will develop character there. These are the surface reasons. Rockwell Kent has learned the value of solitude and there are countless others who wish they had the courage—and the means—to foreswear the world for two years among the Eskimos. To be where physical courage counts for something. To return to simplicity, quiet and a partially primitive life.

The shirker dreams of the coconuts falling from palm trees. The artist, like Rockwell Kent, whose happiness comes from achievement, would go North by East, 600 miles above the Arctic Circle, where one must work to eat, and yet where one may live a life removed from the world. What if some, sneeringly, call this escapism? Perhaps escapism is the true philosophy of the true individualist. In a collectivized society it may be either cowardice or courage that lies behind the call of the wild.

Whichever it is, there are many who will think that the two men farthest apart, geographically and mentally, in this world—Rockwell Kent, North by East, and Richard Byrd, due South—in their chill solitudes have found something that may be the ultimate of happiness.

The C. C. C.

The local enlistment of 175 bonus army marchers, many of them veterans of the "death march" of 1932, in the Civilian Conservation Corps, calls attention again to the admirable work of this department of the New Deal. The corps has managed to provide healthy, constructive employment in all parts of the country. Those who have worked in the camps have benefited materially and the families of many have been kept going without recourse to local relief agencies.

Under the very capable direction of Robert Fechner the important work entrusted to the C. C. C. has been done efficiently and without any noticeable intrusion of politics. It has perceptibly diminished the vagrancy problem and it has furnished its beneficiaries with a morale which the ordinary dole system tends to dissipate. The number of men enlisted is not large in proportion to the estimated number of unemployed and there are rigid restrictions upon the type of men employable. But as an emergency relief measure the Civilian Conservation Corps has more than justified itself.

"America Must Choose."

Secretary Wallace has always regarded the AAA program of crop reduction as a temporary palliative, to be followed by revival of world markets and retirement of large areas of land from cultivation. His address at Madison Wednesday night was particularly interesting because he reviewed some of the formidable problems that are being encountered in trying to make this transition.

In the opinion of the Secretary of Agriculture "the farmers of the United States will have to hold fast to the present adjustment machinery until the foreign market is reopened." It will take a long time to bring about a revival of overseas trade in agricultural products through reciprocal tariff negotiations, if indeed, our foreign markets can ever be revived by that method. "But unless and until that does happen," Mr. Wallace says, "it would be disastrous to revert to the old happy-go-lucky way of plowing up the fence corners and shipping the product off to Europe, for whatever it would bring."

The most important question in the whole agricultural situation seems to be, therefore, whether the AAA program is actually preparing the way for restoration of our export trade in farm products. Since the curtailment plan is, so to speak, only a stop-gap arrangement, the test of its practicability must lie in its influence upon permanent improvements. From this angle the facts cited by the Secretary of Agriculture are far from encouraging.

Mr. Wallace speaks about the possibility of restoring a substantial part of our lost export trade "by making it possible for foreign countries to buy more and to pay better prices." But the price-raising plans of the AAA are confined to the United States. Other countries continue to follow the old-fashioned custom of increasing rather than reducing output. Presumably their plans will not be affected by the curtailment program here, unless it is to expand production. The American farmer can not expect to compete successfully on the world market if his output is limited by law and governmental regulations designed to raise prices.

"As regards some (commodities)," Secretary Wallace admits, "our competitive position seems to have been permanently weakened." He notes "some signs of expansion of cotton growing in areas outside the United States," even though this country retains a "great comparative advantage in the growing of this crop." With regard to tobacco he says: "It is true that government intervention has resulted in a marked increase of production in a number of countries to which we were formerly large exporters, as for example Italy." Prospects for increasing wheat exports are not promising. Mr. Wallace's explanation here is: "The increasing comparative advantage of the newer countries" and the likelihood that wheat-importing countries that have almost attained self-sufficiency will be anxious to maintain it.

It appears, therefore, that in these major fields the AAA program has made it more difficult for American farmers to sell their crops on the world market. With the drought supplementing artificial curtailment, our agricultural output in 1934 is expected to be the lowest in 25 years. Other countries will have an opportunity to supply world markets that ordinarily absorb food supplies from the United States. Insofar as this policy tends to increase export as well as domestic prices, it plays into the hands of foreign competitors, even though higher prices here are offset to some extent by devaluation of the dollar.

If the directors of the AAA are really looking forward to an expansion of foreign sales as a solution for the agricultural dilemma, it is time for them to face squarely the handicaps which the crop-curtailment policy imposes upon exporters.

Swivel Chair Detection.

Over two years ago a man in Stockton, Calif., stalked into a schoolroom, his mind poisoned by an alleged grievance, and shot and killed the teacher. The usual police "dragnet" was spread for his capture, but through its somewhat wide mesh the man escaped, seemingly forever. He has just been arrested in Greece, and thereby hangs a tale.

Although Mount Holly, N. J., is quite a distance from Stockton, Calif., the chief of detectives there was asked to join the manhunt. Sitting at his desk he began a systematic and voluminous correspondence. Merely by writing letters he gradually obtained the clews essential to the beginning of any search. He got the man's background and much of his personal history. From that beginning he kept up his postage-stamp manhunt and eventually word was received that the criminal had been found at the end of a long trail of fountain pen ink, across the world from the scene of his crime.

The story is fascinating, partly because it is true and partly because of the aura of romance that has been woven about Ellis Parker, who heads the tough Burlington County police in New Jersey. Dragged from him unwillingly, the story reveals that, even in this day of science, persistence is the greatest asset to a detective.

One is reminded that Sherlock Holmes had a little-known brother, by the name of Mycroft. And sometimes when even Sherlock was baffled, in spite of test tubes, magnifying glass, tobacco ash and Dr. Watson, ponderous Mycroft would solve the problem. He did so without stirring from the comfortable recesses of the Diogenes Club. He merely sat and thought a good deal, like Ellis Parker, of Mount Holly.

"Loss Leaders."

The application of the retail tobacco trade, for permission to fix minimum prices for certain standard brands of cigarettes, comes at a time when the Administration is abrogating various protective price-fixing proposals under existing codes. Unwillingness to approach this question of price-fixing in frank and honest fashion has been responsible for a great deal of confusion of thought and for a weak yielding to critics who seem unable to distinguish between reasonable methods of price-fixing as opposed to monopolistic charges.

The case of the retail tobacco trade affords a striking illustration of the kind of competitive practice that has led so many students of business to advocate restrictions upon prices as a means of maintaining competition instead of destroying it. Complaints of unfair price cutting are based on the fact that certain chain stores often sell cigarettes at a loss, using them to attract custom for other lines of merchandise. The result is to eliminate many retailers who depend chiefly upon cigarette and tobacco sales.

This "loss leader" practice enables large enterprises to destroy the trade, not only of tobacco retailers but also of other stores dealing in a limited number of lines, without regard to relative efficiency. When competition ceases to be regulated by considerations of cost, it becomes an endurance contest, in which the "little fellow" is fatally handicapped by lack of resources.

Agreements that curb such uneconomic practices are in the interest of consumers as well as producers and sellers. In the long run, the public does not benefit by obtaining certain articles at sacrifice prices, which must be paid for by higher profits obtained from sales of other commodities. Neither is it socially desirable to tolerate price-cutting practices that result in bankruptcy, loss of capital investment and concentration of business in the hands of a few large distributors.

Price-fixing is bad when it leads to exorbitant prices and excessive profits, or when it encourages the survival of inefficient concerns. When designed to prevent uneconomic and unfair price-cutting, however, it may be the only alternative to the kind of competitive anarchy that the NRA was intended to prevent.

Reverberations In Austria.

Austria's nervous peace, uneasily maintained since the February revolt, has once more given way to acute tension. Events in Germany have sharpened the hostility between Chancellor Dollfuss, struggling to preserve his dictatorship, and the Austrian Nazis, who see in the present situation a last chance to turn their losing game into victory.

Hitler's bloody "purge" has undoubtedly strengthened the position of Dollfuss, and the little dictator is moving rapidly to take advantage of this revulsion. By reorganizing his cabinet, withdrawing Dr. Tauschitz from his post as Minister to Berlin and launching an anti-terrorist campaign, he no doubt hopes to crush the Nazi forces while they are in complete disrepute.

But the manifestations of Nazi brutality during the last two weeks do not necessarily increase Austrian good will for Chancellor Dollfuss. In fact, the editorial in his newspaper, Abendzeitung, in which he denounced the "anarchy" prevailing in the Reich, is an extremely ironical piece of special pleading. A government which recently indulged in a ruthless war of extermination on its Socialists can not reproach another state as a "center of contagion" without reviving the pot and kettle simile.

The significant factor is not, therefore, increased strength for the Austrian dictator, but a weakening of the Nazi forces. Capt. Roehm, who was a vigorous supporter of the Austrian Brown Shirts in Germany, has been executed as a traitor. Having his attention well occupied at home, Hitler is said to have promised Mussolini, in their recent conference, that he would forego his campaign to annex Austria to the Third Reich. What is still more important, the Liberals in Austria are not now likely to cooperate with the Germans against Chancellor Dollfuss, even though their bitterness remains unassuaged.

For the moment a renewed outbreak of bombings seems to be the most disturbing element. This is the means by which the Nazis seek to undermine the government. If the terrorists succeed in cutting off the tourist trade, as they apparently tried to do at Salzburg yesterday, Austria will be confronted by fresh difficulties. Without that important source of revenue, acute economic troubles would be added to the little country's political turmoil.

The mayor of Hoopeston, Ill., is paid 50 cents a year. He's probably the least overpaid mayor in the country.

An optimist is a man who thinks he can spend a quiet vacation at home.

Nice—Sailors.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As an inoffensive, unobtrusive, unimportant citizen of these United States, I want to discuss that scrap between our sailor boys and citizens of Nice, France.

This affair constitutes a National disgrace. Our sailors are a unit in the fighting forces of the United States; they were in their official uniforms on the soil of a country not their own, and they were there as guests. There may or may not have been provocation severe enough to have given cause for their untimely remarks and actions. Be that as it may, there were other means at hand to correct all misunderstandings or injustices that may have occurred.

The action of United States sailors in Nice, France, may add fuel to the flames of international hatred. Such hatreds affect all peoples adversely, no matter what nations are concerned.

Could not these young men be taught to control their emotions, and submit provocative misunderstandings for honorable adjustment to the cooler judgments of the officers in charge? Isn't there such a thing as the officers teaching their men gentlemanly conduct and instilling in them the thought that it is just as patriotic to show foreign peoples that our Navy boys are gentlemen as it is for them to stand at attention to our flag? We want to be proud of our Navy. That is why we offer criticism.

MARY ANNE WALFORD.

Amateur Experiments.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Pay roll beneficiaries and others who expect to profit by the New Deal may wax warm in its defense, but those citizens who value the blessings of a free government will be slow in approving any experiment that has the slightest tendency to interfere with the right of every citizen to enjoy the freedom guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States.

Of course, strenuous efforts will be made in the coming fall campaign to encourage voters to believe that there is no intention of interfering with individual rights, but once a departure is made from Constitutional government, there is no telling upon what unknown sea we as a people may drift.

Every American citizen who loves his country and its free institutions will prefer to maintain the Government established by Washington and his compatriots and preserved by the immortal Lincoln, to any makeshift devised by individuals who, however sincere, must be considered as mere amateur statesmen, when comparison is made with the founders of the Republic.

The Comic Relief.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: At the conclusion of The Post's series of illustrated travel lectures in Masonic Hall last winter a request was made that the auditors send in expressions of their reactions so that a general idea might be formed as to the advisability of repeating that sort of entertainment the following winter.

Generally the lectures were so entertaining that they would deserve a larger auditorium, with better visibility and acoustics. Each speaker should be permitted an advance test of his audibility and his familiarity with the microphone. Canada might well be presented anew, with infinitely better characteristic scenic views.

The inclusion of a woman's fashion show midway of most of the lectures seemed like diluting the discourse with something obviously quite commercial and entirely extraneous. But if Washington audiences demand such recesses to relieve them of sustained listening, why not vary the diversion by putting on bathing beauties, a song-and-dance team, a few rounds of boxing, a wrestling grunting, a juggling act, or a cake-walk? That might keep them amused—if they knew they were viewing local amateur talent. ARCHIE RICE.

Press-Agenting Isn't Explanation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I feel that there is a rather obvious fallacy in your recent editorial regarding the speech with which Mr. Fletcher fired the opening gun in the Republican campaign. You condone him for realizing the need of explaining the measures passed by Congress, of analyzing the underlying implications of the Administration for a public which you declare is in a state of confusion and ignorance.

There has never been a time in the history of the country when the layman has completely understood every piece of legislation passed by Congress, and today is no exception. But has there ever been an Administration that has made a greater attempt to explain its policies to the public? Isn't the charge that "neither Congress nor the Administration has been inclined to tell them (the public) what is involved in the extraordinary measures taken" rather unfair? Has there even been such a wealth of published material—interviews with, and signed articles by New Dealers, not to mention the United States Information Service, established for the sole purpose of acquainting the people with the policies of the Administration—at any other time? Has any previous President gone as often and as directly to the people and explained in simple language what he is trying to do?

You are right when you state that the American people are not "scared by bogey's * * * trotted out prior to elections by a party chairman." If, as The Post suggests, the opportunity of the Republicans lies in explaining recent legislation, isn't that rather a feeble hope?

Catching Flies With Molasses.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What a travesty sending a "polite" note to a reckless driver. Has it ever occurred to the Metropolitan police that the word politeness is not to be found in the vocabulary of the death-dealing motorists who monopolize our streets.

Since when has it been found necessary to handle with gloves this ruthless type of law violator? And why all the red tape when it is only necessary to enforce the laws already on our statute books persistently ignored by drivers and Traffic Bureau alike? Remove the driver's license for a season and note results. MOTORIST.

The Purge—Entering Germany, an Austrian, small of stature, but with a fixed purpose and a determination to gain power, climbed to the very pinnacle upon a stairway built upon the loyalty and friendship of his followers. Finding in this structure a step or two of crumbling stone, he diabolically destroys the entire stairway. Obsessed with power and imagining this about to be taken from him, he becomes a maniac, and with devilish perversion of the authority given him by the people, commits heinous murders in the name of liberty.

Thus he sits alone—and this autocratic assumption of power may prove to be the "idol with the feet of clay" which will fall upon him and crush his very existence.

Slapping Emily's Wrist.

Devoted as we are to Emily Post, it becomes necessary once in a while to reprimand her severely. Such an occasion has now arisen. One of her correspondents, in travail of mind, asks Mrs. Post if a woman could "really use the word 'swell' and not be stamped as belonging to the very ordinary." Instead of a simple, kindly answer, Mrs. Post proceeds to go Piping Rock. It is all very well, high-hats Mrs. Post, to use swell as a noun, viz: "His family were great swells." And she would permit an architect, in describing "something quite superperfect" (and, by the way, Mrs. Post, how do you justify "super-perfect?"), to say: "It is very swell." That is a very special use of the word. But she would not have her correspondent say to her hostess, "My dear, I have had a swell time." That, avers Mrs. Post, is slang.

Well, it may be slang, but last week, according to our statistician, 40,589 guests said to their hostesses: "Thanks for the perfectly swell time." For Mrs. Post's information, 20 years ago "swell" was a horrid word, admitted to none of the best circles, but it has, in the last two or three years made a marvelous comeback. It was first used timidly, the inflection suggesting quotation marks. Now, it is boldly trotted out and, with the various intonations denoting degrees of emotion, it has become one of the most useful words in the language. We do wish that Emily, swell girl that she is, would keep abreast of the current.

The Post Impressionist

"Pale Hecate's Offering."

Postoffice, Friday.

EVER since we had that little controversy with our New England correspondents — about those witches whom the Puritan-Pilgrims didn't burn, but only hanged, you remember—we have been refreshing our memory of witchcraft. And, the more we refresh our memory, the more we are inclined to agree with our critic who considered the Pilgrim-Puritans "most merciful."

There is a perfectly sound definition of a witch in English law. "A witch," says Lord Coke, "is a person who hath conference with the devil, to consult with him to do some act." This seems to bar white sorcery, because white sorcery deals, at worst, in indifferent "acts," whereas everybody knows that the enemy of mankind concerns himself solely with positively injurious matters and that, as "The Ingoldsby Legends" remark:

"Who sups with the devil must have a long spoon."

Anyhow, witchcraft is a religion, or the remains of one, always in opposition to established religions, always a species of satanism, as old as its deity, as enduring, as changeless.

As old:

There were witches in Egypt before Joseph's day and, probably, in Palestine before Saul sought her of Endor. Ancient Rome knew the breed: Horace tells of two of them, and, when his Neapolitan sweetheart jilted him, he accused her—see Epode V—of witchcraft; she tortures a lad to death "in order that his marrow and liver, cut out and dried, might make a love-philtre." From medieval Rome, Pope Innocent VIII issued against witches his famous bull, Summis Desiderantes, although the European epidemic of demonopathy which inspired that document continued into the seventeenth century.

Enduring, you see:

We've heard quite enough of the New England broomstick ladies lately, but in the other England, at Northampton, two women were executed on charges of witchcraft as late as 1705. And any of us that will listen can hear today of the crones with their "familiars"—a cat or dog in the British Isles, a goat in Germany—of "La Vecchia Religione" in Italy, of the frequent victims of the Black Mass at Lyons.

As changeless:

There are extant the trial records of an 1100 B. C. case wherein certain women belonging to the harem of Rameses III—now best recalled for his cigarettes—conspired to kill him by burning his waxen image. Grafton's "Chronicle of London" relates what Shakespeare omits; it tells how Eleanor, Duchess of Gloucester, paid the witch Margery Jordane and the necromancer Roger Bolingbroke to make an image of Henry VI and then melt it, "intending thereby, in conclusion, to waste and destroy the King's person.

"My lady of Gloucester," adds Grafton, "confessed . . . she was enjoyned by all the spiritual assent to penance. . . . She took in her hand a taper of wax weighing two pounds and went through Fleet street, barefoot and hoodless, to St. Paul's Church, where she offered up her taper at the high altar." She made two more penances. And then she was interned at Chester for life.

"The sly enchanter," writes Samuel Daniels, of a few reigns later:

"The sly enchanter when, to work his will
And secret wrong on some fore-spoken wight,
Frames wax in form to represent aright
The poor unwitting wretch he means to kill,
And pricks the image framed by magic's skill Whereby to vex the party day and night."

Nor is there much alteration down the ages, in the story of "Witches' Sabbaths." They fall on February 2, April 30, August 1 and at the end of November. Each of the thirteen witches in a "coven," or district, greases her broomstick with the blood of a slaughtered baby and flies to the services. At the trysting place they all dance, back to back, singing "Dondéremus," sometimes in the presence of a horned gentleman whom they address as "Master Leonard." If you don't believe us, read your Heine!

It isn't easy to detect a witch, but you may master the method by studying the "Malleus Maleficarum." Matthew Hopkins made a good thing out of witch-finding in the sixteen hundreds. Unfortunately for him, some people thought him quite too good to be true, threw him into a river and, as he floated, had him executed as a wizard.

* * *

Nor is it easy to disbelieve in witches. Bacon, even if he didn't write "Macbeth," had a hard time accounting for them. In his "Natural History" he writes: "It is worthy of observing that . . . the great wonders of which they tell . . . are still reported to be wrought . . . by ointments and anointing themselves all over. This may justly move a man to think that these fables are the effect of imagination; for it is certain that ointments do all (if they be laid on anything thick) by stopping the pores, shut in the vapors and send them to the head extremely."

And where, in Elizabeth's days, the Baron Verulam must evolve such an explanation, John Wesley, in the eighteenth century, found it easier simply to believe!

Ah, well, perhaps the spartanism of Feminism may eventually so reduce the ranks of the witches that they will no longer trouble even the merciful descendants of their merciful hangmen. For Feminism is strengthening womankind, and King James I thus explains why there were twenty women in black magic to every man: "As that sex is frailer than man is, so is it easier to be entrapped in these gross snares of the devil."

IT is impossible to contemplate the personnel of the New Deal drama without realizing the amazing contrast between Mr. Ickes of 1933 and Mr. Ickes of 1934.

BARGERON

I can't recall anyone who ever came into a cast and shot so quickly up to the top. Wholly unknown to us here in Washington, he came here at the outset of the Revolution, so the story goes, looking for a job with the Indians. He likes them. All he wanted of the New Deal was something to do with them.

Mr. Roosevelt is said to have taken a fancy to him immediately and to have told him, in effect: "I can not permit you to confine your talents to the Indians. You must have a broader part." Whereupon he was made Secretary of the Interior, which as Cabinet officers go we have never shouted about, but then right on top of that he was made the Public Works administrator. Presto, in the rapidly moving scenes of those stirring first days of the show he bolted right out in front.

• • • •

Not even Gen. Johnson could submerge Mr. Ickes. He had $3,000,000,000 to spend, more than we had ever given any man. For days on end the front pages were replete with what Mr. Ickes was to do with this $3,000,000,000, with how many men he was to put to work. Then there were thousands of words written about his honesty, how he was going to leave no stone unturned to see that the three billions were expended without any graft.

The combination—three billions to spend and honesty—challenged our admiration. There was talk about Ickes for President. No brain truster was more publicized, not even Mr. Roosevelt himself. Out in the country when they thought of Washington—and they could think of nothing else—they thought as much of Ickes as they did of anyone.

• • • •

I shall never forget how we all thrilled to his forthright action against the so-called politico-lawyers, though my enthusiasm was slightly dampened when, a short time later, he said another of the group who had something to do with his appointment was in a different category and all right.

With unerring precision and a splendid artistry Mr. Ickes moved through his part back in those days. One day the headlines heralded his kicking out of an alleged dishonest administrator out West and the next day an alleged dishonest administrator somewhere else.

In the meantime, he built up one of the most effective espionage services in the Government. When the final check is made on him, the liabilities stacked against the assets, every one, friend and foe alike, will have to admit that he did certainly investigate.

But over all it appears that he was accomplishing the main work assigned to him, that of carrying out a public works program and putting millions to work. Of the more than three billion given to him, only slightly more than a billion is actually working at this late date, and of that $400,000,000 went to Mr. Harry Hopkins and his relief, some $285,000,000 to the Navy and some to the CCC. Mr. Ickes may not have forgotten about the public works program as a vehicle to carry us back to recovery, but the rest of us have, and I am inclined to think the Administration has too.

It is not contended that Mr. Ickes is responsible for this. He has allocated the money. It just seems there are too many obstacles to getting a building program of such magnitude under way.

But the circumstances have certainly changed Mr. Ickes' status in the east. In the summer of 1934 we find the show still going good. But Mr. Ickes, instead of starring with his three billions, seems to be concerned with his multitudinous clerks putting their feet on their desks and with the tremendous business of the Interior Department cafeteria. From the stellar role he has come to be a gentleman of the ensemble, or perhaps a little better, he is doing a melodramatic specialty.

Ordinance Hits Unsafe Housing

Complaint of Citizen May Cause Demolition.

Fredericksburg, Va., July 12 (Spl.).—A new ordinance providing for the removal or repair of unsafe buildings was passed unanimously by the city council last night.

Complaint of a citizen about the unsafe condition of any building or dwelling can result in the summoning of the owner of the property before a police justice and an investigation into the condition of the structure.

If official inquiry proves the charges well founded, the owner can be ordered to remove or repair the building within 60 days, after which time the city manager may remove the building at the owner's expense. Delay will make the owner liable to a fine of from $25 to $100.

Attorney's Death Ruled Suicide.

Richmond, July 12 (AP).—The death of R. J. Sachers, patent attorney, in the Hotel Mons, Bedford County, June 4, has been officially listed a suicide in a certificate filed with the State bureau of vital statistics by Dr. T. P. West, Bedford County coroner.

Natives' Fear Hides Mystery of Carolines

Massive Forts Survive Jungle in Japanese Islands, but Origin Is Obscure; Writer Says Nippon Doesn't Need Them.

By R. V. C. Bodley.

(Special Correspondence of The Washington Post.)

Tokyo, Japan.

MUCH has been written of late about Japan's mandated territories of the Pacific. The characteristics of the native inhabitants, the progress of development under Japanese tutelage, the probabilities of Japan having naval bases among these islands, with many other questions, have been discussed, but no one up to date seems to have made mention of the fortresses which actually exist in the Caroline Archipelago.

One of the reasons for this omission is that the forts in question are not near the principal harbors and can only be visited with plenty of spare time, which is not usually available during the steamer's normal call. I had the good fortune to find it possible to make the excursion, and through the courtesy of the Japanese governor of Ponapa, who placed his launch at my disposal, spent one of the most interesting days of my long tour of the South Sea Islands at this fortified city.

There are three natural harbors at Ponape, but only Colonia, on the northern coast, is made use of by the N. Y. K. liners. Namatar, the site of this fort, lies about 15 miles to the east of Colonia and can be reached by launch without going outside the main reef.

I was greeted on my arrival by the local schoolmaster, a charming Japanese who had lived for ten years in the jungle, teaching the children of the islanders to be good citizens of Japan. But neither the schoolmaster nor his wife seemed to think they were doing anything out of the ordinary.

Furthering Interests Of Japanese Empire.

THEY were furthering the interests of the Japanese Empire, and, if it was a bit hot and they had no one to talk to but the district policeman, they had few expenses and there was always the 60-day holiday at the end of every two years to look forward to. Seeing these people living in voluntary exile made me once more realize how, in certain characteristics, the British and Japanese resemble each other.

About me the jungle steamed silently under the equatorial sun. The only sound was the occasional squawk of a parakeet or the thud of an overripe cocoanut falling into the undergrowth. It seemed difficult to believe that Japan, with snowcapped Fuji Yama, existed; but the moment I stepped across the threshold of the schoolmaster's house, the polished floor of the veranda and the glistening whiteness of the tatami, the hospitable bathroom and the steaming sukiyaki showed me how the Japanese, like the British, transplant themselves without effort, and make of their new home a corner of Japan or Britain.

I do not wish to suggest that the schoolmaster took no interest in his mission, for, with the same zeal of one teaching university students, he implanted the rudiments of the Japanese language and the outline of Japanese history into the none-too-receptive brains of the copper-skinned children of the jungle. His task was rendered all the more difficult by the fact that while some of the pupils lived quite close, others had to come great distances on foot or by canoe, so that school attendance depended a great deal on the weather. However, neither schoolmaster or pupils seemed to be deterred by such small matters, and their energy seemed to be unlimited.

Natives Superstitious Of Namatar Ruins.

THE schoolmaster had made a study of the ruins at Namatar, but had succeeded in obtaining little definite information owing to the superstitions of the natives who believe that to talk about this dead city will rouse the anger of the spirits of its departed founders. One old man, who had braved superstition and begun to tell what he knew died suddenly, causing the other islanders to become more reticent than ever.

The ruins, covering an area of about 8 square miles, were built on a group of islets in the lagoon; so that all intercommunication must have been carried out by means of canals, the remains of which can still be seen. The main fort or castle, which has been cleared of jungle, consists of a vast edifice made of curiously shaped stone beams some 20 feet in length. The rock used has been traced to a quarry 30 miles from Namatar.

The outer walls of this building are shaped to resemble the prows of modern battleships and are of great thickness; the roof has fallen in, but it is evident that the interior was divided into spacious rooms, and there is an elaborate system of underground crypts probably used as storerooms in case of siege.

A magnificent flight of steps leads up from the canal to the main entrance of the castle, while seaward there is a harbor in which it must have been possible for large ships to berth alongside a wharf constructed by a people who were well versed in the knowledge of engineering. The rest of the city lies buried beneath mangroves, but even these enemies of civilization have not yet completely destroyed the tremendous walls.

Legend Says Cannibals Became Strangers' Slaves.

THE legend of the ruins, which the schoolmaster pieced together, tells of two strangers of great stature who, centuries ago, came from the North and by their knowledge of magic so dominated the natives of Ponape, who were cannibals, that they were elected chiefs. Their first step on assuming power was to build the castle at Namatar, and on its completion sailed away in a ship much superior to any native craft, returning again after a year's absence with many other ships filled with men and women. War was at once declared on the cannibals of Ponape, who were defeated and enslaved as builders of the new city.

The estimated date of these events is as vague as the story, but it was "before the coming of the first white men," i. e. before the Portuguese and Spaniards, who visited these islands in the sixteenth century.

I do not suppose that anyone now will be able to solve the mystery, for, unlike other parts of the world where ancient civilizations are known to have lived and died, in the South Sea Islands there is no evidence, other than these forts, that the inhabitants were ever anything better than primitive savages who have never constructed anything more solid than bamboo huts, or more seaworthy than dug-out canoes.

I have heard it suggested that Namatar was just a fort built in an emergency by shipwrecked pirates, but this is most unlikely as, in the first place, a fort would have been erected on the top of Ponape's mountain range, and secondly, why should a fort cover such a vast area?

A German archeologist who made a study of Namatar decided that it was a huge mausoleum; but here again the same question arises, for whom and why in the South Sea Islands? The whole thing is a puzzle, and it was with a feeling of awe that I paddled slowly away along those ancient canals, while the jungle steamed about this city of the dead.

Another Strange Structure at Kusai.

THERE is another strange stone structure, but of less original design, at Kusai in the Marshalls. It is evidently a fort for it is a simple quadrilateral made of huge blocks of rock, and surrounded by a moat. But even here we are faced with the problem of how these huge rectangular corner stones, weighing tons, were brought to Kusai and then hoisted into position. The walls of the ruin still stand 20 feet high and must have been a good deal higher, but no present-day South Sea Islander would think of building in stone or, if he wished to, be able to lift the blocks of granite without an elaborate system of cranes.

These, then, are the only fortresses in the mandated territories and there is no evidence of the Japanese having any intention to build others; in fact, it is not apparent of what use fortified bases would be to Japan in the South Sea Islands. There are plenty of dockyards in Japan, there is the naval harbor in the Bonins, and in the event of war with America, the Philippines and Guam would be occupied before the arrival of the main American fleet.

In the same way stores of fuel and submarine parent ships could be sent if required to the principal islands or the havens inside the coral reefs rendered useless for hostile ships before any naval engagement could take place; so why expend millions of money in establishing fortified naval bases in anticipation of a conflict which will probably never take place?

In the event of war with Russia or China the South Sea Islands would play no role, and if Great Britain was the enemy there would be time enough to decide how to make use of the islands before the British fleet had a strong enough force collected in Eastern waters to risk an encounter.

Fear Due to Ideas Of Warlike Spirit.

PERSONALLY, I do not think that the Japanese look seriously upon the islands as potential naval bases, and if suspicion has been aroused in the minds of foreigners it is partly due to inspired ideas on Japan's warlike spirit, and partly to the attitude of Japanese officials in the mandated territories. These men, though working heroically in the cause of empire building, are not, for the most part, chosen from the imaginative class of traveled Japanese and are inclined to be xenophobish.

The advent therefore of a foreigner has an unbalancing reaction on the minds of these functionaries, causing them to interrogate the visitor as if he were crossing an international frontier, whereas he can only be coming from Japan. Even when landed the tourist finds that though outwardly free to do as he pleases he is, in reality, never out of sight of a Japanese policeman or a "friendly" native who are there to see that "he will not lose his way or be molested."

I have always been treated with the greatest kindness by the Japanese government officials of the South Sea Islands, and if it amuses the police to ask questions and accompany me on my walks I am not offended. But there are many foreigners who resent these attentions and being treated with suspicion become suspicious themselves, so that they return to their homes determined that the Japanese are trying to conceal something from them, which is not the case. There is nothing to conceal.

The Japanese are doing excellent work in their Pacific mandates and I am certain that many governments with more experience in colonial administration could learn a lot by studying the methods employed in developing the resources and improving the status of the natives of the Mariana, Caroline and Marshall archipelagos.

Dr. Clyde Lynch to Give Anniversary Address

Waynesboro, Pa., July 12 (Spl.).—Dr. Clyde A. Lynch, president of Lebanon Valley College, will give the anniversary day address Sunday at the Quincy United Brethren Church.

The male chorus of Red Lion U. B. Church will sing. Special services are being held each night this week. The Rev. Gordon I. Rider, Hagerstown, Md., spoke last night and the Rev. Amos Funk, Lemasters, spoke tonight.

Roman Candles.

"Lend me your ears," Miss Virginia Faulkner seems to say, rather pertly, rather smartly, "for I have a tale to speak out." Reading her novel is like listening. For "Friends and Romans" (Simon & Schuster, $2) runs along like a good talk, with bon mots and turns of phrase which are neither so flat as those usually heard across a dinner table, nor so enduringly brilliant as to sound like the midnight polishings of Oscar Wilde. Miss Faulkner's is an easy, conversational wit, and when she turns to the humorously romantic adventuring of a world-famous lady pianist in Rome, she makes of it a piece of vivacious entertainment. One can not call her characters real—they are far too amusingly fragile for that. The flares of these Roman candles may go out quite black in the night, but they burn with audacious gayety and color while they last.

THEO. HALL

Mme. Marie Manfred, by the time she was 36, had won the applause of nations at the piano. She had also had more lovers than she could remember. The two went hand in hand. She could not get her heart into her music until it was currently lost. But now, tired of both capabilities, she came down and took a villa near Rome for a rest.

You will not be surprised to discover that she failed to meet with this. There hove on the scene a handsome young henchman of Mussolini, who thought the world was his oyster and found Marie sufficiently bivalvular. She, of course, recovered her taste for music. Before the inevitable parting, things were complicated by a biography of Marie which told rather more than it might have, by a pistol shot in the dark at the said Fascist, by the funeral of Marie's first patroness, and by a prison cell for one of her oldest friends—a gigolo known as "quite the most useful parasite of the twentieth century." Then, with her biographer, Marie went "da capo," back to the beginning again.

• • • •

Marie tells the tale in the first person—her notions are free, frank, realistic even toward her own temperament. In her piano playing she has her own style. "I'm not a phonograph record," she says. She knows that a musician's life is "a river of perspiration to every magnum of champagne." Perhaps she is most disturbed by hostesses who ogle and coo and ask her to play. There is one in the next villa whose "chaotic and random vivacity" is as "restful as a siege gun." After one of Mrs. Frewitt's parties Marie cries out to herself: "Just once, God! just once, I should like to produce a handkerchief of some diaphanous material, flick it lightly over the keyboard, and—spit on my hands." She is, as they say in the movie magazines, just a human being after all.

Ricardo, the blond Fascist, stalks about as if the sun wouldn't rise on the morrow morn unless he'd deigned to make special arrangements. As one of the characters remarked of him: "But these Napoleon-men—they must win all the time. They can not bounce . . . I think if Ricardo sat on a pin in public it would be harder for him to bear than a knife-thrust."

Marie's biographer and one-time lover is Regan Nicholls, who calls himself: "Just an ugly duckling that went Swann's way." Then there is the aged, terrific, and deep-voiced Mme. Barbavina, who let drop her false teeth at one of her imposing Tuesday salons. To the all but paralyzed man who picked them up, she merely boomed: "Wipe them off!" Others in the gaudy gallery are a retired ballerina who snared a duke, a virginal English sculptress who would have it otherwise (and fails), and an assortment of priceless Italian servants.

• • • •

Perhaps we might note a few more examples of Miss Faulkner's pleasantly saucy wit. One time, after especially weak cocktails have been served, Ricardo remarks politely to Marie: "Your butler is an artist." "Yes," Tavo, the gigolo, adds helpfully, "it is the first time that I ever knew impressionism could be applied to cocktail making."

One of the minor women characters "had gone in for functional dressing—simple, stylized clothes—which looked like the result of a merger between U. S. Steel and Schiaparelli. She must have screwed them on."

Marie and Ricardo are having one of their scarcely disguised set-to's. Says Ricardo: "As often as possible I follow the laws of nature—in the relations of man and woman as in everything else." "So?" remarks Marie. "And what do you think of crop rotation?"

Not to be missed are the story of how Marie got her first audience and the anecdote of the Italian housekeeper and the unfinished country house. Prize scene of all is that in which Ricardo, after stating that his career will not allow him to marry Marie, discovers that all is over. "Are you dismissing me?" he quavers. She replies: "Let us say, rather, that I have seen your duty and that has done it."

• • • •

Miss Faulkner, as you may remember, was here on The Post with us all last winter. You read her articles and the sprightly "Dear Coralie" letters every Sunday in The Post magazine. So you will share our interest in this literary career begun at the age of 21.

For light as are her materials in this first novel, her skill is self-evident. Any growth in her finesse of character, neatness of scene, and ease of dialogue are sure to draw more attention in this world than the gay but evanescent fireworks of "Friends and Romans" can reasonably warrant.

Examination of Primo Carnera.

(Primo Carnera in Court Over Purse Again."—Headline.)

Judge—What? You here again!

Carnera—Si, si.

Judge—What round is it?

Carnera—Make it anything but the eleventh.

• • • •

Judge—Are you still trying to get the money you earned as heavyweight champion of the world?

Carnera—Si, si (looking over his managers, &c.).

Judge—Well, it looks to me like the hardest battle of your career.

Carnera—Can't I get the money?

Judge—Not without breaking that other ankle!

• • • •

Judge—How many years have you been fighting?

Carnera—Seex years.

Judge—What were your total earnings?

Carnera—Nobody will tell me. Every time I ask an accounting I find myself in another court.

• • • •

Judge—You always fought for a purse, did you not?

Carnera—Sure. I'm still fighting for it.

• • • •

Judge—What did you get for knocking out Sharkey?

Carnera—One beefsteak and four attachments.

Judge (surprised)—How did you manage to get the beefsteak?

Carnera—It was too tough for my managers.

Judge—What did you get for your fight with Tommy Loughran?

Carnera—I got the first train out of Miami.

Judge—What was your end of the purse for the Baer fight?

Carnera—I can't tell until all these hearings are over.

Judge—There is $80,000 on deposit in a bank as your share but it is under attachment.

Carnera—All right, I fight him.

Carnera—The bank.

• • • •

Judge—There is a claim of $15,000 by a Miss Emilia Tersini, who says you promised to marry her.

Carnera—Judge, I got a proppoSish. If she get the $15,000 I marry her.

Judge—The United States also has a claim in for income taxes.

Carnera—Can the United States get it?

Judge—Absolutely.

Carnera—Okay, I agree to settle this out of court.

Judge—That's the big-hearted boy, but how?

Carnera—You split the $80,000 between Emilia Tersini and the United States. I marry both and live seex months with each.

Judge—But how about your managers?

Carnera—Judge, do me a favor, please.

Judge—What is it?

Carnera—Breaka da managers ankles!

Baltimore Port Shows Big Gain

Foreign Trade Increase of 71 Per Cent Noted.

Baltimore, July 12 (Spl.).—Foreign trade in and out of the Port of Baltimore showed an increase of 71 per cent for the first six months of 1934 over the figures for the same period last year, it was reported today by G. H. Pouder, director of the export and import bureau of the Baltimore Association of Commerce.

Admitting that 1933 was a depression year, Mr. Pouder pointed out that the port's business for 1934 showed an increase of over 15 per cent over the first half of 1932.

Trade through Baltimore for the first six months of 1934 totaled $47,059,104, Mr. Pouder said. Exports accounted for $20,610,921 of this total, and imports for $26,448,183. A total of 2,670 vessels cleared the port during the half-year period, and customs receipts amounted to $3,479,647, an increase of 30.3 per cent over the same period of 1933, but a decrease of 23.8 from the figures for the same period of 1932.

Roosevelt Family Servant Expires

Aged Bristol Man Served First Lady's Father.

Bristol, Va., July 12 (AP).—John Smith, aged colored man who was the trusted servant of Elliott Roosevelt, father of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, died at his home here today.

He had followed the brother of former President Theodore Roosevelt on trips over this part of the country inspecting holdings of the Douglas Land Co., and was remembered by the present First Lady of the Land, who invited him to visit at the White House.

Infirmities kept John from accepting this invitation, but last summer he talked with Mrs. Roosevelt when she attended the White Top Mountain music festival and presented her a cup that had belonged to her father.

Such a large proportion of those who have been pictured by Mr. Robles have asked for the originals that The Washington Post is saving all these drawings to honor the requests of any future members of "The National Gallery."

Masonic School Opens July 15

Rt. Worshipful T. C. Nelson to Direct Work at Fairfax Hall.

Waynesboro, Va., July 12 (Spl.).—Right Worshipful Thomas C. Nelson, of Lynchburg, grand lecturer of the Grand Lodge of Virginia, will direct the sixth annual meeting of the Virginia Masonic School (No. 1) of Instruction at Fairfax Hall here, July 15 to 19.

John T. Cochran, of The Plains, is president; Dr. R. L. Page, of Miller School, vice president, and S. J. Sachs, of Staunton, secretary-treasurer.

The program will open Sunday at 4 p. m., when the Waynesboro Municipal Band will play a sacred concert. At 8 p. m., vesper services will be conducted by the Rev. J. Lewis Gibbs, rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, Staunton, grand chaplain of the Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Virginia.

The school of instruction will get under way Monday at 9:30 a. m. The school's annual business meeting will be held Monday at 8 p. m., with the principal address by Right Worshipful Thomas D. Hooper, D. D., of Culpeper, deputy grand master of the Grand Lodge of Virginia.

Low Potato Prices Worry Md. Farmers

Pocomoke City, Md., July 12 (Spl.).—With first receipts for potato shipments being received in Worcester County this week, the financial outlook has been pronounced "gloomy."

Payments are being made at the rate of $1.35 to $1.45 a barrel and 90 cents a sack. First shipments began last week, but did not become general until this week. New Jersey potatoes are expected on the market in about two weeks and will prevent prices from rising. A continued low price will mean that many farms will be sold for overdue mortgages, it has been declared here.

The only hope, farmers say, is the marketing agreement which has been signed by buyers and growers and now is in the hands of the Secretary of Agriculture.

Session Opened By Veterinarians

Virginia Beach, Va., July 12 (AP).—The forty-first annual two-day meeting of the Virginia Veterinary Medical Association opened here today at the Princess Anne Hotel.

The State board of veterinary medical examiners is in session here at the same time.

Dr. E. H. Drake, of Leesburg, president of the association, opened the convention with an address in which he discussed the work of the past year. A report also was made by Dr. I. D. Wilson, professor of animal pathology at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and secretary of the association.

Dr. H. C. Givens, State veterinarian from Richmond, will deliver the principal address tomorrow, talking on "Plans for the Future."

Richmond Editor Quits; Post Not Yet Filled

Richmond, July 12 (AP).—Charles P. Hasbrook, publisher of the Richmond Times-Dispatch, announced today that Vincent G. Byers, editor of the paper since March, 1932, has resigned, effective October 1. The resignation was accepted.

A new editor will not be appointed for the present, Mr. Hasbrook said, but Rowland Wood, managing editor, will have charge of the news department after October 1.

Otis Thornhill Heads G. O. P.

Former Postmaster Will Direct Campaign in Culpeper.

Culpeper, Va., July 12 (Spl.).—At a mass meeting held at Municipal Hall here yesterday by county Republicans, former Postmaster Otis R. Thornhill was named party chairman for Culpeper County.

L. Frank Smith is vice chairman, and W. D. Reams, secretary-treasurer.

The committee of this county is composed of Otis R. Thornhill, Catalpa; W. W. Hart, Brandy; Harold S. Marean, Richardsville; John Boldridge, Stevensburg; T. S. Kilby, Brown's Store; Weston Quintence, Eldorado; James Frazier, Michells; Joseph Button, Rixeyville, and A. Rosenberger, Jeffersonton.

Each of the above will serve as a delegate to the district convention, to be held here August 6, at which time a delegate for the House of Representatives will be nominated to oppose Howard W. Smith, Democrat, of Alexandria, in the November election.

The G. O. P. platform will be presented. The platform is being drafted by Cecil Coppage, Madison County; L. C. McPherson, Arlington County; Ernest R. Duff, of Charlottesville, and John Greyson, of Fauquier County.

Baptists Will Hold Roanoke Conclave

Roanoke, Va., July 12 (Spl.).—The Valley Baptist Association, comprising 68 churches, will meet at Belmont Church here July 17 and 18.

The association has a membership of about 20,000. Dr. George Dewey Stevens, of Roanoke, is vice moderator; Dr. George Braxton Taylor, of Hollins, historian, and W. B. Carter, of Roanoke, clerk and treasurer. B. F. Moomaw, of Roanoke, is moderator.

Speakers will include Dr. J. J. Wicker, president of Union Military Academy; the Rev. John E. White, business manager of Virginia Hospital; Miss Blanche Sydnor White, of Richmond, corresponding secretary of the Woman's Missionary Union of Virginia, and the Rev. E. T. Clark, pastor of Winchester Baptist Church.

D. C. Artillerymen At Charles Town

Charles Town, W. Va., July 12 (Spl.).—The 260th Coast Artillery, antiaircraft, Twenty-ninth Division, District of Columbia National Guard, are encamped on the Shenandoah Jockey Club grounds here tonight.

The division has 260 enlisted men and 40 officers, with Maj. Burns in command.

A searchlight drill was held.

Work of Resurfacing Road in Penna. Starts

Waynesboro, Pa., July 12 (Spl.).—Resurfacing operations on a stretch of Route 75, Franklin County, between Fannettsburg and Willow Hill, were underway today, the highway department announced. A detour will route traffic over 3.96 miles of earth road until July 18.

The project is located in picturesque Path Valley, connecting the William Penn and Lincoln highways via Newport, New Broomfield, New Germantown and Fort Loudon.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors

"Good-by, Mr. Chips."

Let me urge everyone who reads this column to secure as soon as possible a copy of a new book called "Good-by, Mr. Chips," and read it. The author's name was unknown to me. It is James Hilton.

But I shall remember this story as long as I live. I believe it will become an imperishable classic.

It is the story of a teacher in an English school—a boys' preparatory school—which is called in England a public school, and which we call a private school.

Now, many novelists in recent years have described their school days in England as days of horror, where brutality, indecency, stupidity, cruelty were the regular order of the day. I have often wondered if some of these writers who describe the schools they attended with such savage bitterness—I have often wondered if perhaps they themselves were not partly to blame; perhaps they were such individualists or such intellectual snobs that they refused to cooperate either with their schoolmates or with their teachers.

It was refreshing to read in the book called "Lost Lectures," written two years ago by the Englishman, Maurice Baring, that of all the past days of his life, the days he spent as a schoolboy in Eton were so happy that he would not wish to change a single minute, but if he had to live his whole life over again those days he would wish to be repeated exactly as they were. That his loyalty to that school, Eton, was so great that even now he wanted Eton to win every athletic contest she engaged in, and that he was quite sure there was not a school in the world so good as Eton.

Well, this book, "Mr. Chips" is about what would be called in England a school of the second rank; not up to Eton and Harrow and Rugby. But the love of the writer for it is beautiful to contemplate.

Even more beautiful, however, is the character of Mr. Chips. It is impossible to describe him; you must read the book for yourself. There is a combination of humor, wit, pathos, tragedy, and, above all, beauty, that is ineffably affecting.

The story is neither a full-length novel nor a short story. I read it through in an hour and a half, but it will take the rest of my life to forget it.

Tomorrow—The Fourteenth of July.

School Board Orders Survey

Transportation Needs of Loudoun Children to Be Learned.

Purcellville, Va., July 12 (Spl.).—The Loudoun County School Board yesterday requested the division superintendent to survey all areas where children are excessive distances from school in order that the board may consider transportation needs.

Contract for hauling children from Tankerfield to Lovettsville was awarded S. W. Lindsay at $100 per school month for 1934-35. The board ordered $250 transferred to Lovettsville District from Mount Gilead District and $250 to Mercer District from Mount Gilead District as temporary loans.

Two chassis for school buses were ordered purchased and the superintendent was authorized to purchase two school bus bodies for the buses. Bus drivers appointed were Unison-Bloomfield to Round Hill, Richard Poland; Airmont-Bluemont to Round Hill, Ronald Hope; North Fork to Lincoln, Mrs. Kephart and Mrs. Cockerill.

Forced Zoning Seen in NRA Case

Decentralization, of Coat Suit Trade Blocked.

Norfolk, July 12 (Spl.).—An attempt to prevent decentralization of the coat and suit industry, now largely concentrated in New York, and the establishment of small factories throughout the country is seen in the protest against the use of NRA labels by Lafayette Garments, Inc., which is ready to start manufacturing operations here.

The corporation agreed to submit to the requirements of the code for the industry, but a protest was made to the code authority sitting in New York City against granting it the Blue Eagle on the ground that some persons connected with the plant had not previously complied with the NRA requirements. While in Washington yesterday, City Manager T. P. Thompson conferred with a NRA deputy administrator and received assurances from him that a fair investigation would be made.

The Lafayette plant had installed machinery and was ready to start operations that would give employment to 400 persons, mostly women and girls, when the code authority stepped into the situation.

Funeral Services Held For Mrs. Lee Phillips

Spotsylvania Courthouse, Va., July 12 (Spl.).—Funeral services for Mrs. Lee C. Phillips, of Summit, who died Tuesday at Blue Ridge Sanatorium, were held today at Zion Baptist Church.

Mrs. Phillips is survived by her husband, her daughter, June Phillips and four brothers, Lacy White, Spotsylvania constable, and Walter White, Charles White and Burney White, of Fredericksburg.

Fishermen's Paradise Abounds Within Easy Reach of Washington's Izaak Waltons

Fancy Hooks Beat Bent Pins In These Many Fishing Nooks

It is a hallowed part of the great American credo that the city feller, with his nickel-plated reel and his fancy tackle, never catches as many fish as the freckle-faced kid with the bent pin. But, like many other planks in the G. A. C., it isn't true.

Just ask any fisherman who casts his line into the salt waters of Chesapeake Bay or the Atlantic Ocean along the Maryland shore, and he'll tell you so. Nossir; to land the big ones that haunt those waters, you not only have to have the correct tackle, the proper bait and a general idea of where to go, but you also have to know the proper way to spit on your hook and just how to drop it in order to tempt the bluefish or the trout you'd like to catch.

But it isn't so hard to find out what bait to use, or what pier to fish from, or where to go to catch the best specimens.

Where to Go Fishing.

For instance, if you want to catch hardheads, get yourself a good smelled hook, some bait (shrimp, peelers, bloodworms, whichever you prefer) and go down to Jimmy Degge's pier on Tilghman's Island, or to Solomon's Island, Shadyside, Plum Point, Herring Bay, Cobb Island on the Potomac, or Benedict on the Patuxent River, hire a launch or boat—and there you are. You'll find the hardheads are biting at this time of the year, and a hardhead is a swell fish, whether you're jerking him out of the water or frying him over a coal fire.

Ever since Jonah came home with the original fish story, fishermen have argued about the best bait, but for salt water fishing in this territory, you'll find that peelers, which are shedding crabs, shrimp, and bloodworms are favorites, although for bluefish and rock fish, some anglers prefer cut spot or little eels.

For trolling, whether for bluefish or salt water trout, which, incidentally, are starting up the bay, cut spot or baby eels are in great demand.

Sport Is Good Here.

The Washington fisherman is ideally located for excellent salt-water fishing, with literally hundreds of excellent fishing grounds almost at his doorstep.

Each fisherman, of course, has his ideal waters, and you'll find thousands who will swear the best fishing is to be found at a thousand different places. Boats, too, are reasonably priced, and a day's fishing, or a whole week-end of sport, won't ruin your pocketbook.

St. George's Island, too, is a popular place among fishermen, as are Governor Run, Md., Rock Point, Prince Frederick, Kenwood Beach, or any of the nearby coast or bay towns and villages. Boats and equipment may be hired at any of these points, and excellent guides there are of great service to the fresh-water fisherman who feels the urge to match wits with the more robust salt water fish. Sports shops, too, are meccas for anglers, and many tips on ideal fishing grounds and methods may be gained from a conversation with the other fishermen you'll find there.

Culbertson on Bridge

Perfect Bidding and Perfect Play.

Perfect bidding and perfect play may perhaps in theory produce perfect scores, but there are few who have ever seen a perfect Contract Bridge player. In all probability, perfect scores will never be made by any pair of players, however expert throughout a series of games composing a tournament, but if they ever should, then most certainly there will be some pair of venturesome spirits who will step out on the limb in their bidding and take a big penalty, thereby off-setting the perfect bids and perfect plays of the perfect pair. This general principle explains why Bridge tournaments are not "won" by the winners but are "lost" by the losers. Luck, even in Duplicate Bridge, may be the principal factor in determining which pair shall be labeled the "winners."

In connection with this, Mr. Edward W. Faith, of Mobile, Ala., submitted to me recently his research along that line. As one example, he gave the hand below, which arose in a three-table tournament.

South, Dealer
Both sides vulnerable

	♠ Q 8 ♡ Q 9 5 3 ◇ A 10 8 ♣ K 10 6 4
♠ K 9 6 3 ♡ K J 7 4 ◇ 9 7 5 ♣ 5 3		♠ A 5 ♡ 10 2 ◇ K Q J 3 2 ♣ Q J 9 8
	♠ J 10 7 4 2 ♡ A 8 6 ◇ 6 4 ♣ A 7 2

At two tables the hand was passed out. But at one table North and South, Team No. 1, were optimistic, and bid up to three notrump. East doubled, and North (Declarer) was set three tricks. Had this been rubber play, only the rash bidders would have been punished. But, under the method of tournament scoring by match points, this rash bidding had a very far-reaching result. It gave the East-West pair at that table the high score on that hand, and thus gave them a present of two match points, which they had done absolutely nothing to earn.

Continuing his research, Mr. Faith reports that he supervised and played in an evening tournament between two teams of six in which, though the gross aggregate of points won exceeded 11,000, yet the difference between the winning and the losing team was less than 100 points. A study of the bidding and play went far to demonstrate that certainly in nonexpert circles tournaments are not won—they are lost. As might be expected, here were some of the losses:

1—A vulnerable North overcalled with two spades West's original one notrump, was doubled, and went down three tricks. East and West scored 900 as against a non-vulnerable game of 400 made by East and West at the other table. The difference of 500 points certainly were not "won"—they were "lost" by the folly of a player.

2—A vulnerable player made a good Opening bid of one notrump and was raised by partner on hopes and ambition with some rich intermediates. Down four instead of two; minus 700, instead of a natural minus, 250! Four hundred and fifty points were lost—not won.

3—A vulnerable partner, instead of risking an improving bid of notrump, raised a minor. One team scored 150, the other 600—lost, 450 points.

4—A player who was afraid to bid a four-card suit, passed, with the result that his team passed out an easy game at notrump; lost, 400.

5—A player, rather than open a four-card diamond suit, opened with notrump, even with a singleton spade. The hand was played at three notrump, and the Declaring side went down two instead of making a sure game in diamonds, which was made at the other table—minus 100 instead of plus 400—lost, 500 points.

6—A player suffering from "Notrumpitis" insisted on playing at six notrump instead of letting his partner play at six spades—minus 50 points, against a plus 980 made at the other table—lost, 1,030 points.

These six illustrations that actually occurred in one evening's tournament play at three tables between two teams of six, are no doubt typical of numerous cases that occur in a big tournament of several hundred tables. If so, then it is certain that big tournaments, like small tournaments, are not "won"—they are "lost."

Tomorrow's Hand.

South, Dealer
Neither side vulnerable

	♠ J 8 6 ♡ K Q 9 2 ◇ J 10 7 ♣ 9 7 3
♠ 9 5 4 ♡ A J 3 3 ◇ K Q 6 5 ♣ 8 4		♠ 10 3 2 ♡ 10 7 6 5 4 ◇ 8 4 3 2 ♣ J
	♠ A K Q 7 ♡ — ◇ A 9 ♣ A K Q 10 6 5 2

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Leslie Howard and Bette Davis Score in "Of Human Bondage" at RKO-Keith's

Maugham Play Ably Acted by Splendid Cast

Noted Novel Well Adapted; Try-Out Play Coming; Amusement Chat.

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

By Nelson B. Bell.

"OF HUMAN BONDAGE." R.K.O.-Radio picturization of the novel by W. Somerset Maugham, adapted to the screen by Lester Cohn, starring Leslie Howard with Bette Davis, Frances Dee, Kay Johnson, Reginald Denny, Alan Hale, Reginald Owen, Desmond Roberts and Reginald Sheffield. Directed by John Cromwell. Reviewed Wednesday afternoon.

W. Somerset Maugham's drab story of a sensitive young student's tragic love for a faithless hussy, picked up when she was an acid Cockney waitress in a cheap London restaurant, here has been made the beneficiary of the interpretative talents of a flawlessly chosen cast, sound direction and an effective, even if at times jerky, adaptation to the cameras.

During the unfolding of the sordid tale of a strange infatuation, one feels some resentment that Leslie Howard should be made to appear so completely the victim of so impassioned a devotion to so worthless a little ingrate as Mildred Rogers, the unscrupulously scheming and degraded character so vividly portrayed by Bette Davis. Everything that Mr. Howard is and does is of too fine a fiber to lend "Of Human Bondage" a complete and inescapable quality of conviction.

Yet it is upon this precise point that the bitter purpose of Mr. Maugham's fiction rests. It is a treatise upon the odd quirks of the human mind and heart that weld unbelievable bonds between the highest and the lowest in character, aspirations and ideals.

Hopeless Mesalliance.

Philip Carey, first an art student in Paris and later a medical student in London, stumbles by merest coincidence into a hopeless mesalliance with a youthful harpy, his inferior in every act, thought, impulse and outlook upon life. So deep was his incomprehensible love for this crass creature that no matter what her transgression against the common decencies of life, he always forgave her, took her back, at whatever sacrifice, and suffered the tragic consequences of a human bondage more exquisite in its tortures than any other form of slavery known to man. Not until Mildred died in the depths of human suffering and degradation was Philip freed from the shackles of an unfathomable devotion.

If one can accept the bizarre premise upon which Mr. Maugham has founded his fable, there will be found in "Of Human Bondage," as it is brought to the screen, many of the attributes of greatness. It symbolizes the oddities of its central character, impersonated by Mr. Howard, with many eloquent touches. He is first club-footed and keenly sensitive concerning his physical infirmity. As the ties that chain him to the unworthy object of his great love begin to loosen, he is cured and walks like other men, without a limp. The hopelessness of his bondage to the former slavey is deftly emphasized by his perpetual surrender to her blandishments at the sacrifice of greater and worthier affections felt for him by other women.

It is a character that is not so complex as it is helpless, forlorn and infinitely pathetic. To this baffled figure Leslie Howard brings a shrewd and tremendously appealing realism. He plays with utmost restraint, a quiet, well-paced tempo and the sure strength of an artist cast in a slightly unpleasant assignment.

Much more flamboyant in both appearance and method is Bette Davis in the role of the girl. Never before has Miss Davis approached anything so versatile, so deeply distasteful, so admirably executed, as this study in feminine duplicity, moral turpitude and utter ruthlessness. It marks the high point of achievement in her screen career to date.

Contrasting feminine roles are played with concentrated stress on the womanly virtues by Kay Johnson and Frances Dee, both of whom acquit themselves well. Among the supporting males, Reginald Owen, Alan Hale and Reginald Denny are to be commended for important tasks performed with intelligence and skill.

Direction and Auxiliaries.

Save for a too constant use of the camera device of the "lap dissolve," John Cromwell's direction is on the side of a serious, thoughtful and accurate transcription of one of Maugham's most famous works into the terms of the cinema.

An especially interesting newsreel, a Scrappy cartoon comedy, "Scrappy's Relay Race," and the personal appearance of Arthur Reilly in a simulation of a radio broadcast are the brief auxiliaries of a feature that overwhelmingly dominates the bill and may not easily be shaken out of mind.

Having suggested in this space yesterday, with almost uncanny clairvoyance, that Sidney Lust probably was holding out on press and public, along came word yesterday afternoon that the Baer-Carnera fight pictures are being held over today, tomorrow and Saturday at Mr. Lust's Cameo Theater in Mount Rainier, Md. Next week they will be shown in his Arcade Theater in Hyattsville. And while we are on the topic of Mr. Lust's idiosyncrasies, it may be noted that come this Saturday night, his Hippodrome Theater, on New York avenue at Ninth, will be closed temporarily for a complete overhauling, renovation, redecoration and the installation of new seats. So now you know.

Columbia Players Elect.

Dorothea Lewis, Washington newspaper woman, actress and playwright, has been elected president of the Columbia Players, one of the Capital's foremost amateur acting groups, for the ensuing year. Other officers chosen at last week's election include Jane Ruby, vice president; Dorothy White, secretary, and Joe Bourne, treasurer.

Miss Lewis has been active in local theatricals for several years and was a winner of the first award for diction in a recent one-act play tournament conducted under the auspices of the Community Center Department. She is the author of several plays, the most recent of which, "Second-Act Curtain," was produced by the Columbia Players a few months ago.

Mrs. Ruby, a newcomer to the National Capital, is technical director for this group. She is a graduate of the School of Drama at Carnegie Tech in Pittsburgh.

Eileen Fowler, Robert Miller and B. A. P. Doehrer will constitute the new board of directors for the year. All three are well known to Washington audiences and have had considerable experience in staging the productions of the Columbia Players and other local amateur organizations.

Wesley Eddy, former master of ceremonies at the Palace, who is returning to town for a week or two of personal appearances at the Earle Theater, beginning tomorrow, will greet his old friends at an informal cocktail party in the Garbo room of the Shoreham Hotel tonight at 10. Wesley formed many close friendships here during his record stay on F street and has kept them all in good repair by many subsequent stellar appearances on local stages in vaudeville. Welcome "home," fella!

A Local Premiere.

A Broadway "try-out," or manuscript, play is announced by the Roadside Theater as its fourth presentation, scheduled for presentation July 31 to August 4, two weeks after "Murder in the Red Barn," next week's offering.

"Welcome to His Excellency," a comedy by Douglas Griesemer, former newspaper man and for the past 11 years director of public information and roll call for the American Red Cross, will be produced for the first time on any stage by the local "barn" group through special arrangement with the author and his New York agent, Freida Fishbein. The play is to be given a further try-out later in the summer at the White Rose Lake Theater in Livingston Manor, New York.

Although he has written numerous one-act plays and skits for the Gridiron Club dinners and the like, this is Mr. Griesemer's first essay at a three-act drama. "Welcome to His Excellency" pokes fun at the very punctilious "career" diplomat, contrasting with him the Midwestern business man appointed to the post of Minister to Serbania, whose byword is efficiency.

Dorothy Young and Gilbert Kiame, youthful dancers appearing this week on the Shoreham Terrace, take great pride in their ancestry. And it is not that their family trees are loaded down with great dancers. Something else, quite.

Dorothy Young, a striking brunette, is the daughter of the Rev. Robert S. Young, D. D., and Mrs. Young, of Asbury Park, N. J. Dr. Young is pastor of the Asbury Park Methodist Church and for eight years was health commissioner of New York. Dorothy's great-grandfather was the first mayor of Louisville, Ky.

Gilbert Kiame is the son of Majeeb Kiame, prominent silk manufacturer in New York, with offices and showrooms on exclusive Madison avenue. Kiame, pere, was decorated by the French government for his philanthropic work in Syria. It was he who introduced silk underwear, so Ruth Barnard tells me, to America in 1914. I wouldn't know about that.

Nostalgia Note.

I knew I never should have looked at those newsreel shots of the President enjoying himself in the West Indies. Once you live in the tropics it never gets out of your blood any more than grease paint or printer's ink!

Class in Life Saving Planned by Red Cross

Fredericksburg, Va., July 12 (Spl.).—Life-saving lessons will be given at Fairview Beach, near here, during the week of July 23 by the American Red Cross of King George and Orange Counties.

Everettt King, former CWA safety director here, will conduct the courses for men and women.

Why Feminine Hearts Will Flutter

Two of the cinema's most popular male stars appear in new films coming to the local screens this week. Above at left will be recognized George Brent, importantly cast with Myrna Loy and Lionel Atwill in "Stamboul Quest," opening as chief film feature at Loew's Fox on Friday. At right is an excellent likeness of Leslie Howard, the distinguished young English actor who opened on the silver sheet at RKO-Keith's yesterday, opposite Bette Davis in "Of Human Bondage," reviewed on this page.

Theaters Announce Programs To Enliven Amusement Week

Vincent Lopez, Leo Carillo and Wesley Eddy Are Among Personalities Heading Stage Bills; the New Film Fare.

Making his first appearance on a Capital stage in many years, Vincent Lopez and his orchestra will headline the vaudeville portion of the bill opening at Loew's Fox Theater tomorrow. In addition to his band, Lopez will bring with him a complete revue utilizing something in excess of an hour's running time. Included among his artists are the Saxon Sisters, singing personalities; the Gaudschmidt Brothers, comedians; Florence and Alvarez, dancers, and Edna Sedgewick. The screen feature will be "Stamboul Quest," starring Myrna Loy, supported by George Brent, C. Henry Gordon, Lionel Atwill and Douglas Dumbrill. This spy story was written by Leo Birinski, author of "Mata Hari." The usual house features will complete the bill.

• • • •

Two stage celebrities will coheadline the vaudeville bill at the Earle Theater, beginning tomorrow, in the talented persons of Leo Carillo and Wesley Eddy. It was Mr. Carillo who played the part of Wallace Beery's chief henchman in "Viva Villa." He also was aboard the Warners' "Forty-Second Street Special" and appeared at the Daniel Frohman Actors' Fund Benefit at the Belasco the night of March 5, 1933. Mr. Eddy needs no introduction to the Capital, holding all records for male masters of ceremonies by virtue of an engagement of 70-odd weeks at Loew's Palace. He has appeared here in vaudeville many times since. On the screen, the chief attraction will be "Fog Over Frisco," cofeaturing Betty Davis and Donald Woods. Short subjects and orchestra will round out the entertainment.

• • • •

The world's funniest family, "The Merry Frinks," will romp across the screen of the Metropolitan Theater for one week, beginning tomorrow, with Aline MacMahon, Guy Kibbee, Allen Jenkins and Hugh Herbert impersonating the principal characters. The short subjects which will complete the two-and-a-half-hour program will include a full newsreel, a travel subject, "I Am From Siam;" George Givot and Charlie Judels in "Salted Sea Nuts;" Little Jack Little, in a songreel and a novelty offering, "A Penny a Peep."

• • • •

That juvenile sweetheart of the American picture-going public, little 5-year-old Shirley Temple, will continue her conquest of downtown Washington, beginning tomorrow, as star of "Little Miss Marker," chief screen feature of the new bill at Loew's Columbia. In this subject, the tiny star is accorded splendid support by Adolphe Menjou, Lynne Overman, the late Dorothy Dell, Sam Hardy, Charles Bickford and scores of others. Short sound subjects and Paramount Sound News will augment the feature.

• • • •

Following the engagement of Myrna Loy and William Powell in Dashiell Hammett's "The Thin Man," at the Palace, the major attraction will be Ronald Colman in "Bulldog Drummond Strikes Back," in which the principal feminine role is played by Loretta Young. The customary short-reel subjects will supplement the feature. The present indication is that "The Thin Man" will break all summertime records on F street by continuing a third consecutive week at the Palace, beginning tomorrow.

With the perfectly appointed Crystal Pool increasing in popularity as the hot weather continues, and all of the other 50, or more, amusement devices in full operation, Glen Echo Park is daily attracting crowds of "vacationers" who find in this 40-acre amusement resort all of the necessary elements of an enjoyable outing. Especially popular is the Spanish Garden Ballroom, where MacWilliams' Orchestra plays every night, except Sunday, for dancing.

• • • •

Whipped by the cooling breezes of Chesapeake Bay, Seaside Park, down at Chesapeake Beach, Md., is enjoying one of its most successful seasons. Many new improvements have been added to the park this year and motion pictures and old-fashioned dances are put on several times a week. Ample facilities for picnicking are provided free of charge and there is both bay swimming and bathing in the huge salt-water pool to be enjoyed by those who go in for water sports.

Beginning next Tuesday and continuing for five nights, the Roadside Theater will present the second of its old-time melodramas, "Murder in the Red Barn," in its "barn" playhouse out at Halpine, Md., 6 miles beyond Bethesda. This is an old English tale of murder and violence that is expected to score as decisively as "The Octoroon."

Eddie Cantor Pays Dubious Tribute to 'Ship of Desert;' Anna May Wong en Route Home to Hollywood; Intimate Items From the Boulevard.

By Grace Kingsley.

Hollywood, July 11.—Eddie Cantor is now riding camels for his next Goldwyn comedy. And one gathers that as a means of transportation Eddie doesn't think much of camels.

"They may be ships of the desert," said Eddie, "but nobody would call them speedboats. I can go faster by hand. I've had to ride all kinds of animals in pictures—horses, lions, bulls and now camels. Pretty soon Sam Goldwyn will run out of animals, and then I'll be out of pictures."

ANNA MAY WONG.

Nevertheless, despite riding camels and such like adventuring, Cantor has managed to keep up his literary work. Within the next few weeks there will appear a magazine article entitled "You Ought to Be in Pictures." In chatting about it yesterday, Eddie stressed that it is a subtle warning to the stage-struck to stay away from Hollywood. But don't be alarmed by that. It is going to be just as funny as the other things Cantor has written, judging from some of the excerpts from it.

Anna May Wong Returning.

En route back to her native city, Los Angeles, Anna May Wong, Chinese motion picture and stage star, was scheduled to sail from London on the Aquitania on July 7. She is to play the leading role with George Raft in "Limehouse Nights" for Paramount, you know. She may not be here in time for the beginning of the picture, however, as she is to take special medical treatment in the East.

"I'm going to be awfully glad to get back to my family and Hollywood," post cards Miss Wong.

Scouts Enjoy Outdoor Life At Two Camps

Sports and Training Hit Full Stride for Summer.

Coming Events.

Tomorrow, 7:30 p. m.—Courts at Peck Chapel.

July 19—"Imu" Day at Camp Roosevelt.

July 20—Scout Day at Chevy Chase Pool.

July 21, 7:30 p. m.—Courts at Camp Wilson.

July 28, 1:30 p. m.—Courts at Peck Chapel.

August 17, 18 and 19—Regional Camporee in Herring Run Park.

Camp Roosevelt opened with one of the largest first-period enrollments in history. The camp is completely filled for the second period and indications are that there will be large enrollments for the third period. Officials are urging early applications for the third period, which will open July 23, and the fourth period, August 6. Physical examinations are held every Thursday at 7:30 p. m., at Scout Headquarters.

Enthusiasm is running high at Camp Wilson, where a full program is in full swing. Many Scouts are coming to Camp Wilson for weekends and for one or two day stays, and many others are spending longer periods there.

Many of the boys at Camp Wilson have beautified the landscape adjacent to their tents and are building combinations of fireplace and oven. For such activities certain credits are given.

Honor Scout Selection.

The second issue of the Camper informs that Camp Wilson has adopted a new system in determining honor Scouts. A blue ribbon is awarded the Scout who acquires the largest number of points each day; a red ribbon goes to the second. The points are based on attendance at reveille, camp site inspection, fatigue duty, food preparation and personal appearance. Jack Firestone, without previous experience in camping, set up his own tent and in one week won the honor ribbon.

Interest in horseshoe pitching is keen, and a Ringers Club of the Campus has been formed, with five members to date. To join the club, a Scout or Scouter must pitch two or more consecutive ringers.

A milk-drinking contest is enjoyed daily.

Camp Wilson is found to be a bird sanctuary. One who may be wakeful about dawn any morning may be entertained for about an hour with a beautiful carillon.

Sunday Services.

At Camp Wilson the boys set up their own camp, cook their own meals, beautify their own grounds, and otherwise foster a spirit of independence.

At services Sunday morning the Scouts themselves interpreted in their own words the moral code of youth.

The vesper services Sunday evening at 5 p. m. will be led by the Rev. Mr. Paul Scherer, of Takoma Presbyterian Church. Adults and Scouts of any denomination are invited.

A new ranch has been established at Camp Roosevelt to be known as San Juan Hill Ranch, located on the hill formerly occupied by the older boys' camp. Bill Leith, former camp director, is in charge of the ranch.

Among features planned for the near future will be an Emu style dinner on July 19.

Linn C. Drake of the District of Columbia Council is camp director.

Camp Wilson Court.

At the Camp Wilson court of honor and review, held July 7, the following Scouts advanced in rank:

Advanced to first class—Troop 221, Harry Rimmer.

Advanced to second class—Troop 9, James Miller, Robert Welch and Francis Lazzard; Troop 10, Walter Davis; Troop 43, Harrison Meserole; Troop 221, John William; Troop 204, Millard Blum, jr.; Troop 234, Ted Lynch.

Qualified for merit badges—Clifton Plummer, Troop 10, music; Troop 83, Howard Sites, athletics, swimming; Troop 85, Charles Craft, agriculture, animal industry, beef production, first aid, swimming and safety; Troop 201, Fielder Magruder, handicraft and masonry and personal health; Troop 208, Elmer Wilds, swimming; Troop 209, Douglas Dozier, camping and life saving; Troop 221, William Rimmer, camping and masonry and zoology; Troop 233, Wilmer Hawthorne, metal work.

Courts of Award.

The court of honor committee has aprpoved four annual courts of award, instead of three, as in the past. Applications for eagle badges must be filed at Scout headquarters at least two weeks, and life and star badges at least one week before courts of awards, under a new ruling, to which no exception will be made.

Courts of award will be held in September, December, March and June. The next court of award will be September 22. The last date for filing eagle applications will be September 8; life and star, September 15.

Imus—July 19 and August 16.

Harry Cutler announces two Imu days at Camp Roosevelt, Thursday, July 19, and Thursday, August 16.

Summer School Students For Fourth Period.

Scouts attending summer school, which closes August 7, can arrange to come to Camp Roosevelt the afternoon of that day, thus getting in practically a full fourth period at camp.

Patrol Energizing Program.

The Patrol Energizing Program started July 1. It offers a means by which natural patrols of a troop may qualify themselves, their individual members, and their troop for the standard rating. Patrols may qualify in the summer period of July, August and September by having at least half of their members at an approved camp for at least one week.

Scouts' Swimming Days.

Opportunity for Scouts to swim in the McKinley Pool are provided each Tuesday and Thursday at 9:30 a. m. Bring bathing suit and towel. Similar opportunities are provided at the Takoma Park pool each Monday and Wednesday at 9:30 a. m.

Free Baseball on Fridays.

Scouts in uniform will be admitted to Friday ball games—when held—at the Griffith Stadium.

Training Courses.

Registration is being made now for the elements of scoutmastership course to begin Thursday, and for the principles course to begin October 1.

Rover Crew Meeting.

Richard Rule invites Scouts or Scouters 17 years old or older, who are interested in Rover Scouting to meet Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock, at 1324 Eighteenth street northwest.

Staff Increase Sought For Meter Inspection

Increase in the number of inspectors of the weights and measures department of the District was urged yesterday by George M. Roberts, superintendent.

The additional inspectors, Mr. Roberts said, will be needed to keep a check on gas and electric meters. The Public Utilities Commission formerly assigned men to make these inspections, but the drastic slash made by the House in its funds for the current year required dismissal of 14 employes.

$10,000 Damage Asked For Injuries on Ice

The Capital Transit Co. was named defendant in a damage suit for $10,000, filed in the District Supreme Court yesterday by Jesse C. DeVilbiss, 2937 Macomb street northwest, who charged the company with negligence through its alleged failure to remove snow and ice on a loading platform at Fourteenth and U streets northwest. The plaintiff slipped on the ice and sustained serious injuries.

Miss Thomas' Funeral Held at Takoma Park

Funeral services were held yesterday for Miss Olive E. Thomas, 89, who died Wednesday at the residence of Mrs. Ethel Persons, in Takoma Park, Md. The Rev. H. L. Shoup, pastor of the Sligo Seventh Day Adventist Church, officiated.

A native of Illinois, she is survived by her sister, Miss Kate A. Thomas, of Omaha, Nebr. Burial was in the Washington Memorial Park.

D. F. Williams Resigns For Columbus U. Post

David F. Williams, clerk to Judge Gus A. Schuldt, of Police Court, has resigned his position to become registrar of Columbus University, Dean John R. Fitzpatrick announced yesterday.

Williams holds the degrees of LL. B., and LL. M., both of which were granted by Columbus. He is a member of the District bar.

Strange as it seems, Sir Thomas Lipton, who for 30 years vainly tried to win in an America's Cup race, was a yachtsman only in the sense that he was a celebrated yacht owner. His enthusiasm for yacht racing was limited to his pride of owning a boat which he hoped might win. Above all he was a showman.

Sir Thomas never sailed on any of his five challengers in an America's Cup race—in fact he seldom boarded them at all. Even during the races which became famous throughout the world as races which Lipton always lost, he often sat on his steam yacht without knowing which of the racing boats was ahead.

His sportsmanship won admiration and friendship of the American people—and in New York, admirers once gave him a cup as the world's champion good loser. Lipton knew how to win friendship—although he was an English nobleman he laid a wreath on the grave of the last survivor of the Boston Tea Party. Tea was the commodity on which the Lipton fortune was founded.

Plants, Flowers Attractions On Post Hike to Paint Branch

Pool Near Devil's Den Is Spot for Swim on Trip This Sunday.

By Robert Shosteck.

The swimming pool near Devil's Den on Paint Branch and the interesting orchids and insect-eating plants in the wildflower preserve at Powdermill Bogs will be the attractions of Sunday's trip of the Wanderbirds Hiking Club, a group sponsored by The Washington Post.

Club members and Post readers planning to go on this trip along the Paint Branch will meet at 11 a. m. in front of The Post Building at Fourteenth and E streets northwest. Buses will take the hikers to Hollywood, and along the road to Paint Branch School, beyond which the group disembarks. The round-trip fare will be 50 cents, the buses leaving the branch near Columbia road at 6 p. m.

The Powdermill Bogs are located near a crossroads, just beyond the school. Many of our most beautiful orchids make their home in this bog, now a wildflower preserve. Many striking varieties such as the pogonia and the habenaria or lady's tresses are now in flower. One of the rarest herbs about Washington, the insect-eating pitcher plant, is found in this bog. This plant has tubular leaves, the inner surface of which is covered with stiff hairs, pointing downward. The insects which are attracted to these leaves enter in search of nectar, never to leave in the face of the obstructing hairs. They perish in their vain attempts to escape, falling to the bottom, where the plant absorbs them.

Second Insect-Loving Plant.

The other insect-loving plant, the sundew, captures its prey in a different manner. This bog-dweller bears long hairs upon its flat leaf. These hairs, furnished with a nectary bait at their tips, fold over and pin down the insect which alights upon it in search of sweets. Once pinned down by these hairs, the insect is slowly absorbed by the leaf.

One of the tiniest mammals in the world, a bog shrew, makes its home along the runways in the wet sphagnum moss which abounds in these bogs. A house mouse would look like a big cat to this tiny beast. The speckled tortoise and the mud turtle also inhabit this interesting bog. The former species is easily distinguished by the yellow spots on its back.

Leaving the bog, the hikers will proceed along the dirt road to the Paint Branch Bridge, entering at this point the trail which follows the branch along its left bank. The sites of several Algonquin villages lie in the hills above the branch. Working tools, spears and arrows often may be picked up in the nearby plowed fields.

Paint Branch Valley.

The Paint Branch Valley resembles the Northwest Branch region with its boulder-strewn valley bed and the laurel-covered hillsides. The trail up the run is well-worn and, generally free of obstructing underbrush. A cool spring is situated just off the trail about 1 mile above the bridge. This is a suitable place for an early afternoon stop for lunch.

Devil's Den is about 3½ miles up Paint Branch. This interesting den lies along a branch of the run, just above the concrete dam which impounds the waters of the the branch and provides the hikers with such an excellent swimming place. From the dam to Columbia road is but a half mile. The buses will await the hikers at a church on the left side of the road a half mile from the bridge over Paint Branch.

Hikers should bring along their lunch, a drinking cup, and avoid high heels and shorts. Club emblems and membership cards will be available to those members who have not yet received theirs. Next Sunday's trip through the National Arboretum and to Shaw's Water Lily Gardens in Kenilworth will be announced in next Friday's Post.

Those planning to go on this trip to Paint Branch, and all other trips by bus are urged to phone in reservations on Saturday, National 4200.

Society Will Ask Island's Purchase

Leonardtown, Md., July 12 (Spl.). The Colonial Dames of southern Maryland will meet Sunday from 2 to 4 p. m. at St. Clements Island, now known as Blackstones Island, to formulate plans to petition the Maryland Legislature to purchase the island on which the 40-foot tercentenary cross was dedicated on March 25.

The planting of a memorial on this spot was the work of this organization, and its president, Mrs. Frank Parran, of Baltimore feels the State of Maryland should own this shrine, which marks the beginning of religious toleration in America.

Mr. Richard Poor Weds Miss Margaret English

Elaborate Gown of Old Lace Presented to Bride By Mother Adds Old-Fashioned Charm to Ceremony at St. Alban's Church.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

The extravagantly romantic era of the twentieth century, when clothes were gorgeous and painstaking workmanship was put into them was depicted yesterday at the wedding of Miss Margaret Key English, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Merton A. English, to Mr. Richard Longstreet Poor, son of Mrs. Charles Longstreet Poor, and the late Capt. Poor, of New Orleans.

The ceremony was performed at 4:30 o'clock in St. Alban's Church by the Rev. Dr. George Fiske Dudley in the presence of a large company of friends and relatives. The chancel was banked with palms and ferns, and bouquets of pink gladioli and blue delphinium decorated the altar. Tall standards filled with these flowers were placed at intervals along the aisle through which the bridal procession passed to the altar.

The bride, who was escorted and given in marriage by her father, wore her mother's wedding gown of snowy white Honiton lace made 27 years ago. It was only slightly changed to fit the young bride of yesterday. The sleeves, puffed above the elbow, the high lace collar left stiff with tiny whalebones and the gathers over the hips, were all exactly as they had been planned at the beginning of the century. Under the fine lace were petticoats and still more petticoats, ruffled and belaced, and over them all a slip of white taffeta shirred and rusched, and at the hemline, layers of filmy chiffon.

New and Old Contrast.

The voluminous veil of white illusion was caught with tiny clusters of orange blossoms, and the bride carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley.

The bridesmaids' costumes, which were of the latest 1934 fashion, harmonized beautifully with the old-fashioned gown of the bride. They were of a delicate rosebud shade of mousseline de soie fashioned with short puffed sleeves and skirts of ruffled tiers, over rustling taffeta slips. The bridesmaids' hats were of horsehair to match their gowns and they wore organdie gloves of the same shade. All carried bouquets of pink Briarcliff roses.

Miss Mildred English, twin sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Edward B. Yonker, Miss Mary Katheryne Spinks, Mrs. George Augustus Berry, Miss Betty West, Miss Katherine Pearson and Miss Peggy Poor, sister of the bridegroom.

Jane Bacon Flower Girl.

Little Jane Robeman Bacon was the flower girl, and wore a flesh-pink net frock with an "Alice in Wonderland" ribbon in her hair, and carried a basket of pink rose petals.

Mr. Merton A. English, jr., brother of the bride, was Mr. Poor's best man, and the ushers were Mr. Frederick Austin, of New York; Mr. Winton Elliott, Mr. John English, another brother of the bride; Mr. Bradford Swope, Mr. Millard West and Mr. George Augustus Berry.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents on Massachusetts avenue followed the ceremony. The house was decorated with pink roses and delphinium. The bridal couple received before a screen of palms. They were assisted by Mrs. English, who wore a gown of pale blue lace with a hat to match; Mrs. Poor, mother of the bridegroom, and his grandmother, Mrs. Samuel Cleveland, of New Orleans.

The bride's table was centered with a huge wedding cake wreathed with white roses and lilies of the valley.

Reside at Pensacola.

Mr. Poor and his bride left later for a wedding trip, the latter traveling in a smart white linen suit with white accessories. They will make their home for the next three months in Pensacola, Fla.

The bride, who was graduated from Holton Arms School, was presented to society last winter at a tea given for her and her twin sister, Miss Mildred English by their parents.

Mr. Poor attended St. Paul's School, and was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1933. He is also a graduate of Kelly Field and is being assigned to Pensacola for station. He is a descendant of Gen. Longstreet of the Confederate Army.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mrs. Linday Maus, of Baltimore; Mrs. Roscoe Carlisle Bulmer, of Annapolis; Mr. and Mrs. Throop Geer, and Mr. Throop Geer, jr., of New York; Dr. and Mrs. Winthrop Wilcox, of Collingwood, N. J.; Mrs. William Austin, of Long Island; Mr. and Mrs. George Murphy, Miss Dora Wilcox and Miss Gladys Wilcox, of Wellsboro, Pa.

Mr. Lockwood, Miss Gleason Are Married

Department of Commerce Assistant Weds at St. Alban's.

A charming wedding of great interest to Washington took place yesterday in St. Alban's Church, that of Miss Ann Frances Gleason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Jewell Gleason, who became the bride of Mr. Warren Sewell Lockwood, Assistant Trades Commissioner in the Foreign Service Division of the Department of Commerce, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren J. Lockwood, of Englewood, N. J.

The ceremony took place at 6 o'clock with Dr. Charles T. Warner, rector of St. Alban's, officiating, and Dr. William Robinson, of Newark, N. J., grandfather of the bridegroom, assisting.

The church was decorated with white midsummer flowers and lighted candles on the altar. An organ recital of wedding music was part of the service.

Father Escorts Bride.

The bride, who was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin and lace, with a yoke effect of lace in the back of the bodice, and long puffed and pointed sleeves of lace. Her tulle veil was simply arranged with small clusters of orange blossoms on either side falling to the end of the train. She carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor was Miss Mary Louise Gleason, sister of the bride, who wore a charming gown of rose mousseline de soie, the long, full skirt having a deep band of brown of the same material at the hem. The short puffed sleeves were banded with brown. She wore a small, brown hat with a tiny veil and carried roses.

Mr. Lockwood was best man for his son and the ushers were Mr. Gardner Richardson, of the Department of Commerce; Mr. Herbert Lockwood, cousin of the bridegroom; Mr. Lambert O'Donnel, Mr. Cedric Gleason, brother of the bride, and Mr. Richard Montgomery.

Dartmouth Graduate.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents for the bridal party and few close friends. The couple were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Gleason, parents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Lockwood, parents of the bridegroom. The grandfather of the bridegroom and the grandmother of the bride also assisted.

Mr. Lockwood, a graduate of Dartmouth College, is a member of Lambda Chi Alpha and Phi Beta Kappa fraternities.

Later Mr. Lockwood and his bride left Washington for a wedding trip, the latter wearing a white string suit with a hat of the same material, and white accessories. Upon their return they will make their home in Washington.

Louise Moore Becomes Bride Of Dr. Crain

Wedding Ceremony Held at Eckington Church; Leave on Trip.

Miss Louise Moore, daughter of Mrs. Lillian Leota Moore, became the bride of Dr. Darrell C. Crain, jr., at a ceremony performed yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock by the Rev. H. B. Wooding in the Eckington Presbyterian Church.

The church was decorated with standards of pink gladioli and blue delphinium, and the ceremony was followed by a reception at Wardman Park Hotel.

The bride wore a Juliet gown of ivory white satin fashioned on long, fitted lines, with insets of lace in the sleeves and bodice. The veil of tulle was held by a Juliet cap of net, and fell to the end of the long pointed train of the gown. The bride carried a bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Charles W. Jenkins, who before her marriage on June 21 was Miss Ethel Pote, wore a gown of pink organza made with a brief jacket and a gored skirt. Her hat was of blue horsehair, and she carried a bouquet of pink roses and gysophelia in a blue lace holder.

The bridemaids, Miss Lucille Crain, Miss Naomi Crain and Miss Eleanor Harty wore frocks of blue organza with large pink hats and carried colonial bouquets like that of the maid of honor. Roland Woodfield was ringbearer and wore a suit of white satin. Mr. Alan Crain was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Mr. Oscar Brand, Dr. Rapheal Edmonston, Mr. William Dismer and Mr. Louis Nichols.

Dr. Crain and his bride left immediately after the reception for a wedding trip, the latter wearing a powder blue and white ensemble with white accessories. They will be at home in a few weeks at 7611 Georgia avenue.

Ten of her 13 children are still living. She recalls that on July 13, 1861, the first officer to be killed in the Civil War fell here at the Battle of Corricks Ford.

Miss Fisher Becomes Bride At All Souls

Wed to Dr. Strawbridge; Couple Leave on Trip After Reception.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Crosby Fisher, daughter of Mrs. John Winston Fisher and the late Dr. Fisher, of Washington, formerly of East Orange, N. J., to Dr. Francis Meilson Strawbridge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Strawbridge, took place yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in All Souls' Memorial Church. The Rev. H. H. D. Sterrett performed the ceremony.

The church was decorated with white gladioli against a background of palms and ferns. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. George P. Fryling, of Erie, Pa.

Bride Wears White.

The bride wore a princess gown of white organza made with a V neckline and short puffed sleeves. Her tulle veil held in place by a coronet of rose point lace fell over the medium-length train, and she carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Louise Jaquette was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Eugene Houghton and Miss Alice Bauer, of St. Marys, Pa. They wore frocks of organdie over taffeta slips, one yellow, one blue and one coral. Their leghorn hats were trimmed with ribbons to match their frocks and they carried bouquets of Shasta daisies with shaded delphinium. The maid of honor carried Talisman roses. Dr. George Ball was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Eugene Houghton and Mr. William Darmody.

Wedding Reception.

A reception for the wedding guests was held at the apartment of the bride's mother in Cathedral Mansions. The couple were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Fisher and Mrs. Strawbridge.

Mr. Westwood And Bride Plan European Trip

Miss Charlotte Tuttle Wed at Lake George; Will Reside Here.

Lake George, N. Y., July 12.—The attractive summer wedding of Miss Charlotte Merrill Tuttle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Tuttle, of 330 Convent avenue, New York City, to Mr. Howard Carter Westwood, of Washington, D. C., son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis C. Westwood, of Tecumseh, Nebr., took place Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in St. James Episcopal Church, Lake George. The bride's grandfather, the late Dr. Isaac H. Tuttle, of New York City, came to Lake George in 1848 and was instrumental in the building of St. James Church.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mr. Charles H. Tuttle. The ceremony was performed by the rector, the Rev. Edward M. Parrott. Miss Helene Jasmine Tuttle, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Mr. H. Croswell Tuttle, brother, was best man.

The bride was attired in cream satin, Empire style, with a short train, a square-necked bertha of old lace, and tiny puffed sleeves. Her tulle veil was held in place by clusters of orange blossoms, and she wore long silk-meshed mitts and carried an arm bouquet of calla lillies.

Fifth to Wear Gown.

Mrs. Westwood is the fifth bride in the family to wear the wedding gown, which was first worn by her mother, and her two aunts, Mrs. Frank G. Conkling, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Mrs. C. Beresford Fox, of Geneva, Switzerland, and the bride's sister, Mrs. Charles F. Horne, jr., of Annapolis, Md. Miss Jasmine Tuttle, the bride's younger sister, will be the next to wear it.

The ushers were Mr. William H. Wheeler and Mr. Irwin Wheeler, of New York City, uncles of the bride, and Mr. Robert Treman Smith, of Lake George and New York City.

A reception followed at the Tuttles' estate, Rockledge, on the Bolton road. About 200 guests attended.

After a six-week tour of Norway, Sweden, Denmark and England, Mr. and Mrs. Westwood will reside in Washington, where they will be at home after September 1. They will both practice law, being graduates of Columbia Law School.

Graduate of Vassar.

The bride was graduated from Vassar in 1931, and Columbia Law School this month. She is a member of Phi Beta Kappa. While at Columbia she was a member of the board of editors of the Columbia Law Review. Her father formerly was United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York.

Mr. Westwood attended Swarthmore College and was graduated in 1933 from Columbia Law School, where he also was on the editorial board of the Columbia Law Review. For the past year he has been law clerk to Justice Harlan F. Stone, of the United States Supreme Court.

Mayor LaGuardia, who has known the bride and bridegroom since they were youngsters, was among the guests. Mr. Westwood's family was represented by his sister, Miss Virginia Westwood, and his cousin, Miss Elizabeth Westwood Lee, of New York.

Chicago to Honor Envoy of Soviet

The Ambassador of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and Mme. Troyanovsky left Washington yesterday for Chicago, where today they will be the guests of honor at the Century of Progress Exposition. Today is U. S. S. R. Day at the exposition.

When the Ambassador arrives at the fair this morning he will receive the military salute and later he and Mme. Troyanovsky will be the guests of honor at a luncheon at which Mr. Rufus Dawes, president of the exposition, will be host. The Ambassador will give a talk over the radio following the luncheon. The Troyanovskys will return to their home at Bluemont, Va., on Saturday.

Mr. Peter A. Bogdanov, chairman of the Amtorg Trading Corporation, accompanied them on the trip.

Page County Gets Services of Nurse

Luray, Va., July 12 (Spl.).—Miss Dorothy Smith, Luray, directress of FERA operations in Page County, has obtained the services of a public nurse for the county.

For a number of years county organizations have tried to obtain the services of a public nurse whose work would cover the county districts of Shenandoah, Marksville, Luray and Springfield.

The nurse will begin work August 1. Employment of the nurse was sanctioned by the Page County Board of Supervisors.

Prince Ourusoff's Son Is Christened

Tea Follows Ceremony at Chevy Chase Home.

Prince Leonide Ourusoff and Princess Ourusoff entertained at a small tea Wednesday afternoon in their home in Chevy Chase, following the christening of their infant son, Serge.

The Rev. John Dorash officiated at the christening ceremony. Miss Elizabeth Beall was godmother and Mr. James Manville Carlisle, brother of Princess Ourusoff, was godfather, a proxy standing for him on Wednesday as he is with his mother, Mrs. Joseph F. Barnes, wife of Col. Barnes, at Fort Ethan Allen, Vt.

More Good Cooks, Less Divorces, Believes Home Economics Teacher

Moreover, Statistics Stand Back of Her Emphatic Statement.

By Virginia Lee Warren.

THE world has changed, even progressed, in the last century or so, but one thing remains the same: the shortest road to a man's heart still lies through his stomach.

And if more women today knew how to cook, how to sew, how to run their homes properly, there would be a larger number of halcyon marriages, believes Mrs. O. A. Anderson, home economics instructor at Eastern High School, and recently elected president of the District Home Economics Association.

"The divorce rate would drop to almost nothing if every girl took only four semesters of home economics," she said yesterday at her home in Somerset place.

She has more than personal belief back of her statement. There are statistics—imposing ones—from the University of Nebraska, where she took part of her training.

"Although most of the graduates in home economics have married, less than 1 per cent of them have been divorced, while more than 10 per cent of graduates in other courses have had their marriages dissolved," she said.

Single Men Approve Cooks.

Mrs. Anderson has discovered single men yearn to marry girls who can manage egg-beaters as expertly as tennis racquets, who can plan distinctive menus as well as distinctive wardrobes.

Often the Andersons entertain small groups at their home. Invariably before the evening is over, at least one man will draw the hostess aside and whisper, "can't you teach them how to plan refreshments that are new and different?"

Even the woman who will always depend upon servants to do her cooking and other housework should take a course in home economics, believes Mrs. Anderson.

"Any woman who goes through the course is bound to have a certain respect for the person who can turn out a delicious meal with a minimum of effort and fuss," she said. "I don't know anything that would go further toward broadening the outlook of women of the so-called upper class toward their employes than a good stiff course in home economics."

Give every girl a course in home economics and the divorce rate will drop to almost nothing, declares Mrs. O. A. Anderson, home economics instructor at Eastern High School and president of the District Home Economics Association.

It has always been a little hard for Mrs. Anderson to understand why a girl who genuinely likes to cook and who earns her living by cooking for some family should be forced to a lower niche in the social scale than an office worker.

"I don't see why it isn't as genteel to work among pots and pans in some strange woman's kitchen as it is to pound a typewriter in some strange man's office," she said. "But a girl who makes $15 a week in a store or office usually feels snooty toward the one who makes a good deal more than that by doing housework. I think most of this attitude is built on the fact office and store workers come in contact with more men. The drug store lunch counter and the cafeteria are fertile fields for noon-time romances, I understand."

The recent economic distress did much to do away with prejudice against housework as a means of making one's living, Mrs. Anderson has learned. Several girls who studied home economics at Eastern High School have found good jobs in tea rooms, hospitals and homes.

In Eastern High School's home economic course the students are taught how to get the most for their money; not a bad thing for any woman to know.

What They Learn.

"We teach them it usually pays to buy medium-sized fruits and vegetables," said Mrs. Anderson.

"The largest oranges have the thickest skins as a rule," she continued, in her best school room manner. "The biggest potatoes have less nutritive value because they've grown too fast. And the largest apples usually cost a great deal more than the medium-sized ones, because the grocer has bought them for his fancy trade."

Lessons in child care, selection of clothing from the standpoint of beauty, as well as utility, and the nutritive values of different foods are also given. In addition to those practical things, etiquette is taught.

"That is the most popular class of all," she said.

In fact, the whole home economics course is so popular at Eastern the boys want to take domestic science.

"I think they're right in wanting to," declared Mrs. Anderson. "Boys need to know about clothes selection, etiquette, marketing and budgeting. Knowledge of those things is almost as valuable to them as it is to girls. And the man who has been taught to cook is more likely to appreciate his wife's work in preparing him good meals every day."

Business Is Looking Up.

Employment is on the increase, according to the statistics from Harvard's Business School.

Officials say both students and graduates report a decided increase in employment and in the amount of wages they receive as compared to last year.

Benefit Bingo Party to Be Held Tonight

Mother Is Worried Over Husband's Treatment of Stepdaughter.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I've read your advice to others, and wonder if perhaps you might be able to help me. I have recently married a man many years my senior. It is my second marriage, his first. He has a fine position and does not deny me anything. But there is one fly in the ointment.

I have a little girl of 10 by my first marriage. Before the present marriage my husband seemed very fond of her.

Since then, however, his attitude has changed. He seems jealous of my affection and attention. He makes her feel like an intruder in the home.

Realizing the fact that, after all, he is furnishing a home for both of us, I lean over backward to prove my loyalty to him.

His resentment against her continues to grow. His attitude naturally brings out her worst points, and it has become a vicious circle. I have begun to realize this can not go on forever. Eventually I shall have to choose between them. If you have any suggestions to offer, please don't hesitate to help a BROKEN-HEARTED MOTHER.

A Choice Advisable.

DEAR BROKEN-HEARTED: It seems to me you have answered your question in your concluding paragraph. "Eventually I shall have to choose between them."

In justice to the child, who is your first responsibility, the choice should be in her favor.

* * * *

Take the child into your confidence. Tell her you know how unhappy she is now, and that you are unhappy as she; that you know her stepfather is being unjust and unkind; that she is dearer and more important to you than he.

This may sound like disloyalty to your husband, but it is absolutely due the child, to save her unbearable suffering after separation.

* * * *

Furthermore, while I understand your desire for peace at any price, you showed regrettable lack of backbone in those instances when you sided with your husband against the child without justification.

And it isn't alone your daughter's present happiness, but her future welfare, which you must consider. For her mother to continue to fail her as she has been failed since your marriage, is to bring her eventually to embittered, scoffing, warped womanhood—despising women, hating men, distrusting marriage, and grimly determined never to bring children into the world to haplessly suffer as she had suffered.

* * * *

Remove the child to a safe distance from your husband's heckling, and then visit her at regular intervals. Regardless of your husband's possible tantrums, go to see her at stated intervals and go alone.

* * * *

There is the possibility your husband may come to his senses, when he realizes you are determined to protect your child, and assume a more humane and considerate attitude toward her and toward you. But it is not likely.

It would be rather pointless for me to go now into one-sided discussion of how you can get on your own feet, but I should be glad to advise with you on such a course as may suggest itself to you. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

What Today Means

"Cancer."

If July 13 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:45 to 1:45 p. m., from 3:45 to 5:45 p. m. and from 8:45 to 10:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:45 to 9:45 a. m., from 6:45 to 8:45 p. m. and from 10:45 p. m. until midnight.

On this July 13 people should be in a very receptive frame of mind, and pay undivided attention to any new business proposals. Certain firms may see the wisdom of their making large appropriations, so that requisitions for the right to purchase, made by some of their department heads, may be granted. The result may be a stimulation to business. You should receive or make some money on this date. You should be careful not to spend money with too lavish a hand, for you may be called upon to help a relative or friend out of an embarrassing position.

The woman born on July 13 is many times inclined to be a dreamer, and this prosaic life frequently jars her nerves rudely. If born on this date, you will be happier and more contented if you adjust yourself to the realities of life. Close your eyes to the faults of individuals and look for their virtues. It may prove a pleasant surprise to discover how many very fine qualities the average man and woman possesses. If you will allow your heart to become receptive to love, an abundance of it will be yours. You are personally well equipped to play the role of Lady Bountiful, and with a magnetic personality, you should be able to accomplish a tremendous amount of good in any line of social welfare work. Educational work is another line of endeavor, in which you should prove sucessful.

Children born on July 13, are usually alert mentally, physically fit, and good natured.

Elaborate Surprise Party Successful; Really Was a Surprise.

WASN'T it grand when you were a kid to have a surprise party sprung on you? Your friends sat in the darkened parlor, and when you entered, unsuspecting, they shouted "boo."

But how would you like to be surprised by 500 guests? That's what happened to Dr. Dexter Keezer the other evening in a Georgetown garden. It wasn't a booing demonstration that welcomed him (it isn't conceivable the junior brain trusters present would engage in such an undignified performance), but it was plenty noisy. Mrs. Mary Rumsey gave the party to surprise her former associate on the Consumers' Advisory Board of the NRA.

* * * *

It was probably the most lavish al fresco dinner given in Washington in a long time. The many candle-lit tables were set in the garden of the N street home of Mrs. Albert Simms, the former Ruth Hanna McCormick. The menu, including elaborate cucumber jelly molds and a dessert that appeared to be layer cake and was really ice cream, was delicious. A rare white wine was the accompaniment. The weather man cooperated by providing a perfect evening and a musical comedy moon.

* * * *

There were toasts and congratulatory speeches concerning Dr. Dexter Keezer's recent appointment as president of Reid College, in Portland, Oreg. A small four-page newspaper, "The Bleat," was issued to the guests. It was a hilarious takeoff on Mrs. Rumsey's advisory board, of which Dr. Keezer was a recent member.

Squabble Over Suite.

Mrs. Keezer, the former Anne Mellet, is the willowy blonde daughter of Mrs. Lowell Mellet, author of "The Ellington Brat" and other novels. Before her marriage the blonde Anne and Dorothy Cochran, a pretty girl with black hair and blue eyes, did some team work on a feature for a local newspaper.

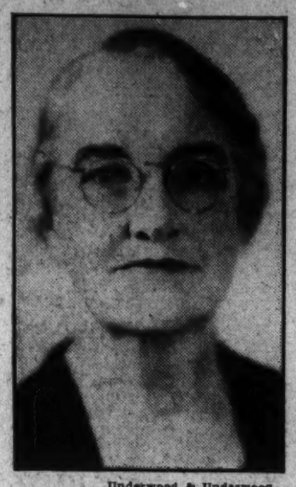
* * * *

Anne was in on the secret of the surprise party, and came dangerously near to giving it away when she insisted upon her husband having a suit cleaned a day or two beforehand. First he protested the suit did not need to be cleaned. When she insisted upon driving down town with him, taking the suit to an establishment featuring one-day service, he protested even more vehemently. Why should he pay extra, he argued with his wife, when there was no emergency that required him to have the suit in such short order.

* * * *

The situation became so acute there was quite an argument on the sidewalk in front of the cleaning establishment. Dr. Keezer told the story on himself at the party. He said the suit finally became unwrapped and fell on the dusty sidewalk. And only then was he satisfied to have it cleaned.

Veterans' Appeal Board Now Includes 3 Women



Underwood & Underwood.

MRS. THORNTON LEE BROWN.

Underwood & Underwood.

MRS. CARROLL STEWART.

Underwood & Underwood.

MRS. LUCY S. HOWORTH.

They Start New Work With Confidence, Zest and Energy.

By Mary Greiner Kelly.

TUCKING family cares and feminine emotions in their attic trunks back home, three women from far-flung corners of the Nation blazed another pioneer trail into Government service this week. Their appointments, approved by President Roosevelt, the three, representing the South, the Middle West and West Coast, are the first women to sit around the man-sized table of the Veterans' Board of Appeals in Washington.

They are Mrs. Carroll Loy Stewart, former civil service commissioner of Los Angeles; Mrs. Thornton Lee Brown, educator and speaker of National repute, of Joplin, Mo., and Mrs. Lucy S. Howorth, lawyer and legislator from Jackson, Miss.

Trained in separate fields, where sex had no part to play and individual skill was put to a crucial test, these women have entered their new jobs with zest and confidence. They have not only accepted the challenge to act as unbiased judges, but have welcomed the opportunity to set a precedent for other women to follow. They, with the 18 men members of the board, form the final court of appeal in Veterans' Administration cases.

Here Not as Women.

To those inclined to raise their eyebrows over women in such judicial and impersonal roles, Mrs. Stewart, fluffy-haired and dark-eyed, retorts:

"We are not here as women, but as citizens, willing and eager to contribute what we can from experience and judgment to a vital cause. We deeply appreciate the confidence placed in us, and of course, are determined to justify it."

Mrs. Stewart, who, as civil service commissioner of Los Angeles, assisted in acting upon claims of over 17,000 employes, has been an enthusiastic civic worker for the last 15 years. Following her appointment to the veterans' board, she drove her own car the 3,200 miles from Los Angeles to accept her new post.

Resemble Home Problems.

"Duties on the Veterans' Board of Appeals should come just as naturally to a woman as to a man," declared vivacious Mrs. Brown. "For the problems that confront this board, as well as other departments of Government, are analogous to those which arise in the administration of the ordinary home. It takes the decisions of both a man and a woman to make it complete."

Mrs. Brown, who has a daughter in the foreign service in Poland, and is the proud possessor of two grandchildren, began her public work as a school teacher in Missouri. Later, as the mother of two daughters, she became interested in health and educational administration problems as a "measure of self-defense." With a gift for speaking, her influence began to be felt at election time, especially insofar as offices bearing upon health and education were concerned.

In order to accept her present appointment, she had to resign a unique position, very dear to her heart. Mrs. Brown was the only woman special representative of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Likes Legal Side.

"Work on the Veterans' Board of Appeals should be intensely interesting from a legal as well as a judicial angle," conjectured petite, blue-eyed Mrs. Howorth. Mrs. Howorth had to desert the partnership of Howorth & Howorth as well as a seat in the Mississippi Legislature to accept her appointment.

Sponsored for the place by Senator Pat Harrison, Mrs. Howorth, although extremely youthful in appearance, has a record of achievement behind her. She was assistant in the department of psychology at Randolph-Macon Women's College in Virginia before she entered law school at the University of Mississippi.

From the latter school she graduated with first honors, and went into partnership with her husband, a widely known member of the Mississippi bar. In 1932 she followed her mother, Mississippi's first woman solon, into the State Legislature, where she was elected for two consecutive terms.

Students Show Public Interest

Professor Thinks Sudden Money Shortage Is the Cause.

THE 1933 bank moratorium did more than start banking reforms throughout the country. It pinched the pockets of some of America's wealthiest students so hard that they suddenly began taking an intense interest in public affairs.

"This interest is constantly growing," says Dr. Wilma Pugh, professor of history and sociology at Stephens College, Columbia, Mo.

"More students are taking courses in social problems than ever before. And even those who are not enrolled in the economics and sociology classes are reading all the latest books on these subjects."

Dr. Pugh is one of the five women attending the School of Public Affairs now being held at American University.

"At the School of Public Affairs, we are studying different phases of the New Deal from political, economic, and sociological aspects," she said.

The young women at Stephens are somewhat conservative in their viewpoint, Dr. Pugh states.

Lots of Color and Versatility In Men's Vacation Wardrobes

By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, July 12.—The exact items you take with you on your vacation may vary depending on where you go. But there's one common ground on which all vacation wardrobes meet . . . whether they go to the shore, the mountains, on a sea voyage or a motor trip.

That common ground is comfort plus coolness plus color plus versatility.

Considering these four points, the most popular of vacation wardrobes are made up of something like this:

Panama hats. Most men are taking at least one with them. Principally because the soft body shape of the Panama stays on the head in a breeze. At the same time it has lightness and shade to make it just about the most comfortable hat under the sun.

White suits. Either a white linen or one of tropical weight cloth. Many men pack several of them, since either a single or double breasted white suit can be worn correctly for any occasion except the most formal evening.

With the white coat, a pair of gray or tan slacks or checked or striped slacks makes a combination acceptable to any age. Reversing the combination you have the white slacks worn with flannel, tweed or gabardine sports coats.

White shirts. Plenty of these.

Blue shirts. Plenty of these, too . . . plain, striped or neatly checked.

Foulard crepe and cotton wash ties. Men aren't stinting on their color, either. Blues, reds and yellows are favorites at the popular summer resorts.

They add white socks and some pastels (striped, checked or clocked) and some anklets which need no garters. Then a pair of all-white buck shoes with wing or straight tips.

Queen Mary's Hats Change for Smaller

Royal Hemline Is Farther From Ground Now.

London, July 8 (U.P.).—Queen Mary's hats at last are undergoing a change of shape.

While those of many of her subjects are growing to immense proportions this summer, Queen Mary's get smaller and flatter.

For longer than many younger Britons can recall the Queen has appeared on every occasion in the same high, round headgear which has become famous as the "Queen Mary Toque." Pictures of her taken 20 years ago showed little sartorial change.

At the first two days of the Ascot race meeting this year, when wearers of the huge floppy "cartwheel" hats struggled to control them in the high wind, Queen Mary created a minor situation by appearing in the royal box in hats, still of the "toque" type, but smaller and lower.

Another departure from her usual style was that the hats had a slight shaping at the edge in place of their usual roundness. Most other women in the royal party wore large hats.

The Queen's conservative taste in clothes was marked when skirts were worn shorter than at present. Then her skirts remained always at ankle length.

More recently, however, some comment has been aroused by the fact that her dresses are becoming shorter. Those worn by her at the royal garden party at Buckingham Palace and at other functions this year have been at least 6 or 8 inches from the ground.

Sunset River Trip Revives Heat-Stricken

Wives Filled With Kitchen Ennui Will Enjoy Short Sail.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

TO SET sail down the river just at sunset is a glorious experience.

The hudreds of women who are fairly sick at the sight of a typewriter, the hundreds of men to whom an office seems as depressing as a tomb, housewives whose nerves are jarred by the endless routine of housework—these are the people who should slip away for a brief two-hour holiday. They are the ones who would take pleasure in a river suddenly gold in the sun, and fields and hills on either side, gold splotched too.

There's a "trip they can take, a steamer board" at 5:30 in the evening. Every night including Sunday the boat leaves the pier for a round trip to Marshall Hall Park Here it stops long enough to pick up passengers, and returns to the city at 7:45 p. m. One may carry along a basket supper, or obtain a cold-plate dinner in the steamer tea room.

There are none of the old discomforts of traveling on a boat. This modern, all steel, oil-burning steamer rides the river like a liner.

Passengers who prefer can remain at Marshall Hall, returning to Washington on the moonlight trip, leaving the park at 10:35 nightly, except Monday.

On the 5:30 sunset trip the steamer is never crowded. The cool clean air is always refreshing and guaranteed to revive the most wilted of mortals.

Men Are Interested.

It seemed rather odd so many men should be excited over a woman's face cream. But that is just what happened. First of all, the chemists in the laboratory honestly felt they had found a revolutionary product. They sent sample jars to 500 women in Baltimore and only 2 out of the 500 declined to be enthusiastic.

Then the merchandising manager of a downtown store became interested in it. A friend of his who always uses a medicated cream on his face tried a jar of this—which combines medicated qualities with those of an ordinary cream. He used it before shaving, and found it was a fine skin freshener, and, as he said over the phone, "It works miracles!" The merchandising manager's enthusiasm which had already been kindled, suddenly burst into full flame. Straightway he started using it and now, "I'm quite an addict," he says.

And yet it is primarily a woman's medicated face cream with a fragrance like crushed herbs. Used nightly it nourishes and enlivens the tissues and leaves a natural smoothness. It is extremely effective for sunburn, skin irritation, enlarged pores, rough and red hands. Besides, it will fade freckles!

It costs less than half as much as ordinary cream, and is backed by a large and reputable store.

* * * *

Italian Pottery.

The Italian pottery set in a Connecticut avenue shop costs far less now than it did several weeks ago. So those who admired it then but felt it slightly beyond their reach, have an opportunity for reconsidering.

There are two ivory colored pottery candlesticks and a large bowl; an imposing array for a centerpiece or a lovely set for a large console table. Both candlesticks and bowl are studded with bouquets in self-tone relief. Nothing pretentious, nothing cheap, simply a lovely set, exquisitely molded.

Fur in July.

A local store is showing expert knowledge of how to make a fur sale attractive in July. Do they invite their customers to sit in a hot stuffy salesroom while they bring out the still hotter looking fur coats? No! They invite their customers to rest at ease in an air-cooled compartment while they view all manner of new style coats.

There are the sumptuous cloth coats trimmed from top to bottom, aft and starboard with fox, leopard, seal, and rabbit. There are million-dollar-looking furs, sealskins, ermines, and such a variety! Some of the coats are jackets, some three-quarters, and other close to floor length. And, of course, there are all colors. It seems the most predominant is a logwood brown, a deep luscious, golden shade. There is an abundance of ripple collars, lots of front fullness, and plenty of elbow fullness, perhaps thanks to repeal.

* * * *

Bottle Bracelets.

The bottle bracelets featured now at a downtown store prove quite an aid in keeping one's bar at the pink of perfection. A dozen or so slender necks encircled with the silver bracelets bearing identification tags, port, sherry, rum, burgundy, rye, &c., give a professional and well-kept air to wine cellar, liquor closet or bar.

* * * *

Comb Jackets.

Comb and mirror cases in three shades of leather, red, white, and green, are attracting attention. Those who prefer to carry their combs in sanitary "jackets" like these. They are trim, neat, and inexpensive.

Call Ruth Anne Davis, of The Washington Post, National 4200, Extension 105, for further information. Or write, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope.

ESCAPE from the SOVIETS

By TATIANA TCHERNAVIN

Tatiana Tchernavin is telling the story of her life under the Soviet regime. In yesterday's instalment of this biography the author's husband was arrested, leaving her alone with her young son.

I DO not know how to describe the days of blank misery that followed my husband's arrest. Arrest in those days was almost equivalent to a death sentence. Every day might also be my last day of freedom. It seemed so much simpler to die—but I had to live because two other lives depended on me: a man's life there, in prison, and the life of a child who watched with helpless wonder the disappearance of the dear familiar faces around him.

The newspapers were full of events as in the days of war. First there was the horrible "Industrial Party" trial, when Ramzin, casually remarking that "about 2,000 people were connected with his organization," openly declared at the cost of how many lives he had bought his own. Then there were preparations for the "academic trial," which dealt a death blow to Russian science, especially to historical research; the fate of the accused was settled by the OGPU behind the scenes, for they obviously lacked the dramatic talent of Ramzin & Co.

More Death Sentences.

Finally, there was the disgraceful "Trial of the Mensheviks," when the former members of the Communist party made confessions and obsequious apologies, giving each other away. All this increased the sense of utter devastation that had come over the Russian intellectuals.

The more sentences of death and of penal servitude were passed, the more indifferent everyone became. It was no longer a case of individual people perishing, a whole class was being wiped out. It was like an avalanche or a hurricane sweeping everything on its way.

Soon we were going to have a general "sifting," i. e., an overhauling of the personnel of various institutions; the OGPU had not time as yet to take up each case individually.

Sifting Announced.

The sifting was announced by huge placards posted both inside and outside the buildings. They were all after the style of the one that said, "Comrade, denounce your comrades, priests, bourgeois and other counter-revolutionaries." The wording was somewhat unfortunate, but essentially correct. Under the placards stood a large letter box in which the denunciations were to be dropped.

Then, since according to Marx, everything must be based upon "the principle of productive relations," learned and scientific institutions were attached to big factories, and factory hands were put on committees to investigate the "trend" of the work and the suitability of the staff.

Good old workmen who had been minding machines for the last 20 years and uppish young men of the new type—machinists, electricians, stokers—were brought into laboratories and studies filled with books. They were shy, astonished, interested and utterly at a loss what to believe.

Like Black Magic.

It all seemed to them rather like black magic. It was hard to decide whether all these books and those elderly, spectacled scholars were doing good or harm to the proletarian state.

It looked as though the sifting might prove a failure, and the "class enemies" would—not be detected. Then members of the OGPU and the Communist party confined the inquiry to the social origin of the intellectuals, their liking for the old regime, and so on. So-and-so had once held a post in such-and-such a ministry, so perhaps he was a friend of the minister. That man's wife was a countess or a princess by birth, or a general's daughter, or something of the sort. This one, though he was not a gentleman by birth, like the others, continued to write in the old spelling, and that man there said "gentlemen" instead of "citizens" or "comrades."

No Chance to Work.

Such a method greatly simplified matters, and soon most of the experts and specialists received notices of dismissal "in the first category"—i. e., without the right to seek employment elsewhere. They looked in surprise at their 15 or 20 years of good, useful work, unable to understand what wrong they had done. They did not know which way to turn. All their life had been bound up with the institution from which they were so arbitrarily driven away. The younger men were wondering what kind of work they could adopt instead of their specialty.

The sifting lasted for a couple of months. When it was over, the authorities, after bidding amiable good-by to the bamboozled workmen, began to understand that the work of the learned institutions could not be carried on. There was no one to replace the highly-qualified specialists who had been dismissed, and so most of them were "temporarily" left at their posts. But time had been lost, work interrupted, people's nerves racked—all for the sake of a show of "proletarian watchfulness." The departments of art and science which so far had been comparatively safe, were gradually being destroyed also; the OGPU was doing away with the more gifted and prominent people, the party and local committees were breaking up the institutions by their "siftings."

Misery General.

We watched in misery the devastation all around us, and many whispered in despair that there must be some real "wreckers" in the OGPU or in the Political Bureau, bent on making all cultural work impossible and destroying the intellectuals in order that . . . though no one could surmise what could possibly be the object of it.

But I did not care any longer. All I could think of was that my husband was in prison, that I, too, might be arrested any moment and our boy would be left utterly alone. It seemed to me at times simply stupid to try and carry on the work which I no longer cared for now that it was deprived of all meaning. It was a desperate struggle to keep it up; winter, cold, hunger were upon us, and it was almost more than one could bear, especially when to one's ordinary duties was added the request to take part in "social work."

Door Guarded.

Four o'clock, the end of the working day, but there was a general meeting to attend. One way out of the Hermitage was closed and the other was guarded by Communists from the local committee.

"Four o'clock—the boy has come home from school. The rooms are cold. The stove hasn't been heated. Would he bring in some logs? He does not like going down to the shed, and really they are too heavy for him to carry."

The meeting had not begun yet; the Communists in command were late. Everyone was tired and hungry. The hall was cold. Some walked about, wrapped up in their overcoats, others sat huddled up. Everyone felt wretched, but could not go away.

At last the "chiefs" appeared.

"The work of building up a Socialistic state proceeds by laying the foundations" . . . the official orator rattled off the hackneyed phrases to which no one listened.

Worried About Child.

"The child is sure to be famished" came into my mind. "It will soon be 5 o'clock. I wonder if we have any oil for the primus? He wouldn't think of calling at the shop, and everything will be closed at six."

" . . . calls for energetic action, for an effort of our proletarian will . . ."

"He is sure to buy the bread. I left the ration-cards on the table. I hope he won't eat the whole loaf, or there will be nothing left for the morning."

" . . . with gigantic strides. Industrialization of the whole country . . ."

"I must simply get away before six, or I'll be too late for the Co-op. There's nothing at home except yesterday's potato soup."

" . . . Boldly overtaking capitalistic Europe decaying under the pressure of the economic crisis . . ."

"No, I can't stand this any longer. It will soon be six, there will be no time to do his home lessons."

My anxious thoughts kept time with the empty words. We were all bored to death, and he was shouting the same thing for the hundredth time. Everyone was longing to go home but was afraid of being noticed and called to task.

Elderly Foreigners Now Learn English

NEW YORK, July 11 (Spl.).—Hundreds of foreign-born New Yorkers daily attend the schools operated by the State to teach English to immigrants.

The schools are staffed by unemployed professional people and directed by Miss Caroline Whipple, of the State department of education, and secretary of the department of education of the National Education Association. They are established in Scandinavian, Polish, Chinese and Jewish neighborhoods.

"Some of our teachers organized excursions around the city for their students," Miss Whipple related. "They have discovered in the classes mature, even elderly men who have never been outside their own neighborhoods since they came over from Europe."

Lessening of Depression Brings More Marriages

Romance is flourishing with the return of prosperity and more persons are getting married these days than at any time since 1929, according to a recent survey by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

The marriage rate in 21 States increased 4.3 per cent in 1933. The figure is still low compared with normal years, but is in strong contrast to what happened between 1929 and 1932 when the marriage rate dropped 7.5 per cent.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Air Conditioning.

Air is more important to life than any other substance. One may live without water for many hours and without food for a number of days, but deprive the individual of air, and life will not endure beyond a few minutes.

Everyone is interested in the weather, as to most of us it means air temperature and humidity. We are interested because the body must compensate for changes in the temperature of the air, and these changes affect our well-being. Some of the compensating adjustments may be serious in their effects as they call upon the body for reserve vitality. Excessively hot days are attended by a sense of fatigue that is mental as well as physical.

Most installations provide for an increased flow of clean air. The air is first rendered free of impurities by washing and filtration and is then brought to the rooms in correct quantity and at an ideal temperature and moisture content. Washing the air, which is part of the process, removes great quantities of dust and other impurities, and many individuals with hay fever and asthma find marked relief in contrast with the air of the street. The process places the air at the disposal of the individual under conditions most conducive to comfort and health.

When the outside temperature is so high that active perspiration results, the body loses not only water, but important salts.

CAPITAL KITCHEN

Tired of Vegetable Salads? Meat Ones a Welcome Change.

By Susan Mills.

ARE YOU getting tired of salads? Does the lettuce-tomato-cucumber combination weary you even as you think of it? Do the fruits seem flat, the dressings tasteless?

Here are a few suggestions for fairly staple salads that take the place of the meat course in name if not in ingredient. They are easy to make, attractive to look at and agreeable to eat. Introducing meat salads:

Instead of serving the salad in the usual way, keep it in a big wooden salad bowl, line with leaf lettuce or garnished with any available green and let each one help himself.

If luncheon is hurried as it is in many busy families, serve each luncheon plate in the kitchen, with salad, hot rolls, crisp potato chips and perhaps a spiced peach. The plates will be all ready to place on the table the instant the family arrives.

Here are some salads we like the taste of:

Veal Salad.

2 cups cold cut veal
½ cucumber
½ dozen sweet pickles
½ cup celery
½ cup cold peas

Marinate the peas and veal for ½ hour in French dressing. Drain, add ½ cup of mayonnaise and other vegetables. Serves five or six.

Supper Salad.

2 cups cold diced potatoes
1 cup cooked salami, cut in cubes
1 dozen radishes
1 green onion or 2 tablespoons onion juice

Let the salad marinate for one hour in French dressing. Drain and add ¾-cup mayonnaise or cooked dressing. Garnish with radishes. Serve with crisp rolls.

Farm Labor's Pay and Hours Under Study

Officials Work Cautiously, Fearing Dynamite in Situation.

(Associated Press.)

A joint study that the Departments of Agriculture and Labor are to make of the farm-labor situation probably will determine whether the farm agency will attempt to do for the farm hand what NRA is striving to do for the city worker.

Until the study is made, it was indicated yesterday, the Farm Administration will hold in abeyance efforts to deal with farm labor. Under the sugar bill the Farm Administration was given authority to tell sugar growers who signed contracts for benefit payments the maximum hours they might work their hired men and the minimum wages to be paid. The AAA also had the power to direct the abolishment of child labor in the beet and cane fields.

Officials announced recently that one of the requirements for "eligibility to receive payment will be that the growers deal fairly with labor."

It was added that the contracts with the growers would "provide that the rate of payment to labor is to be fair and equitable."

Quite a few of the farm chieftains feel that the farm labor question contains all sorts of political and economic dynamite. In their opinion any attempts to regulate the working conditions of hired hands on farms might nullify the attempt to raise farm prices. They believe landlords would resent any such attempts at regulation.

Army Aviation Report Delayed

Baker Committee Holds Up Data for Last Minute Alterations.

The report of the Baker board to Secretary of War Dern was held up for last-minute alterations yesterday.

Appointed to study conditions in the Army Air Corps, the commission, headed by Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, concluded its hearings last month.

What was expected to be the final draft of the report to Dern was approved Tuesday and signed Wednesday and was to have been submitted at the War Department yesterday. Dern is away on vacation.

Although the contents of the report were kept as secret as possible, the Associated Press several times hinted that important changes in Air Corps personnel had been recommended.

Yesterday it was the learned the report, which was to have been placed in the hands of Assistant Secretary of War Woodring, had been recalled.

'Low Bridge' Victim Is Baltimore Youth

Cumberland, Md., July 12 (Spl.).—A young man who received a compound fracture of the skull last night when his head struck the Fayette Street Bridge while he was riding on top of a Baltimore & Ohio freight train, rallied long enough at Allegany Hospital today to identify himself as Davis Wolfe, 22, Baltimore.

Wolfe, unemployed, was thrown face downward and was not seen on top of the car until the train proceeded about 6 miles. His condition is serious.

George Cadwallader Buried at Hill Crest

Cumberland, Md., July 12 (Spl.).—The funeral of George Cadwallader, Cresaptown, who was killed on the National highway Monday when struck by an automobile, was held today from the home of his sister, Mrs. Ella E. Leakins, Ridgeley. Interment was at Hill Crest Burial Park.

Mr. Cadwallader is survived by two other sisters, Mrs. Nora Millison, Baltimore, and Mrs. Anna Reid, Ridgeley, and one brother, Simeon Cadwallader, Baltimore.

Nancy Butler Moore, 81, Buried at Charles Town

Charles Town, W. Va., July 12 (Spl.).—Funeral services for Nancy Butler Moore, 81, were held here today in the Zion Episcopal Church, with the Rev. Hunter Davidson in charge. Burial was in Edge Hill Cemetery.

Officers are R. Turner Jones, of Monterey, president; Miss Leola Swadley, of McDowell, vice president; W. Jason Newman, Crabbottom, secretary, and Seybert Beverage, Monterey, treasurer.

The executive committee is composed of Clyde Herold, Mill Gap; Miss Dorothy Hevener, Crabbottom; William Stephenson, jr., Hightown; W. Mason Armstrong, Doe Hill; Charles Simmons, Headwaters; W. J. Hupman, McDowell; Guy Bussard, Big Valley; Robert S. McClintic, Wilson's Mill; Forest Samples, Strait Creek, and Louis Shumate, Pullen's Schoolhouse.

Mr. Neff was assisted by Lloyd Sullenberger, of Monterey, Democratic chairman in Highland County. S. D. Timberlake, jr., Staunton attorney, spoke on the importance of young Democrats giving loyal support to the older generation.

Md. Democratic Club Plans Picnic July 19

Hagerstown, Md., July 12 (Spl.).—The annual picnic of the Democratic Organization Club of Washington County will be held July 19, E. Stuart Bushong, vice president of the club, announces.

The picnic will be held in Clarkson's meadow on the Williamsport-Greencastle pike.

Coal Chemical Can Make Soap

Discovery of 'Silica Black' Announced by W. Va. University Savant.

Morgantown, W. Va., July 12 (AP).—The black stuff in coal smoke which soils the hands and the collar was shown up as a good soap-making chemical, in a discovery announced today.

The discovery is a new chemical called silica black, found by Dr. C. A. Jacobson, of West Virginia University, and reported to the American Chemical Society. It is made by mixing bituminous coal and powdered diatomite, a form of silica, produced millions of years ago by small organisms living in the sea.

Smoke belching from stacks, the report states, is probably largely silica black. But unlike the smoke, the laboratory stuff is both useful and ornamental. Its most surprising quality so far found is that of a talyst.

The smoke essence replaces nickel, and does a better job, at converting vegetable oil into soaps and even into edible fats. Both nickel and the "smoke" catalysts are fine powders, and cause the vegetable oils to clarify and to harden. Because they are catalysts these substances after performing their work, separate completely from the product.

Shirley Preparing Bridge Toll List

Richmond, July 12 (AP).—State Highway Commissioner Henry G. Shirley today is working on a schedule of tolls for the Port Royal-Port Conway Bridge, which will be opened to traffic formally next Wednesday.

A tentative schedule was submitted to Mr. Shirley, but he said he believed lower charges would bring a higher net return.

His own schedule will be filed with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which advanced $139,000 for construction of the bridge across the Rappahannock and which expects repayment of this amount through tolls. The State highway department will operate the bridge.

Dr. F. G. Wright New Hospital President

Chambersburg, Pa., July 12 (Spl.).—Dr. F. G. Wright was elected president of the staff of the Chambersburg Hospital at the annual staff meeting.

Dr. S. D. Shull was reelected vice president, Dr. Joseph P. Maclay, secretary and treasurer, and Dr. T. D. White, Orrstown, and Dr. J. H. Swan, St. Thomas, members of the executive committee.

The board of directors elected H. W. Byron, Mercersburg manufacturer, a member of the board, succeeding J. M. Drumm, Mercersburg, who resigned.

H. F. Minter Selected Secretary of C. of C.

Hopewell, Va., July 12 (Spl.).—H. F. Minter, former city attorney, has been elected secretary of the Hopewell Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Minter succeeds James A. Payne, who recently removed to Fredericksburg. Mr. Minter is a former president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Muzzles Ordered for Dogs.

Covington, Va., July 12 (Spl.).—An order that all dogs within 10 miles of Alleghany Station be muzzled and confined has been issued by the Alleghany County supervisors. The order was issued after several persons and animals had been bitten by a rabied dog.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep . . . Vigor . . . Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS . . . a doctor's prescription . . . which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes, for they may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS . . . the old reliable relief that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.—Advt.

One Killed, 3 Hurt As Trucks Crash

Havre de Grace, Md., July 12 (AP).—One man was killed instantly and three others badly injured today when two heavily loaded 5-ton trucks crashed head-on at Principio Furnace, 3 miles north of Perryville.

The three men seriously hurt were brought to the hospital here. All were unconscious. Authorities were unable to ascertain how the accident happened.

Marshall Burke, colored, of Philadelphia, driver of one of the trucks, was killed outright.

Legion Delegates Named.

Chambersburg, Pa., July 12 (Spl.).—Burt J. Asper Post, No. 46, American Legion, has elected delegates to the State convention at Erie, August 16, 17 and 18. They are Myron Byers, Walter S. Metz, H. C. Appenzellar; alternates, John D. Mowery, Dr. G. L. Cassel and Seibert D. Eberly.

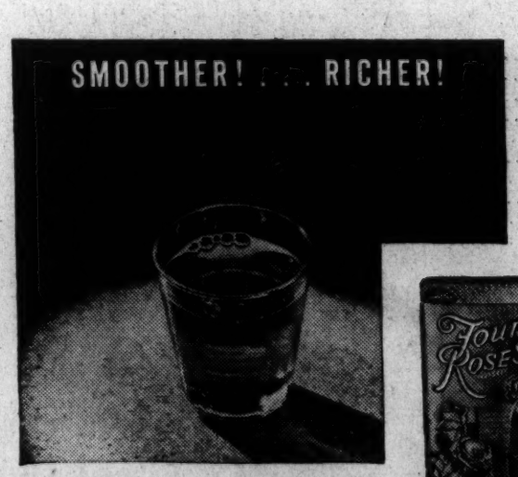
Flavor wins!

FOUR ROSES RYE WHISKEY

BEATS 30 OTHER BRANDS IN "BLIND" TEST!



Four Roses Rye wins straight! It has that soft richness that makes it smooth as honey to your throat.

Four Roses Rye wins in cocktails! It has that true whiskey flavor that adds zest to any drink.

We had several scores of people test Four Roses Rye against 30 other brands. The tests were run off like a tennis tournament. And Four Roses won!

IT'S flavor that counts! And it's flavor—superior flavor—that made Four Roses Rye the winner over 30 other famous whiskies in a "blind" taste-test. Many of those whiskies were priced much higher, too.

Here's why Four Roses has that flavor. It's made the only way truly great whiskey can be made—from pure, hand-made Maryland Rye whiskies, matured to mellowness in charred oak barrels. No tricks!

You'll know that the minute you taste Four Roses Rye. It's so soft, fragrant, glowing. No harshness! . . . and it's a whiskey that, used with discretion, carries no headaches.

Naturally, it takes skill to make a whiskey like this. But Frankfort has been making fine whiskey for four generations. Its yeast culture—key ingredient in making fine whiskey—has been carefully guarded for 50 years. Frankfort knows how!

Get a bottle of Four Roses—compare it with any other whiskey you care to name. At all the better liquor stores—in full pints and quarts. Ask for Four Roses, too, in hotels and restaurants. You can be positive of its purity. For it comes sealed in the patented Frankfort Pack that must be destroyed before the bottle within it can be removed.

Cronin to Send Southpaws Against Indians in 4-Game Series.

By Lewis F. Atchison
(Post Staff Corespondent).

CLEVELAND, July 12.—The reeling Nats, groggy from three straight defeats and the dank atmosphere of the second division, found peace and quiet here today when rain decreed no game with the Cleveland Indians.

Tomorrow, Manager Joe Cronin will gather his forces again for the start of the four-game series that will be climaxed on Sunday with a double-header manufactured by today's rainfall. Ten games behind the league-leading Tigers, the Nats were faced with the necessity of bestirring themselves to a long winning streak on the current Western trip or the alternative of oblivion in the 1934 pennant race.

Cronin Primes Southpaws.

Cronin still is hewing to his pitching program of the Cleveland series, attempting to check the Indians' batting attack with left-handed hurlers. Tomorrow he will send Walter Stewart to the mound and then bring to bear the equally left-handed Earl Whitehill. Should these southpaws succeed, Cronin will be sorely tempted to give Bobby Burke a fling at the Injuns in one of the Sunday games.

Cleveland is still rejoicing over the exploits of its local favorites in the All-Star game at the Polo Grounds, where Earl Averill touched the spark to the Americans' victorious batting rally with a triple in the pinch and a devastating double in his second appearance at the slender right-hander who stifled the National League batting attack with one hit in the last five innings, also is receiving the praises of the home-town fans.

Nats' Pitching Poor.

The bulk of the Nats' recent failures are directly traceable to the complete collapse of their pitching sta at one and the same time. Al Crowder, Al Thomas, Monte Weaver and Walter Stewart all have been beaten in their last starts and Earl Whitehill barely received credit for a 9-7 victory over the Yanks.

The Nats have been making enough runs to win with ordinary pitching, but not enough for the type of hurling Cronin's regulars have been providing the team. Frantic pleas for help made by the Nats' manager to Owner Griffith have thus far gone unheeded, but advices from Washington state that Griffith soon will produce at least one high-class minor league hurler within a few days.

Culpeper Wins to Take Lead in Valley League

Culpeper, Va., July 12 (Spl.).—Culpeper Athletic Club again moved to first position in the Valley League by defeating the Harrisonburg Club here this afternoon, 4-2. It was a pitchers' duel between Walter Beall for the locals and Benny Good for the visitors, each allowing eight hits, and walking none. In the 54 innings pitched for Culpeper by Beall this season only four runs have been scored off him, all of which have been unearned. Harrisonburg's scores today came in the first and ninth innings, each of which were counted on errors. Humphries' triple in the fifth with two out and two on accounted for the locals' winning margin.

Culpeper goes to New Market on Sunday for the third interleague series game with that club.

Peacock's 62, 9 Under Par, New Amateur Golf Record

shot, and was played under winter rules.

Played in Sixsome.

Playing with Peacock during his eventful round were Russ Hollebaugh, local sporting goods salesman; Harry Peacock, his father; W. H. Dickhaut, Frank Butler and Jimmy Greene, of Atlanta.

Peacock used only 14 putts on the first nine and 13 on the second. Never off the fairway and virtually as straight as an arrow all afternoon, he steered clear of all hazards, traps and bunkers and reached every green except two in regulation figures or better. On the fifth hole, Peacock's approach overran the green, but he chipped back nicely and got his par 4. On the seventh his mashie approach finished on the edge of the carpet, yet he rifled his birdie 4.

Never over par on any hole, the youngster shot nine 4s, eight 3s and a deuce. On the holes he failed to get his birds, his ball either lipped the cup or died a few inches from it.

Peacock started off with a par 4 on the 440-yard first, being on in two and down in two. On the 410-yard second he missed his 10-footer for a birdie 3 by half an inch. His putt from 35 feet on the 440-yard second rimmed the cup and he made his par 4. Faced with a curling 25-footer on the 355-yard fourth, Peacock rolled the ball into the cup for his birdie 3.

Chips Back Nicely.

On the 430-yard fifth his approach landed on the green and dribbled over, but Roger chipped back masterfully within 6 feet and was down for his par 4. He sank a 6-footer for his deuce on the 155-yard sixth, and almost holed out for an eagle on the 440-yard from the edge of the carpet. Peacock's putt for a birdie on the 387-yard eighth rolled over the cup, but he made his 4. On the 235-yard ninth he spanked his spoon 15 feet to the left of the pin, and his putt for a deuce went 6 inches past the cup.

He sank a 4-footer for a birdie 3 on the 408-yard tenth, missed a 4-footer for a birdie on the 385-yard eleventh, rimmed the cup on the 423-yard twelfth, missing his birdie 3, and canned a 12-footer for a birdie 3 on the 334-yard thirteenth. Peacock's drive on the 185-yard fourteenth finished 5 feet from the pin and he missed his deuce by inches. On the 483-yard fifteenth he laid his iron third 4 inches from the pin and was in for his birdie 4. His most spectacular shot of the day came on the rigid 525-yard sixteenth. Here Roger had a tremendous drive and smashed his spoon second to within 6 inches of the cup for one of those rare eagle 3s on this hole.

Peacock lipped the cup from 10 feet on the 206-yard seventeenth and got his par 3. On the eighteenth, 440 yards, he was 4 feet from the pin on his second, and plunked the ball into the cup for his birdie.

Red, Dodgers Divide; Slade Is Batting Hero

Brooklyn, July 12 (AP).—Little Oskie Slade cut loose with some unexpected hitting today to help the Cincinnati Reds get an even break in a double-header, which saw the two teams spend more than five hours assaulting each other's pitching. Slade hit a homer in each game as Brooklyn won the first contest, 9 to 7, and Cincinnati the second, 13 to 5.

Harlin Pool and Jim Bottomley also hit Cincinnati homers in the slugging match, which produced 25 hits for the Reds and 27 for the Dodgers. Bottomley's started Cincinnati off to its victory, producing three tallies in the first.

Slugger Is Slugged With 10-Slug Fine for Using Subway Slug

New York, July 12 (U.P.).—Herman Perlick, one of the Kalamazoo, Mich., boxing twins, was fined $10 in night court for putting a slug in a subway turnstile. Perlick explained he was out of change and wanted "to get uptown in a hurry." His brother Henry paid the fine.

Hubbell Star; Giants Split With Bucs

Pirates Annex Opener, 3-1, Behind Pitching of French.

NEW YORK, July 12 (AP).—After yielding to Larry French's slants in the first game f a odouble-header here today, the Giants concentrated their hitting in the second clash and gained an even break with Pittsburgh. French's six-hit hurling gave the Pirates a 3-to-1 decision in the opener. With Carl Hubbell on the hill, the Giants slammed out an 11-to-1 triumph in the afterpiece.

The split program cut a half game from the Giants' National League lead as Chicago's Cubs won a single contest from Boston and wound up one game to the rear.

Leiber Slams Homer.

A homer by Hank Leiber was the only New York run in the first clash, as French outpointed Roy Parmelee in a hurling duel. Pittsburg gained its winning margin by the same route. After two passes and Cookie Lavagetto's single produced a run in the second inning, Gus Suhr hit Parmelee for the circuit in the fourth and Earl Grace drove one of Joe Bowman's offerings into the stands for the winning tally in the ninth.

Hubbell, pitching as if he was in another all-star game, mowed the Bucs down in the second clash, giving only six blows and striking out eight. Freddy Lindstrom's pinch rho emnithe sixth, the second hit off Hubbell,, brought the only Pirate run.

The Giants started early against Ralph Birkofer, pounding him to cover with five hits in the first inning, and scored six times before Heinie Meine ended that frame.

Pittsburgh's opening triumph ended a string of six straight losses to the Giants.

P. Dean Is Hurt As Cardinals, Phils Split

Pitcher Sprains Ankle as St. Louis Wins, 8-5; Drop Second, 8-3.

PHILADELPHIA, July 12 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals and Phillies divided a double header today, the Cards winning the first contest, 8 to 5, and the Phils taking the second, 8 to 3.

The St. Louisans suffered a setback in their pennant hopes when Pitcher Paul Dean sprained his angle sliding into third base in the third inning of the first game and was carried off the field. The Cardinals won this tilt, however, when they hit Hansen for two runs in the seventh inning after the Phillies had driven Mooney from the box and tied the score at 5 to 5 in the sixth.

Curt Davis won his eleventh victory of the campaign in the final game when he held the Cards to ten scattered hits. The Phillies made it easy for him by slapping Wild Bill Hallahan and Dazzy Vance for eight runs in the first four innings.

Medwick and V. Davis hit home runs for the Cards in the second encounter, while Jimmy Collins also hit for the circuit in the first contest.

Feature at Arlington Is Won by Some Pomp

Arlington Park, Ill., July 12 (AP).—Warren Wright's Some Pomp justified the backing which sent him to the post an even money favorite today by galloping to an easy triumph in the Oak Park Purse, 7 furlongs feature at Arlington Park.

Some Pomp, ridden by Eddie Arcaro, was kept in close pursuit of the Audley Farm's Miss Patience, which cut out the early pace Miss Patience gave up after 4 furlongs and Arcaro hustled Some Pomp to the front, where he stayed, winning by 2½ lengths. W. C. Stroube's Croon beat out C. V. Whitney's Elf Lock for the place.

Some Pomp paid off at $4.06 for $2, and ran the distance in 1:24 2-5.

Flick-Miller Duo Wins Martinsburg Golf Play

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 12.—Ladies' day for the 1934 season at Opequon Golf Club was inaugurated yesterday with a two-ball mixed foursome tourney, followed by a picnic supper in the clubhouse.

The tourney was won by W. H. Flick and Mrs. S. W. K. Miller. They were tied with R. L. Dunn and Miss Mary Lloyd, each having 27s. A draw determined the winner, and both winner and runner-up received prizes.

Chisox Win, 3-2; Johnson Hits 26th

Macks Bow as Appling, in Comeback, Stars.

Chicago, July 12 (AP).—Bob Johnson hit his twenty-sixth home run of the season with Rober Cramer on base in the eighth inning today, to tie the score at 2-all, but the Chicago White Sox came back with a run in the ninth to take the opening game of the series from the Philadelphia Athletics, 3 to 2.

Eddie Madjeski's third single of the game scored Luke Appling with the winning run. Appling, playing his first game since June 5, had driven in both previous Sox runs with the bases filled in the sixth. He opened the home ninth with a single and advanced on Bob Boken's sacrifice.

George Earnshaw went the route against Merritt Cain for his sixth victory. Johnson's homer tied him with Jimmy Foxx for the major league leadership.

Howell, Spencer, D. C. Netmen, Lose in Finals

Allentown, Pa., July 12.—Herbert Hauck, of Easton, Lafayette College sophomore, today crushed Bill Fausold, of Shamokin 6—1, 6—2 and 6—2 to win the Lehigh Valley District junior championship here.

Ten minutes after he won the singles championship, young Hauck came back on the courts to team up with Joseph Epstein, also of Easton and likewise a classmate at Lafayette College, to win the doubles championship as well, crushing the Washington, D. C. pair of Spencer Howell and Carlton Spencer, 6—0, 6—2 and 6—0.

Ouden, Dutch Merman, Claims "400" Record

Rotterdam, Holland, July 12 (U.P.).—Willy Den Ouden, Dutch Olympic star, today claimed a new world record for the 400-meter free style swim, having been timed for the distance in 5:16. The official record for the distance is 5:39.3.

Quantico Indians Plan Big Week-End Games

Quantico, Va., July 12 (Spl.).—Manager Hunt Moncure announced this afternoon that the Quantico Indians, local civilian semipro team, would undergo a complete change of policy and reorganize.

The Indians, always a strong contender in upper Virginia semipro circles, plan to bring the most formidable opposition available to Quantico for Saturday and Sunday games during the months of August and September.

There is a possibility that the Indians will augment their line-up with Goldie Morris, star Quantico Marine infielder; burly Charlie Gann, leader of the Leathernecks, and the ancient Red Rhea, general utility infielder of the Marines. It was announced that the Indians will oppose the Georgetown Athletic Club of Washington, at Post Field, Quantico, next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Crazy Jane and Mumsie Are Winners in Co-Feature Races at Rockingham Park

Mare Downs Toytime By Neck

Second Triumph for Mrs. Flippen's Four-Year-Old Sprinter.

Some Pomp, Favorite, Coasts to Victory at Arlington.

ROCKINGHAM PARK, Salem, N. H., July 12 (AP).—Mrs. R. T. Flippen's Crazy Jane, a 4-year-old brown mare and Mrs. M. Koerner's 3-year-olds chestnut filly, Mumsie, won the cofeatures of today's unexciting racing program.

Crazy Jane scored her second sprint triumph on this oval by leading S. W. Labrot's Toy Time by a neck in the 5½ furlongs Merrimack claiming race fo a $1,000 purse. Lillian C. White's Forlorn, well up on the pace from the start, finished in the show position.

In the other feature, a race of a mile and a sixteenth for another $1,000 purse, Mumsie and J. B. Belk's Source Circle came off the turn fast and caught the pacemaker, C. J. Meister's Pennywise, in the stretch. Mumsie crossed the line with a half length on Source Circle, which led Pennywise by a neck.

Pigeon Body Honors Lonaconing Owners

Lonaconing, Md., July 12 (Spl.).—Three members of the East End Flying Club, namely George Lauder, Robert Love and John Askey, local pigeon fanciers, received diplomas from the International Federation of American Homing Pigeon Fanciers of Baltimore for races won by their birds in a series of races run during the past spring.

Askey received four awards, as follows: Best average speed during a series of five races consuming a total of 43 hours 26 minutes and 30 seconds, total distance of 1,479.5 miles airline at an average of 999.01 yards per minute.

Considerable interest in bird racing has been shown in Lonaconing and vicinity during the past two years, and several clubs have been organized and become affiliated with the international federation.

At the Post . . .

with Bill Bennings.

ROCKINGHAM PARK, July 12.

Dear Al:

Four winners for Bennings, Inc., today and a pair of seconds yesterday, I put Clocker Mike on the pan and he begged me to let him try one of his occasional specials—his first of the meeting. I agreed and he yelled, "Miss Morocco" before I had closed my mouth. So after the third race, in which Miss Morocco won and paid an $11 mutuel, I had to make regular trips to the clubhouse to escape his chatter. I supplied the three other successes of the day. They were Ayston, Cancel and Enro. However, he looked as if he had a lot of sleep and Mike is one of those fellows who's afraid to go to bed early for fear he will miss something. But if he digs me up a few Miss Moroccos a week, I can overlook almost anything. BILL.

First race—I advise you to put the names of these in a hat and draw out one. This limit field of maidens may bring any kind of a result. The boss insists on my picking three. Here they are: Happy Helen, Justa Jane, Paper Moon.

Second race—More maidens in this. Reigh Rose has a fair figure and gets in with light weight. Has as mucht right winning here as anything the field offers. Silver Wrack and Happy Surprise for the other awards.

Third race—Vacillate has seen action at this course and may be ready to carry off a purse. Ervast looks like the one to beat. Clocker Mike believes he has dug up a fair sort in Periodical. You can take him or leave him.

Fourth race—Front is assigned only 105 pounds in this 6-furlong test and is a possible longshot winner. Oral failed me last out, but can better that effort. Parties to take care of the others.

Fifth race—Manya and Par Value appear to have an edge on those accepting the issue in this mile race. Both are at tops and primed for a hard race. Little Stokes was being whispered around the paddock late this afternoon. May go well at that with light weight and the rail position.

Sixth race—Rock Point earns his oats in field of this caliber. Not exactly the same dependable horse that used to campaign in Maryland, but good enough for this group. Mild and Lofty Lady for the other money places. Old Silverdale appears in the entries and should his legs hold up, he may be the one to beat.

Seventh race—Southard turned in a sizzling winning effort here last week and I'm sending him back to take the measure of Grand Acre and Gabbo.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—AYSTON, $5.30, $2.70, $2.50; PANA FRANKA, $2.50, $2.20; DISTRIBUTE, $2.90.

AYSTON, away fast, shook off PANA FRANKA in the first three-quarters, and drew out to win with speed in reserve. PANA FRANKA, quick to begin and in nearest pursuit of the winner throughout, held on well to the end. DISTRIBUTE, outrun early, closed strongly and had no excuses.

SECOND RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good for all but Precious Little. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 3:00. Off at 3:01½. Winner, L. Haymaker's ch. f. (3), by Canter—Seldom See. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23, 0:47 2-5, 1:06 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CANCEL, $7.10, $3.50, $2.40; MAYVITE, $3.10, $2.30; PORTFOLIO, $2.40.

CANCEL drew into a good lead in the opening stages, was rated along under steadying restraint and was never threatened, winning with speed in reserve. MAYVITE, restrained early, closed gamely in the last quarter-mile. PORTFOLIO, slow to get into his best stride, was outpaced early, closed ground, then was not able to reach the first two. OPEN SPACES was never a factor. KARONITE raced in closest pursuit of the winner until nearing the stretch, where he began faltering badly. PRECIOUS LITTLE had little chance after being practically left at the post.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 3:30. Off at 3:34½. Winner, Mrs. R. T. Flippen's ch. m. (5), by Stimulus—La Giconda. Trained by T. Flippen. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:46 1-5, 1:11 4-5.

JUNIORITY	111	3	6	6	6	6	6	Schaefer	31.85

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS MOROCCO, $11.00, $4.70, $2.70; BEDIGHT, $3.70, $2.50; MOANE KEALA, $2.30.

MISS MOROCCO, hustled along to keep forwardly placed in the early running, moved around on the outside of the leaders entering the stretch and, closing gamely, drew out through the last furlong. BEDIGHT had speed from the start, withstood a determined effort from MOANE KEALA, but was unable to cope with the closing challenge of the winner. MOANE KEALA, reserved early, gave her effort in the last five-sixteenths, and fought it out gamely to the end. CASH SURRENDER dropped back steadily after breaking with the leaders, saved ground in the stretch, but never could get within striking distance of the leaders. ZIPALONG was unable to improve his position under urging.

FOURTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:05. Off at 4:06½. Winner, Mrs. R. T. Flippen's b. f. (4), by Haste—Natica. Trained by T. Flippen. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:22 2-5, 0:46, 1:05 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CRAZY JANE, $9.00, $3.50, $2.70; TOYTIME, $3.30, $2.60; ALL FORLORN, $3.90.

CRAZY JANE took command at once, shook off ALL FORLORN after rounding far turn, opened up a good lead, but had to be hard ridden at the end to withstand TOYTIME'S bid. TOYTIME, restrained early, closed fast through the stretch, and was gaining on the winner at every stride. ALL FORLORN had good speed, though unable to keep pace with the first two. CANTERSINE, placed under punishment after leaving the stalls slowly, never was able to gain a prominent position. The others were never serious factors.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:36. Off at 4:37½. Winner, Mrs. M. Koerner's ch. f. (3), by Bubbling Over—Columbia. Trained by C. Koerner. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 4-5, 0:47 2-5, 1:12 2-5, 1:39 3-5, 1:45 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MUMSIE, $6.30, $3.20, $2.60; SOURCE CIRCLE, $5.70, $3.20; PENNYWISE, $3.80

MUMSIE, benefitted by her light impost, and under stout restraint while in pursuit of the pace, closed stoutly through the stretch, wore down PENNYWISE and held SOURCE CIRCLE safe at the finish. The latter, reserved early, moved up leaving the back stretch and closed with a rush in the last three-sixteenths. PENNYWISE outran his field to the first turn, was steadied along in front, but placed under punishment, was unable to withstand the closing bids of the first two. FABIUS, outrun early, made up some ground. BURNING UP faltered after showing early speed. LEONIE faltered in the last half-mile.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:06. Off at 5:12. Winner, W. A. Mikel's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ENRO, $5.50, $3.90, $2.70; JIM ORMONT, $13.20, $6.20; POLLY CEE, $3.50.

ENRO, a trailer for the first half-mile, began moving up thereafter and, fortunate in obtaining clear sailing on the inside for the remainder of the way, was up in the last 20 yards. JIM ORMONT went to the front with a rush midway of the back stretch, drew clear, but was unable to stave off the winner's bid. POLLY CEE, restrained close up, continued determinedly to the finish, but was unable to make up any ground when placed under punishment. PLUMAGE had good speed, but weakened in the last quarter-mile. PLUCKY LADY had brief early speed. WISHING STAR was outrun.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 5:40. Off at 5:43½. Winner, C. W. Phelan's b. or br. c. (3), by Eternal—Rockalou. Trained by N. Furey. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24, 0:48 3-5, 1:14 2-5, 1:41 2-5, 1:47 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ALLOTMENT, $28.80, $11.70, $3.70; FRIGATE BIRD, $3.80, $2.70; TAZEWELL, $2.50.

ALLOTMENT went to the front at once, opened up a good lead and, steadied along in front, was never seriously threatened. FRIGATE BIRD dropped back in the run through the back stretch, moved up in the last half-mile, and closed gamely. TAZEWELL, as usual, slow to begin, moved up gradually and closed gamely in the stretch run. SARSITA, away slowly, and forced to lose ground, moved up fast down the back stretch, but weakened through the final furlong. CATERER went well for the first five furlongs.

Stocks Driven Down as Sales Volume Drops

Averages Cut Seven-tenths on Trading Total of 466,392 Shares.

New York, July 12 (AP).—Stocks assumed an easier tone with commodities today but trading dwindled.

Industrial stocks encountered increased offerings as they neared the peaks of the June rally and retreated slowly.

While waiting for indications of the late summer business trend, traders were unwilling to do much on either side of the market and prices continued to move in the narrow range outlined recently.

Sales Volume Decreases.

Volume on the stock exchange decreased to 466,392 shares, compared with 648,540 yesterday. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 90 stocks closed off seven-tenths of a point at 78.7.

Steel, rail, motor and utility shares were particularly heavy and losses of a point or more were recorded in U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Santa Fe, New York Central and Western Union.

National Distillers rallied fractionally from its decline yesterday and a number of preferred stocks with thin markets made sizeable gains.

Mining shares reacted with the general list as traders accepted profits accruing from advances earlier in the week. Howe Sound, McIntyre, Alaska Juneau and other metal shares sold off fractionally to a point or so.

Causes of Selling.

Estimates that the weekly carloading report tomorow would show the first decline from 1933 recorded this year, together with the attention focused on current railroad problems by the meeting of railroad executives at Atlantic City, caused scattered selling in rails.

A break in corn checked the rise of grains. Corn finished 1¾ to 2⅞ cents lower after recovering from an early decline of 4 cents. Oats, rye and barley yielded a cent to 2 cents on the average. Cotton reacted after adding about $5 a bale to the price of futures since Monday and closed off 75 cents to $1.15 a bale. Rubber, sugar and hides moved lower.

In the absence of significant trade and political news, aside from the proposal for a basic NRA code for minor industries, commodity markets continued to occupy the speculation spotlight.

Baldwin Orders Fall.

New York, July 12 (AP).—Orders booked by Baldwin Locomotive Works in June amounted to $1,166,000, against $2,341,000 in May and $1,368,000 in June, 1933, it was announced today. For the first half bookings totaled $11,149,000, against $4,140,000 in the same period last year.

The company's unfilled orders on June 30 amounted to $8,634,000, against $4,358,000 on January 1 and $3,284,000 on June 30, 1933.

Coming Apple Crop.

Waynesboro, Va., July 12 (Spl.).—Within the next ten days the harvest of early apples is expected to be in full swing in Augusta County. The crop outlook is said to be very good.

Goods Markets.

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—Cotton goods was somewhat lighter today. Sales of unfinished cloths thus far this week were in line with current production. More finished goods demand was noted. Knitters of ladies' lingerie bought more raw silk and less rayon. Rayon yarns were in moderate demand. Wool goods were quiet; garment and clothing manufacturers insisting upon lower prices that are unavailable owing to the sustained prices of domestic raw wool. Some fair-sized purchases of burlaps to be shipped from Calcutta were reported. The local markets were quiet and firm.

Exaggerated Importance Being Given to Attack of Senator Thomas on Gov. Harrison; His Views Unworthy of Attention.

By Ralph West Robey.

By Ralph West Robey.

Senator Elmer Thomas' cable to Governor Harrison, of the New York Reserve Bank, has caused an incredible amount of discussion this week. The cable was published Tuesday morning and since then there has been a constant uproar about it. All kinds of conclusions are drawn, both favorable and unfavorable. By some it is viewed as a cheap publicity stunt, by others that we are entering a new inflationary campaign, and by still others that this is a clear forerunner of a new devaluation of the dollar. To me it seems the whole episode is of no importance.

Senator Thomas, as everyone knows, is an out and out inflationist. He does not just want the dollar devalued. He wants paper money poured out by the billions and then still more billions. From some of the things he has said, in fact, one would be justified in concluding that he would consider even a German inflation too conservative.

Never Has Explained Why He Wants German Inflation.

Just why he wants the country flooded with printing-press money never has been made clear. He talks about coming to the relief of debtors. This is to be accomplished by transferring wealth from those that have it now to those that have nothing. He once put it: "Transfer $200,000,000,000 in the hands of persons who now have it, who did not buy it, who did not earn it, who do not deserve it, who must not retain it, back to the other side, the debtor class of the Republic, the people who owe the mass debts of the nation."

Of course, none of this makes sense. One does not transfer wealth by a German inflation. He merely destroys wealth. Inflation wipes out the middle class. It wrecks labor. If any one gains it is the producer and the speculator. Even if they win, however, it is more largely the result of luck than anything else. An inflation, then, is not a means for coming to the aid of debtors. It may, in effect, cancel their debts but at the same time it will starve them to death.

Position of Senator Thomas Is Untenable.

What all of this means is simply that Senator Thomas does not know what he is talking about. His cable to Gov. Harrison is merely further proof of an already well-established fact. Economically, nothing that Senator Thomas says on the question of money is worth the energy it takes to listen to it. Such a conclusion is not the result of a difference of opinion as to the proper means for operating a system of money and banking. Senator Thomas' advice on money is comparable to maintaining that the way to play chess is to throw all the pieces out the window.

I can see no justification, therefore, for taking the position that when Senator Thomas attacks Gov. Harrison for the performance of his routine function of conferring with foreign central bankers, it means some new important development in our monetary policy. Ultimately we may reduce the gold content of the dollar again. We may even turn out some printing-press money. If we do, however, it will be because business and prices go into a tailspin, not because of anything Senator Thomas says. This, it seems to me, has been made abundantly clear both by the Treasury and the President.

Wool Market.

Boston, July 12 (A.P.). (U. S. Dept. of Agriculture).—Despite the current lack of demand for wool in the local market sentiment was rated hopeful. Buyers continued to keep a close check upon the new wool that arrived, as they have done for several weeks, but they did not as yet begin to purchase any sizable weights. The improved sentiment among members of the wool trade appeared to be based upon their belief that mill stocks of wool were very low. Reported consumption of wool for the past six months or more ran far ahead of purchases during the same period, according to the best information available.

Bonds Advance To 87.1 Level; Peaks Reached

Dealing in Federal Loans Sends Transfers Up to $14,466,000.

New York, July 12 (AP).—Many corporate loans continued to edge into new high territory in today's bond market, but U. S. Government securities relinquished their leadership in the upward climb and closed somewhat easier.

Due to a turnover in the Federal section of about $5,370,000, transfers totaled $14,466,000, par value, against $12,540,000 yesterday.

The Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporation issues advanced one-tenth of a point to 87.1.

Higher Grades Up.

While the higher grade groups were not especially lively, sellers in most instances demanded and received increased prices. The secondary categories were mildly irregular, reflecting the downward drift in stocks. There was little news of importance to the bond market generally.

Bonds that equaled or bettered their peak quotations for the past year or longer included some of Atlantic Coast Line, Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit, Central District Telephone, Columbia Gas, Consolidated Gas, Crown Willamette Paper, Delaware & Hudson, Detroit Edison, Dodge Bros., Erie, General Public Service, Goodyear, Inland Steel, International Cement, Kendall Co., Long Island Railway, Lorillard, Michigan Central, M-K-T, Morris & Co., National Dairy, New Jersey Power, New Orleans Terminal, N. Y. Lackawanna & Western, North American Edison, Northern Pacific, Northern States Power, Otis Steel, Pennsylvania Power, Pennsylvania Railway, Tennessee Railway, Tennessee Electric Power, Texas & Pacific, Union Oil, Reading and Southern Pacific.

Treasury Issue Heavy.

Treasury 3¼s of 1941 were rather heavily sold at a loss of 5-32 of a point. Other declines in this department ranged from 3-32 to 7-32, Liberty 3½s, however, made a new 1934 top with a gain of 6-32. Treasury 4s and 3¼s of 1944-46 were a trifle firmer.

The scattered declines in the Federals were ascribed to profit taking due to the long advance which has been under way in this list.

Foreign obligations were exceptionally quiet and prices mixed. While the Australians were firm, German government issues continued to ease. The Argentines were also rather heavy.

Curb Turns Irregular in Quiet Session

All Changes Are Narrow; Sales Volume Rises to 151,000 Shares.

New York, July 12 (AP).—Narrow and irregular changes prevailed at the end of the quiet curb session today. A few specialties continued to display moderate firmness, independent of the general list. Alcohols were steady, while utilities sold slightly lower.

Glen Alden Coal, which established a new 1934 peak, closed a point higher at 23⅝. Flinkote A, a past specialty favorite, came to life in a buying flurry that carried the price up nearly a point to equal the year's high. Swift & Co., Phillip Morris (new) and Gulf Oil showed slight improvement.

Pittsburgh & Lake Erie, one of the list's few rail representatives, declined 2 points in sympathy with selling of the carrier shares on the big board. Small fractional recessions were suffered by Electric Bond & Share, American Gas & Electric, Sherwin Williams and Humble Oil.

Transfers approximated 151,000 shares, compared with 132,000 yesterday.

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—With settlement transactions occupying the attention of traders, business on the stock exchange was quieter today. Profit-taking eased gilt-edged securities, home rails, and Kaffirs, but Argentine rails, German bonds, aviation shares and rubber stocks improved. The market closed quietly steady.

Paris—Higher prices prevailed in a quiet session on the bourse today. Canadian Pacific rose on news of better wheat prices in Chicago. The closing was firm.

Berlin—Trading on the boerse was quiet today and very little business was done. Prices declined, but the closing was sustained.

Cotton Prices Decline Under Profit Taking

July Closes at 12.64 as General Market Falls 15 to 25 Points.

New York, July 12 (AP).—Cotton lost about $1 a bale today under increased profit taking, foreign and some Southern selling while demand was less aggressive.

October eased from 12.92 to 12.77 and closed at 12.78 with the general market ending barely steady at net losses of 15 to 25 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 8 to 12 points in sympathy with lower Liverpool cables and nervousness created by private advices of showers in central Texas.

Foreign Selling Active.

Foreign selling was rather active and the South also sold more freely, apparently reflecting the decision of some holders of 10-cent loan cotton to liquidate after the market had advanced to the highest levels of the season on the previous day.

Early offerings were fairly well taken as further new buying appeared through Wall street and commission house sources, but trade demand was less active and prices eased further later in the session and closed at or within a point of the lows for the day. July sold off from 12.72 to 12.63 and December from 13.05 to 12.93. The selling was attributed partly to a belief that the technical position had been weakened by the recent heavy buying.

The weather details for the Houston district showed rains at 21 stations ranging from .01 to 1.38, principally on the Gulf Coast although light showers were reported at eight points in central Texas. North and west Texas remained without precipitation and the forecast called only for possible scattered showers on the coast.

Exports today, 25,144, making 7,486,537 so far this season. Port receipts, 2,201. U. S. port stocks, 2,498,289.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was firm in early trading today on a renewal of speculative buying and covering promoted by the bullish consumption report with all positions at new high levels for the season, but weakened later under increased realizing. Final prices were 10 to 22 points net lower. Sales were 38 contracts.

The Census Bureau estimated the June consumption at 300,802 barrels, against 256,771 in May and 280,274 in June last year. The visible supply at the end of June was placed at 2,150,000 barrels, against 2,409,000 at the end of May and 2,211,000 barrels at the end of June last year.

The reaction in cotton and grains, especially corn, accounted for the setback. Bleachable spot nominal; July closed 6.04; September, 6.10; October, 6.15; December, 6.32; January, 6.36.

The Dollar Abroad

(Associated Press.)

International dollar rates showed only a slight change from the previous session in quiet trading today.

In London the dollar closed at 5.03⅜ to the pound sterling and in New York the British currency was ¾ of a cent lower at $5.03¾.

In Paris the dollar was unchanged at an equivalent of 6.59 cents to the franc, and in New York francs were a minor fraction of a cent higher at 6.59¾ cents.

Bank Clearings Rise To $4,739,546,000

New York, July 12 (AP).—Bank clearings in the leading centers aggregated $4,739,546,000 for the week ended July 11, Dun & Bradstreet reported today. They are $350,478,000 above the previous week, which includes Independence Day, and compared with $5,369,319,000 for the corresponding period last year.

Clearings at New York City totaled $3,000,236,000, a loss of 20.5 per cent from 1933, while the aggregate of $1,640,310,000 for all outside centers was higher by 11.5 per cent.

Canada Wheat Crop Estimated At 82 Per Cent

Production for This Year Will Be Improvement Over 1933.

Ottawa, July 12 (AP).—Canada's wheat crop at the end of June was estimated at 82 per cent of average, says a report issued today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

At the end of June, 1933, the crop was estimated at 77 per cent of average, showing an improvement this year.

The 1934 wheat crop was planted on 2,000,000 less acres than last year, but in computing the relative figures, the Bureau of Statistics took this into consideration.

Weather Takes Toll.

The bureau report said dry weather was taking a toll of crops in Nova Scotia, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

"It is quite reasonable to assume that crops generally have declined in condition since June 30, although the change would be slight and easily remedied by rainfall," it added.

Expressed numerically in percentages of the long-time average yields per acre, the condition of field crops for all Canada at the end of June was as follows, with the corresponding figures for May, 1934, and June, 1933, in brackets:

All wheat (spring and fall), 82 (78, 77); oats, 87 (85, 84); peas, 95 (91, 93); beans, 82 (—, 86); buckwheat, 94 (—, 92); mixed grains, 89 (89, 88); flaxseed, 78 (—, 69); corn for husking, 76 (—, 89); potatoes, 86 (—, 95); turnips, 89 (—, 91); hay and clover, 82 (83, 88); alfalfa, 72 (66, 94); fodder, corn, 87 (—, 89); sugar beets, 74 (—, 84); pasture, 86 (81, 89).

Conditions Change Little.

Dealing with field crops generally the report said:

"The condition of field crops in Canada changed little during the month of June. The general rains came too late to benefit fall-sown crops and the first cutting of hay, but pastures picked up considerably and some of the spring grains improved in prospects.

"Because of the severe early season damage the grain crops in Manitoba and Saskatchewan were not able to make a full response to the plentiful June rains. The first hay crop in many sections of the Dominion was light, but the late-sown spring grains, roots and potatoes may still produce average yields if the season is favorable."

Seat Price Unchanged.

New York, July 12 (AP).—Arrangements have been made for the sale of a membership on the New York Curb Exchange for $30,000, unchanged from the previous transaction.

PONTIAC
1932 V-8 Sedan. Beautiful black finish with cream wire wheels gives this smooth-running car a rich appearance. 85-H. P. dash control free wheeling, synchro-mesh silent second. Fisher body, electro plated cast iron pistons, twin horns and front fender lights, thermostatically controlled cooling system, adjustable front seat, rubber spring shackles, rubber cushioning at 47 chassis points are some of the feature that make this fine car comfortable, long wearing and easy to handle. Only $395.
HANDLEY MOTOR CO.
3730 Georgia Ave. N.W. AD. 6060.

PONTIAC
1929 Cabriolet, model 6-29. The big six; 60-h. p. motor. Fisher body painted green. A little out of date, perhaps, in body style, no ultra-modern streamlines or airflow designs, but, boy, when this car was built it was made to last more than five or six years! The body may be old-fashioned but it was well built and the quality is still there. The engine is old but you wouldn't know it if you shut your eyes and listened. Just a faithful old friend deserted by its former owner but ready to give the same reliable service as the new one. $165.
STOHLMAN
See This Car at 24th and Pa. Ave. N.W.

PONTIAC
1931 Sport Coupe. 6 wire wheels, welled fenders, trunk rack, mohair upholstery. Beautiful new tan finish that makes this car stand out in a class of distinction of its own; priced exceptionally low at $295; terms and trade. Open evenings and Sunday till 9 p. m.
ARLINGTON MOTOR CO.
Rosslyn, Va. West 2208, Clar. 1774.

PONTIAC
1933 Sedan; smart two-tone brown; excellent rubber. This car has actually been driven only 13,000 miles. Extremely popular as a new car throughout 1933, this distinctive Pontiac continues to be highly desirable as a used car, not only because of its attractive appearance but because of its proved ability to deliver luxurious transportation at low cost. The comfortable Fisher body has no-draft ventilation and is mounted on a rigid double-drop frame, which lowers the center of gravity and assures greater safety and handability. Compare this car's present price with the price of a new Pontiac! Considering that only a part of its potential mileage has as yet been used and depreciation negligible for some time to come, it is without any question an exceptional used-car value at $599. Terms and trade.
"PARKWAY"

PONTIAC
L. P. STEUART, Inc.
1325 14th St. N.W.

ROCKNE
1932 coupe, with rumble seat. Impressive in size and the spacious all-steel body is finished in rich upholstered. The powerful 66-horsepower engine is especially smooth and free from vibration. Synchro-mesh transmission, silent second gear and free wheeling adds to driving enjoyment. A valuable safety feature is the automatic starter (Startix), which automatically starts the engine when ignition is turned on or when motor accidentally stalls. Finished in beautiful black, this car will be a source of pride to you.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY — Mother Enjoyed the Word Tilt — By Harry J. Tuthill

OH, AS LONG AS I LIVE I'LL NEVER FORGET THE COOL IMPUDENCE OF THAT SNAKY-EYED OAKDALE IN BUSTLING UP WHILE WE WERE LOOKING AT THE YACHT, AND CALLING MONTGOMERY EL DORADO JUST PLAIN "MONTY," I... UGH!
I THOUGHT SURE THERE'D BE TROUBLE.
TROUBLE? YOU MEAN THAT A PERSON EVEN SO BOLD AS OAKDALE WOULD START ANYTHING SIMPLY BECAUSE HE WAS PLAINLY TOLD THAT TO THE LIKES OF HIM, MONTGOMERY IS MISTER EL DORADO?
OH, I DIDN'T ADMIRE THE WAY MONTY LOST HIS TEMPER.
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF. 7-13
WELL, SWEETHEART I DID! AND FOR ONCE IN HIS LIFE OAKDALE DIDN'T KNOW WHAT TO SAY AS HE STOOD THERE TWIRLING HIS DINKY LITTLE MUSTACHE AND TRYING TO SNEER.
ANYHOW, I'M GLAD NOTHING HAPPENED.
McNaught Syndicate, Inc., N.Y.
THEY'RE BOTH HIGH TEMPERED AND....
WHO,.. OAKDALE? HEAVENLY DAYS! DARLING, IS THAT WHY YOU WALKED ON MY BUNION IN STEPPING BETWEEN THEM?
HA, HOW I WISH HE HAD DARED TO LIFT HIS HAND TO AN IMPORTANT MAN LIKE MONTGOMERY... HIGH TEMPERED? HE LOOKED MORE LIKE A SCARED RABBIT.

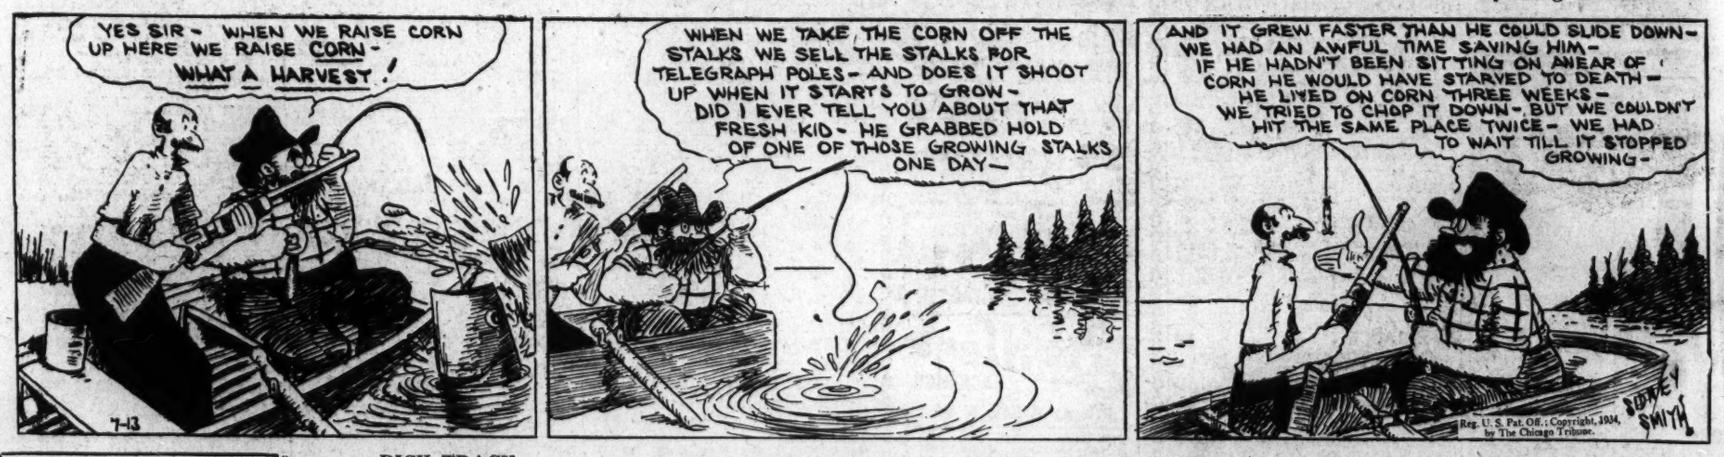
THE GUMPS — Speaking of Corn



YES SIR - WHEN WE RAISE CORN UP HERE WE RAISE CORN - WHAT A HARVEST!
WHEN WE TAKE THE CORN OFF THE STALKS WE SELL THE STALKS FOR TELEGRAPH POLES - AND DOES IT SHOOT UP WHEN IT STARTS TO GROW - DID I EVER TELL YOU ABOUT THAT FRESH KID - HE GRABBED HOLD OF ONE OF THOSE GROWING STALKS ONE DAY—
AND IT GREW FASTER THAN HE COULD SLIDE DOWN - WE HAD AN AWFUL TIME SAVING HIM - IF HE HADN'T BEEN SITTING ON A NEAR OF CORN HE WOULD HAVE STARVED TO DEATH - HE LIVED ON CORN THREE WEEKS - WE TRIED TO CHOP IT DOWN - BUT WE COULDN'T HIT THE SAME PLACE TWICE - WE HAD TO WAIT TILL IT STOPPED GROWING -

Walt Mason, Himself

Chin Up.

We all have felt the shearer's shears in this far-famed depression, which, for a stretch of moldy years, has held its gloomy session. We've seen our bonds go galley west with many a frisky caper, we find our good old treasure chest chuck full of worthless paper. One man presents a poker face to all who may behold him, and if he's seen his assets chase, no clouds of gloom enfold him. He wears a suit that's up to date, and hires a man to press it, and if he has been biffed by fate, no one would ever guess it. Another man is gone to seed, his grief he advertises, he talks of poverty and need, and woe in many guises. His lawn, that once was bright and gay, is dead and brown and weedy; the trees are looking parched and gray, the house is bleak and seedy. He used to wear a handsome hat and clothes that were becoming; but now his tires have all gone flat, he looks like someone bumming. So he depresses every gent as he drills here and yonder; he fills the air with discontent wherever he may wander. The fellow with the poker face is quite a public tonic; he takes his knocks with ease and grace, and proves his courage chronic.
